CURB STOCKS.

J. A. Minnear & Co. say today: The general market had a very quiet tone today, but the question is whether it was the week-end short covering or real investment demand. The total volume of business was not large and the markets had a regular holiday appearance all through the session. The reported better demand for metal helped copper somewhat though there are only a few on the list that qualify.

PREDICTS OVER OCEAN FLIGHT IN 13 HOURS

Dr. Bell, Inventor of Telephone, Says It Can Be Done

Washington, D. C., July 2.—The possibility of a trans-Atlantic Ocean flight in a heavier-than-air machine in 12 hours is pointed out in a communication to the National Geographic Society, at Washington, D. C., from Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone and former president of the society.

"The distance from Newfoundland to Ireland is less than 2,000 miles," says Dr. Bell. "This means that if you go at 100 miles an hour you will cross the Atlantic in 20 hours—less than a day. We have flying machines that go at a greater speed than that. We already have machines that could cross the ocean if their engines could keep going for 20 hours. Of course, these are exceptional machines, but even the ordinary machines of today make 20 miles an hour with ease.

"Now, a flying machine flies faster as you go higher up, because the rarer air offers less resistance to the motion, while the propeller gives the same push with the same power, whatever the elevation. As you get into the rarer air the propeller spins around faster. A 50-mile-an-hour machine flying two miles high in the air—and we have machines that have gone twice as high as that—will fly much faster than 20 miles an hour. Then at an elevation of two miles high in the air there is a constant wind blowing in the general direction of Europe having a velocity anywhere from 25 to 50 miles an hour.

"As a net result of all these things, there can be little doubt that an ordinary machine that is able to support itself in the air at an altitude of two miles high, will attain a speed of at least 100 miles an hour in the direction of Europe, and that means more from America to Europe in a single day. Calculation shows that, taking all these circumstances into consideration, our best machines should be able to cross the Atlantic in 12 hours. I hardly dare say it should be published. It is sufficiently startling to know that it is not only possible but probable that the passage may be made in a single day. But if, as I imagine, it can be done in 12 hours, you may take an early breakfast in Newfoundland and a late dinner in Ireland the same night."

any substantial gain. Centennial sold up to 184 on a few buying orders. There were quite a few orders for Copper Range today and if one is buying any of the lake stocks, Copper Range looks as attractive as any of them.
