

CABINET PLACE FOR BRYAN IS NOT DISCUSSED

Nebraskan and Wilson Confer in the Governor's Office At Trenton Today

TALK OVER PARTY POLICIES

Many Matters Concerning Incoming Administration Given Attention

APPOINTMENTS ARE CONSIDERED

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 21.—William Jennings Bryan met Gov. Wilson at the state house at 9.30 o'clock this morning.

"I'm glad to see you," was Wilson's greeting. Bryan reached the state house a half an hour ahead of his appointed time.

The governor took Bryan's hand and escorted him to his private office. The big oak door was wide open and the "open door" policy the governor inaugurated here enabled spectators to freely come and go in the ante room to see the men in conference.

Bryan declined, when he was met at the train, to say just what he would discuss with Wilson.

Wilson announced after a three and a half hour conference with Bryan that the name of the Nebraskan was not mentioned in their discussion of cabinet places.

"We had a delightful conference, but did not come to any conclusion," said Wilson. "We talked about the policies of the party and various cabinet places, discussing names in a general way."

The president-elect turned the interview into a reprimand of some headlines in the morning newspapers.

"The headline writers," he said, "seem to think everything I do is going to be sensational, and the headlines almost never agree with the article below them."

Bryan was absolutely non-committal as to his conference.

To Announce Cabinet March 1. Trenton, N. J., Dec. 21.—Whether William J. Bryan or any of the other prominent Democrats being mentioned by politicians generally for places in the cabinet of President-elect Wilson will be appointed to portfolios probably will not be definitely known until a few days before inauguration day.

WOULD OUTLAW SUFFRAGETTES

Plan to Give Them No Rights or Protection Under Law is Proposed

PROBLEM IS NOT YET SOLVED Just How to Deal With Militant Women is Undecided

London, Dec. 21.—"Make them outlaws!" This is the severe suggestion of a London lawyer to the authorities who are at their wits ends in dealing with the militant suffragettes.

As the women will not obey "man-made laws," argues the barrister, they have no right to the protection of those laws.

While this newest proposition is not likely to receive general approval, it is admitted that some way must be found to punish women violators of the law without making them martyrs to "The Cause."

Many plans, including that of letting them starve in prison if they refuse food, have been recommended to the government, but none has thus far met with acceptance.

The lawyer quoted claims to have legal authority for his suggestion that the law breakers be declared outlaws, with all that outlawry signifies—ignores by the law, deprived of police protection and the rest.

The first vessels to be built are two cruisers of 2,500 tons each, four destroyers of from 800 to 900 tons, and two or four submarines.

TO MAKE SERVIA VASSAL STATE?

Fear is Entertained Austria-Hungary Has Such Designs

London, Dec. 21.—Peace envoys of the Balkan states and Turkey met again in conference today.

The agreement reached by the powers on the subject of the autonomy of Albania and in regard to a commercial outlet on the Adriatic sea for Servia has largely dissipated the nightmare of a European war.

Another Adjournment. The peace conference adjourned after a two hours' session.

The further adjournment of the conference was due to the fact that the Turkish envoys demanded the revivification of the fortress of Adrianople.

The Balkan representatives said this was not a condition of the armistice.

The Turks will ask their government for instructions on that point.

ARREST EIGHT IN CONNECTION WITH MURDER

Detectives Round Up Four Women and Four Men Following Logue Killing

SUSPECTED OF MUCH CRIME

Police Believe They Have Succeeded in Breaking Up Automobile Bandits

DAMAGING EVIDENCE IS FOUND

Chicago, Dec. 21.—Eight persons, four men and four women, are under arrest in connection with the sensational murder of J. H. Logue, a diamond merchant, in McVicker's theater building yesterday, and the police are strongly inclined to believe they have succeeded in breaking up the gang of automobile bandits.

Some of the prisoners are suspected of either participating, or knowing something about scores of safe blowings and other criminal depredations in Chicago in the last fortnight.

Following the arrest of four persons late yesterday detectives have been bringing others in one by one.

The sixth, a chauffeur alleged to have been driving nocturnal bandits about town; the seventh and eighth are a married woman and a friend of hers.

