CATHOLIC CLUB VICTORS.

Deceat X-Spurtis in Series of Three Games Last Evening. The Y. M. C. C. bowling club defeated the X-Spurtis in a series of three games on the Catholic club alleys last evening by the following scores:

TO BE EMBROIDERY SEASON Magnificence in Trimming is Promised as a Feature of the Gowns for the Winter.

The embroideries on evening gowns and cloaks have been very magnificent all this summer; but I hear they will be still more so this winter. Further, I believe that we shall see a return to soft transparent fabrics, as well as those of regal magnificence. Accordion plating will be a feature in evening gowns; this I have prophesied for many weeks, but probably owing to the fact that it is difficult wear for outdoor gowns, it will be chiefly relegated to the service of evening gowns...

DRESSING A WINDOW.

It is sometimes difficult to arrange the furniture so that the room looks both comfortable and harmonious. Windows are an ever present problem in this direction. It is almost impossible to make a square room with a flat window look anything but ordinary, but when you have a bay window, the artistic possibilities are many. The arrangement shown in this picture is both useful and artistic, whilst a quaint finishing touch is added by the two floor-cushions in front.

Hunts Ducks With Boomerang.

St. Joseph, Mo.—Vernon Tantlinger, a nitrod, uses a boomerang instead of a shotgun when he hunts ducks. He recently bagged eight birds with twelve throws.

Clean Utensils.

Breadboards and other kitchen utensils made of wood may be kept clean, white and stainless by rubbing with soap and lukewarm water, to which may be added a little common soda or household ammonia.

Slosson is the Veteran. It has been many years since such a notable array of experts were entered in a billiard tournament in this city. Slosson is the veteran of the company. He is the old war horse and in his time has held the championship titles at every style of the game. Hope, the youngest of the company, is probably the foremost player of the present day. Like Slosson he has pulled down all of the titles and can be counted upon to finish at the front in the coming tournament if he is in good condition. Morningstar, for many years the pool champion, has played in many billiard tournaments and at times has displayed wonderful skill. Cline also is an attractive player and has a taking style. He has a clean swinging wrist stroke of the old Sexton and Vignaux school. Derwent is another virtuoso performer. He is the kick full of confidence and is a wonderful mass player, one of the best of them all. Sattler is a seasoned player, though not as long in harness as Slosson. He is the best runner of any of them and on this account is likely at any time to make a decisive run. Taylor of Milwaukee is of a younger school of players, but has had considerable tournament and match play experience. Kofi Yamada is an unknown quantity so far as American tournaments are concerned. Will Poss the former amateur champion, witnessed his performance in the Berlin tournament some time ago, and declares him to be well up in the game.

Summary: Won by Yale, 7; by Brown, 1; tied, 1. Once more Tommy Ryan has come to life by declaring that he has quit the boxing game because Jack Johnson has put the sport on the blink. Young Mike Donovan, a son of the famous Mike Donovan, has entered the professional ranks and will fight in the welterweight class. Young Jack O'Brien will not meet McFarland, as the best weight that McFarland will make for Jack is 145 pounds. Tommy Murphy, the New York lightweight, will meet Fred Delaney, of Ireland, in a six-round bout in Philadelphia, Nov. 10.

Has Quit For All Time. "I'm but a little heavier than I was a year ago," he said. "It's the coat, I guess." Gotch has just closed up the fall work on the farm and is casting about now for something else to occupy his time. But a suggestion about wrestling again brought out the old Gotch smile and his eyes narrowed down to little slits as he thought about it. "No more for me," he blurted out. "Did you ever conceive some hideous idea of Hades? Well, I've got some hideous ideas, too, but they're all about training. The hereafter doesn't bother me so much." Many Hard, Hard Weeks. "Every once in a while, usually at night when I'm sitting at home and enjoying the ease and comfort of a nice place, I think of the wrestling game and wonder how it would be to start out again. Say the chills just begin to creep all over me when I fancy these six weeks, or maybe it would have to be eight weeks this time, of work that would be necessary to get me into condition. "Now, I've had unpleasant things come up in my life, and later on, when I think of them I try to think that it wouldn't be so hard to go through them again. That's the way with most of us, I guess. But with training it is vastly different. The tortures of training never will be erased from my memory." Money Was Well Earned. "People say I got my money easy because it was just natural for me to wrestle well, and I have all the natural qualifications. I wish those people knew the truth. It's the hard-earned money that counts." They are seeking me in some quarters because I don't wrestle Zyzyos again. They may keep on seeking. I don't care. I beat him once; don't doubt that I could do so again, but I haven't the slightest inclination to try it. That's final, and I don't care how strong you make it. "Soon after Christmas we are going out to California. In the southern part of the state I'm going to pick out a little patch of land that isn't too expensive and I'll buy it for a winter home. Mrs. Gotch is wild about orange and lemon trees and wants them in the front yard. That's the kind of a place I'll get. To Spend Summer in Iowa. "I'll have somebody run it the year round, because in the summer we'll return to Iowa and attend to business in Hannapolis.
