HAVE CONVICTS SURROUNDED

Second Outbreak Occurs in Rawlins Prison Sunday

Rawlins, Wyo., Oct. 14.—Armed with shot guns, rifles, revolvers, cleavers and butcher knives, six or more dangerous criminals are said to be trapped in a canyon just south of Rawlins today. A battle between the men and a posse of one hundred is expected momentarily.

The men in hiding were among the convicts who escaped from the penitentiary yesterday. Eleven of the twenty who broke out of the penitentiary Saturday afternoon were still at large this morning, and it is believed those who escaped yesterday joined forces with their fellow convicts who liberated themselves Saturday.

The outbreak yesterday was the second within twenty-four hours. The guards fought for their lives and in the general fight inside the prison walls several men were shot down. Saturday afternoon, twenty prisoners escaped and nine were recaptured in the evening. Yesterday afternoon a party of desperate life termers overpowered the cellhouse keeper, took his keys and released their comrades from their cells. Every prisoner willing to risk a battle with the guards made a rush for the gates.

A moment later the citizens of the town heard a fusillade of shots inside the walls. A deluged of shouts and yells echoed from the prison. A few moments later more than a dozen men dashed down the main street, armed with guns and knives. Holding the few citizens on the streets at bay with revolvers, they charged into a livery barn, holding up the proprietor and hastily throwing saddles and bridles on the horses, in preparations for flight.

A huge negro with a revolver was left as guard on the outside. A man who came running up shot the negro through the head, killing him instantly.

At the sound of the shot, the convicts swarmed from the barn, some on the stolen horses and some on foot. A Mexican wantedly stabbed the proprietor in the face, severely wounding him, and a few seconds later a deputy sheriff shot the Mexican twice, killing him almost instantly.

Leaving their dying comrades, the convicts made a dash for the hills south of town. A party of penitentiary guards followed in close pursuit, and before the bewildered citizens had time to form a posse pursuers and fugitives had disappeared among the hills. In a short time posse had been hurriedly formed and one of the most desperate man hunts in the history of the West was on.

CORROBORATES ROSE'S STORY

"Bridge" Webber Testifies in Becker Trial as to Murder of Rosenthal

GET GUNMEN OUT OF TOWN

Tells of Alleged Comments of the Defendant in Case

New York, Oct. 14.—In the Becker trial today, "Bridge" Webber testified that Becker, referring to Rosenthal, told him in the latter part of June: "The — is trying to do me in every way. He's trying to see Waldo and now he's going to Whitman. He's got to be croaked before he gets to Whitman."

The witness told of meeting Rose and telling him of Becker's insistence that the "job" be done. Webber described the inception of the murder plot. Rose had agreed to get four gunmen together at his poker room the night of July 15. Webber said he was not on the scene of the murder until after Rosenthal was shot. "I saw his body on the sidewalk," he said. "I met Becker after the murder, with Jack Sullivan and Rose. 'I congratulate you, Jack, good job,' said Becker," the witness testified. "This is terrible Charlie," said Rose. "You got the number of the machine." "Never mind," said Becker. "I'll take care of you and the gang."

The witness said he heard Becker say at the time: "I have just seen him (Rosenthal) lying there, in the police station, and I'd like to have taken my knife and cut his tongue out as a warning to future squealers."

Webber swore that Becker said the night of the murder he had been looking for Rosenthal "to take a shot at him" himself. Webber corroborated all the important details of the story of the murder told by "Red Jack" Rose. After "Bridge" corroborated Rose's story as to paying him $1,000 to get the murder crew out of town, the witness was turned over to the defense. He admitted his place was an opium joint, but he had never taken opium or morphine himself.

Winfield Sheehan, secretary of Commissioner Waldo, was called today. His appearance was a surprise. Sheehan was excused when Justice Coffey refused to allow the admission of certain papers containing Becker's signature.
