

FINE PURE FOOD LAW VIOLATORS

Dr. Alsberg Enforcing Law Fathered by Predecessor

Washington, Nov. 10.—The pure food law, which is linked in the public mind with the name of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, just as the cherry tree is connected with the name of George Washington, has faded from the limelight since Dr. Wiley stepped from public to private life, but recent bulletins issued by the department of agriculture reveal that the enforcement of the pure food law has not abated one whit.

Dr. Carl Alsberg, who already is known nationally as the successor of Dr. Wiley as chief of the bureau of chemistry of the department of agriculture, is enforcing the pure food law and seeing to it that violators of the law are punished, but his activities have not gained more than a small fraction of the publicity that was given Dr. Wiley and an erroneous impression has spread that the pure food law has become in a sense a "thing of the past."

On the contrary, enforcement of the law is going merrily along and adulterators of food and false labelers of food containers are learning that Uncle Sam does not intend to permit food evils to continue. Bulletins issued by the department of agriculture show that almost every day some violator of the pure food law is punished. The violators are prosecuted throughout the nation, but reports of all cases are made to the department of agriculture.

Arsenic in Food Color.
A few days ago David and Solomon Kozenstein, as the Star Extract works, New York city, were fined $50 for shipping macaroni color adulterated with arsenic.

Another $50 fine was imposed upon the Philadelphia Pickling company of Belleplain, N. J., for shipping into Pennsylvania a quantity of tomato pulp alleged to have been adulterated because it "consisted of a filthy, decomposed and putrid vegetable substance, that is to say, tomatoes containing yeast, spores, bacteria and molds."

A label bearing the picture of a stream of water flowing from a tunnel, described as the "Famous Sun-Ray Spring Tunnel, Ellenville, N. Y.," helped to bring a $50 fine against the Sun-Ray Water company. The company was alleged to have shipped into Pennsylvania a quantity of water bearing a label which indicated that it consisted wholly of natural spring water, whereas it consisted of water artificially carbonated, to which had been added sodium chloride, sodium bicarbonate and carbon dioxide. This product was adjudged misbranded.

The William A. Webster company of Memphis, Tenn., also was fined. The company was accused of misbranding lemon extract artificially colored with coal tar dye. Adulteration was also detected in banana extract labeled "Pure Concentrated Extract of Bananas," because analysis showed an imitation banana flavor, artificially colored, had been used. The company also was accused of misbranding and adulteration because quantities of strawberry and pineapple extract were labeled "pure," whereas it was alleged that in both cases an imitation extract had been colored artificially and mixed with the products.

Charles Band, of New York city, was fined for shipping a quantity of an article purporting to be spirits of turpentine into Connecticut. It was found to contain at least 4 per cent of mineral oil, whereas the authorities held the product should not have contained any mineral oil.

A fine of $50 was imposed on the Suffolk Drug corporation of Suffolk, Va., for shipping into Michigan quantities of essence of cinnamon, essence of peppermint and vanilla extract, alleged to have been adulterated because the products were found to contain substances which would injuriously affect their quality and strength.

Illinois Canned Accused.
A mixture of boiled cider and diluted acetic acid contained in a product labeled "cider vinegar," shipped into Illinois resulted in the shippers, a vinegar and pickling concern of Davenport, Ill., being fined $10 and costs. Adulteration and misbranding were alleged in this case.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Gets at the Cause and Removes it.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work. People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system.

They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without gripping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint; with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, you will know them by their olive color.

Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.—Advertisement.

Y. M. C. A. SHOWS GREAT GROWTH

Substantial Increase in Every Phase of Work in State

Figures compiled for the annual state convention of the Michigan Young Men's Christian association in Detroit, Nov. 20, will show not only a remarkable growth in every phase of the work but a substantial increase over estimates made five years ago by the state executive committee. In almost every instance the association has grown beyond the figures it was hoped it would reach within the allotted time.

The report of the state committee containing figures for all departments will be presented at the business session of the convention in the afternoon at the Cadillac hotel.

Big Gain in Membership.
The total membership of all the Michigan associations has grown from 8,225 in 1903 and 11,032 in 1908 to 19,410 in 1913. It was estimated in 1908 that in 1914 the membership would be 16,500, but that figure was passed long ago and the revised estimate would be more correct if it were 20,000.

The value of association property, according to the annual report, was $543,958 in 1903 and $1,296,101 in 1908. In 1913 it had increased nearly a million, reaching a total of $2,168,866. This is more than $400,000 in excess of the state committee's estimates of growth in 1908.

The report shows that the item of current expense is in round numbers $300,000. This means that an enormous sum is expended each year for upkeep, salaries and other items incident to association work.

Many Boys Interested.
Attendance at educational classes has grown to nearly 3,000 which is double that of any institution in the state with the single exception of the university of Michigan. Almost every kind of educational facility is provided by Michigan associations for their members.

An important phase of this work—growing both in patronage and value—is the teaching of English to foreigners in the upper peninsula and in the larger cities of the state.

One of the notable features of the association's growth in this state is the boys' department. There are now 5,583 boys in the state who are members of the association. More than 3,000 of them are enrolled in Bible classes.

The great attraction for boys each year is the state conference, to be held this month in Saginaw the week after the convention and dinner in Detroit. The physical department of the association has an unusual appeal for boys and more than 12,000 of them are enrolled in that department. It was estimated four years ago that the increase in this department would be 2,000.

Shop Bible Classes.
One of the unique developments of the Michigan state work has been in the shop Bible classes. These meetings are held during the noon hour or at any time most convenient in the shops and factories and not only attract a large number of interested men but do a great deal of good, as well.

The number of sessions held in 1913 was 692, with a total attendance of almost 100,000 men. The total attendance at all religious meetings has grown from 54,940 in 1905 to 241,642 in 1913.