A search of a north street address was used as a rendezvous, resulting in a quantity of dynamite, nitroglycerin, caps, used in discharging explosives, a number of false keys, and a small quantity of jewelry.

On a letterhead of the "St. James Hotel, Davenport, Iowa," found on the table, detectives discovered drawings and designs of keys.

Flat a Veritable Arsenal. The inventory of articles found in the flat is as follows: 45 pounds of dynamite, two quarts of nitroglycerin, three dozen safe blowers, drills, skeleton keys, five automatic revolvers, three thousand dollars worth of parcels post stamps, five uncut diamonds, three thousand dollars worth of silverware and jewelry.

The first where the suspects lived proved to be a veritable arsenal. In the closet was two human skeletons, of the kind used in medical schools.

A wagon load of loot was taken from the flat.

At noon a woman's black skirt, from which had been torn a strip of silk like that stuffed as a gag into the mouth of Logue, was found by the police in the flat.

Photographs of bloody finger prints on woodwork and papers in Logue's office were taken today and pictures of finger print records are being taken of the suspects.

According to the police Logue figured in police affairs ten years ago when he was in New York. A jewelry salesman suddenly disappeared with a satchel full of gems.

The police have received a telegram from the Columbus, Ohio, penitentiary asking that Clyde Stratton, one of the arrested, be held, as he is an escaped convict.

MYSTERIOUS PEOPLE FOUND BY A BRITISH EXPEDITION

London, Dec. 21.—The British expedition under General Bower, which last year penetrated the Abor country on the northeast frontier of India, for the purpose of punishing natives for the murder of a British political agent, has brought back some interesting information of that part of the world, and of the even less known district northward to the Chinese frontier.

Before the advent of the Bower expedition, little was known of "this heartbreaking country," as A. Beutnek, who accompanied General Bower, describes it, except that it was inhabited by awkward tribes.

Few Englishmen had penetrated so far, and the right of the Abors to turn travelers back was unquestioned.

After punishing the tribes for the murder of the political agent, for the British government has a way of impressing natives with the fact that British lives must be respected, the explorers pushed northward across deep valley clefts and hardly fordable rivers.

One day they took seven hours to make six miles. They found primitive hill communities entirely unknown to Europe, living on scanty crops, supplemented by rats and squirrels snared in the jungle, and heard from them of even remoter and more mysterious tribes who were said to barter with the Abors in human bodies.

These wild men live close to the snow line, and the Abors spoke of them with disgust and contempt. Still further beyond the snow mountains they heard of another unknown country where the people live in wooden houses, and have neither horses nor yaks.

AMERICAN NOTE WILL BRING ABOUT CRISIS WITH MEXICO

Washington, Dec. 21.—The presentation of the state department's rejoinder to the Mexican reply to Knox's note of last September, demanding protection for American interests in Mexico may not take place until after the holidays.

Knox is leaving today for his home at Valley Forge and will be absent until early in January.

The note, in a way, is likely to be of a historic character, marking a distinct crisis in the relation of the two countries.

Officials disclaim that the note will be an "ultimatum," but that it will deal with the foremost issues.

To the surprise of the state department the Mexican reply was full of resentment of the secretary's suggestions, and even went to the point of impugning the accuracy of the statement of alleged facts contained in the note.

It charged that many Americans who complained of mistreatment were themselves to blame. It practically intimated that the Orozco uprising would have been impossible except for American support.

Reports of continued disorder and turmoil throughout Mexico are still pouring into the state department.

In her youth she gained some renown as an actress and then married Prince Salm Salm in 1862.

The prince was a soldier of fortune. He served first in the German army, then in the Austrian army, on leaving which he went to the United States and joined the Union army in the Civil war, rising to the rank of brigadier-general.

At the conclusion of the war he went to Mexico and became aide-de-camp of Emperor Maximilian, but went back to Germany and joined the Prussian army at the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war in 1870.

He was killed in battle at Gravelotte.

The princess accompanied him in all his campaigns. After the war she married Charles Henage in 1876.
