Social Student—I presume, with your abundant leisure, that you are interested in the most important question of the day?

Perry Patetio—You bet your life I am. An wit' me, same as anybody else, the most important questions of the day, when all is sifted down, is cats and sleeps.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Spanish and French women of the higher class are usually expert sword-women. They are taught to fence as carefully and accurately as their brothers, and there are numerous schools in the two countries where young women are taught not only to fence, but to handle the broadsword.

Present-Day Thoughts.

BY "NIMO."
[Copyrighted by Dawe & Tabor.]

Away from that which is known, onward to that which is unknown; away from the thing that has been and is, onward to the thing that is not but will be:
this is life! It is stagnation, it is death to try to live any other way. The necessity is on us to be ever moving forward out of the bright light of that which is understood, into the partial darkness of the next open door that conceals undreamed of happiness or disaster. Very naturally, there is a feeling of apprehension and shuddering and protest as Time, like a train, hurries us across plains decked with flowers and then rushes with terrifying roar past jagged and dangerous rocks and mayhap suddenly suspends us over chasms whose depths mean destruction to those who fall therein. Yet what is this but life? Viewed aright it is a joy never to stand still; viewed wrongly it is a thing to fear; and feared most by those who have gained least of that which is best from the hurrying events of life as they have whirled by.

Once again let us turn these individual analogies, whose truth everyone sees, into national teachings whose truths some of us are slow to see. Naturally one needs must in these stirring times take as a text for thought the present conflict. For truth's sake and because of the sacred honor that is the underlying current of our national life, no matter how contrivance surface storms may be, we have contended that there is a quality of mercy and of great dignity in what we are doing. Yet who among us is wise enough to see fully in advance the new vistas of progress or temptation to which the rush of events is leading us.
It is easy for the superficial ones to talk of a nation as though it were in a fixed and unchangeable state, like an Egyptian mummy wrapped in the pitch and cer-ements and preservatives of antiquity.
But the nation that lives and moves and has a being instinct with progress, is least of all like a mummy and those who would swath it with rigid bands may indeed distort it but they cannot repress it.
There is a tendency to always hark back to our own remotest past, with the credu-lous feeling that the men of those days had been prophets who foretold, as in a vision, all that would happen to us and made ample constitutional provision to meet it. Yet without detracting a particle from the value of their work we know that the articles of confederation of 1781, had to give place to the constitution of 1787, and that, in turn, has been amended fifteen times.

This evidence of change is no sign of indecision, but simply an evidence of growth. Our ancestors could not possibly have foreknown the great surging western wave of population nor could they know that the climate of the south and the development of the cotton-gin and the labor conditions that went with it would serve almost to tear apart every strand of union, nor could they have realized that the state jealousies of the early years would have so vanished by now that we scarcely have a remnant of state distrust left. These things are here set forth merely to accentuate the fact that vitality means change, and that change is simply readjustment as they have appeared.

We already see as we advance in our charitable warfare that the one simple aim, to aid the Cubans, will be complicated by a number of new relations and responsibilities. We are going to be much in the condition of the country lad who is suddenly transported from the isolation of the farm to the crowded malls of the city. He has to keep on the right side of the way or upset himself and his fellow; he has to hold his elbow in and learn an entirely new set of social rules. So shall we; the end of the war is going to leave us utterly removed from the compact isolation of the past. We shall no longer be able to live for ourselves and to ourselves. Whether we will it or not much more difficult international relations of friendship or of antagonism will be ours to confront. And we shall find that the diplomacy of the future will be much more sensitive than in the past because of our very apparent predilections for the English speaking in opposition to the Latin races.

We shall also find that our form of government, hitherto adjusted, with the exception of icy and darksome Alaska, to states that touch their fellow states on one or more sides, will have to be so extended or amended as to take in the administration, either permanently or otherwise, of remote colonies. Among these will certainly be the Philippines, unless Spain suddenly cedes them to another nation and that in itself would be a serious problem, with hostilities far more extended than they are at present on our seventh-rate opponent. Other territory in all likelihood will comprise Porto Rico, held for indemnification, and Cuba held for a time sufficient to permit the inauguration of a smooth running government of its own. Each of these departures will bring us into entirely new arenas of international sensitiveness; we shall be part and parcel of the great Eastern question—the control of the brown Malay and the partition of the lands of the senile Chinaman—and on the Atlantic coast the turmoil consequent upon the destruction of Spain will be ours to quiet.

Thus the open door of our latest duty shows us a broad horizon that we did not dream of before. Wise hands are needed, unswayed by party bias, uninfluenced by a desire for notoriety, but held as in a vise, to a determinate pu-pose to spend and to be spent in effort that shall still tend to perpetuate the growth in grandeur and leadership of this our dear country, carved at such an expense, from the wilds of the waste world. We shall go further with this line of thought.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised me to try 'Electric Bitters,' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c. a bottle D. T. Macdonald's drug store, Calumet, and Belhumeur's, Lake Linden.

I was seriously afflicted with a cough for several years, and last fall had a more severe cough than ever before. I have used many remedies without receiving much relief, and being recommended to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, by a friend, who, knowing me to be a poor widow, gave it to me, I tried it, and with the most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved me very much and the second bottle has absolutely cured me. I have not had as good health for twenty years. I give this cerappreciation of the gratitude felt for the cure effected.—Respectfully, Mrs. MARY