Louisiana Takes Steps to Amend Its State Constitution.

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 10.—In order to make possible the borrowing of $11,000,000 the Louisiana constitutional convention convened here this morning. The proposed amendment to the constitution, which will permit the state to issue short time notes which are to be placed at the last interest rate available so that the maturing issue of state bonds can be taken care of January 1, is expected to meet with little opposition in the convention. The present constitution does not permit the issuing of anything less than a fifty-year bond issue. It is also specified that no interest in excess of four per cent is to be paid. Under these restrictions it was found impossible to secure funds, owing to the high prevailing rates.

THIS is the latest picture of the czarvitch of Russia, heir to the throne. The lad is still reported to be so sickly that he is usually carried around, and the people of the empire continue their prayers for his health. Because of the boy's invalidism Russia learned with joy that the stork was expected again to visit the imperial home at Livadia, for they hoped the bird would bring another boy to take the little czarvitch's place in case of death. Alexis, the only son of Emperor Nicholas, is now in his tenth year, having been born Aug. 12, 1901. The royal couple have four other children—Olga, born in 1895; Tatiana, born in 1897; Marie, born in 1899, and Anastasia, born in 1901.

FAMILIES CAN HAVE BETTER HEALTH IF THEY "CAN"
Housewives Will Find Canned Vegetables and Fruits Healthful and Economical for Winter Use.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—The balanced ration of many Americans today is made up something as follows: Bread, butter, eggs, meat and fish, potatoes, patent medicine laxatives.

Many Americans customarily suffer from one of the following complaints: Indigestion, constipation, rheumatism. A simple change of the daily menu might go a long way to remedy these ailments, according to the bureau of plant industry's specialist in charge of canning club work. This specialist recommends a change to a menu more in keeping with nature's plan, something as follows:

Bread, butter, fruit, vegetables, fish, meat, eggs, vegetables, greens. He recommends that every family provide a diet of fruit and vegetables for every day during the winter. This would do much to eliminate the need for patent medicine laxatives that figure so prominently in many American bills of fare. If every home kept on hand enough canned products so that there might be a can of fruits, a can of greens and a can of vegetables for every day during the winter, there would be little need for the laxatives now so regularly purchased from the corner drug store. There would also be great economy in the substitution of an inexpensive food for more expensive ones.

More home canning, done at the proper season, would enable the average family always to have the proper quantity of canned products, and would save an astonishing amount of food that goes to waste every year. It is estimated that over 50 per cent of all the vegetables, greens, fruit and berries that grow in this country, go to waste and are actually lost to those who need them. This is simply because housewives have not learned to care for these surplus products efficiently and to make them available for the winter months by canning.

That home canning may reduce the cost of living is not generally appreciated. Even those who are accustomed to use a supply of canned goods in the winter do not realize that they sometimes pay transportation on goods from distant parts of the country, when there is a surplus of the same product in their own vicinity during

SINLESS TOWN HAS ENGLAND

Only One Policeman and He Must Not Arrest Offenders

London, Nov. 10.—All America knows of the existence of a "Sinless Town," but who from Maine to Texas or from Washington to Florida ever heard of a "Sinless Village?" There is one in England, and it is a mining town, too—the little town of Blackwell, in the colliery district, where one would naturally expect riotousness and vice. Instead of vice owning Blackwell, virtue triumphs, almost to a degree, the visitors say, of monotony.

"I just won't allow any sin or wickedness that's all," says the kind of Blackwell, who is in private life J. T. Todd, manager of the Blackwell Colliery company.

The suburban and sociological investigator trumps a mile and a half from the railway station to Blackwell, only to find a town built in small, compact rows fashioned with a precision that absolutely reflects its righteousness. At one corner there is a public house, as a saloon is called in England, but this is the nearest and trimmest of resorts and turns its face in shamefaced fashion away from the main thoroughfare. Inside a few quiet spirits sit and discuss home rule and football, the two predominant subjects in England, without the slightest rancor and in almost subdued tones.

Occupants Sit in Kitchen.

Under a November moon, and with the faint incense of field and hedgerow stirring through the streets, Blackwell looks to be the very best place in the whole world, if the adjective is applied in the right way. The wayfarer walks along, and only his footstep breaks the stillness. No lights show in front of the tiny houses and this is soon explained when it is found that the occupants sit in their kitchens, so that the streets will not be unlit at night.

A cat slinks out from a doorway, trying to be wicked, as is the natural wont of a cat, but before it reaches the next shadow a shocked and reproachful voice calls, "Now, Tabby, come right back in," and the cat slinks hopelessly back.

"And everybody is good in Blackwell," the correspondent asked Mr. Todd.

"They are," succinctly responded his majesty, who, pressed to account for it, explained, "We don't allow them to be anything else," and Mrs. Todd put in, in kindest fashion, "I think it is because we take such an interest in them."

"Perhaps it is," rather reluctantly admitted Mr. Todd.

This benevolent despot went on to say that the collieries owned everything in Blackwell, employed every man and boy, about 5,000 workers, to whom $30,000 is paid weekly, and controlled everything in the village, except the public house, which we don't notice.

"We have the best cricket grounds in England and on them we've played forty-two matches this year, losing only six. We have tennis, bowls and football, besides, and musical evenings, too," said Mr. Todd.

"And during the tennis season we have teas on the ground," interpolated Mrs. Todd, "the wives acting as hostesses."

"We have a first class band and a boys' brigade," proudly said the king.

"I tell you, sir, they're a fine class of people here the nicest and most respectable colliers in the country," he went on. "You see, I don't allow anyone here to be prosecuted. We have one policeman, and I object to his prosecuting anybody, whatsoever. If anybody is bad the policeman reports him, and I deal with him, and if he is very bad I send him away."
