ARGUMENTS FOR PEACE.

"In Vienna there are 29,000 wounded." "Five thousand wounded passed through Orleans daily for five days." "I counted 20 trains choked with wounded."

COMING AND GOING.

John Huhta, held for the murder of Thomas Daily and Arthur and Harry June at Palmsdale last December, is favored with the best of legal talent.

UNCLE JOE'S COME BACK.

Uncle Joe Cannon will probably be back in the next Congress. He has been renominated and it is generally conceded he will be elected.

THE SEDAN CHAIR.

The Sedan chair, so-called from the French town in which it was first made, was the most common means of travel in European cities in the Seventeenth and part of the Eighteenth century.

"ZIGZAG: THE ROUTE FOLLOWS BY POETS IN ARRIVING AT TRUTH, AS OPPOSED TO THE DIRECT COURSE WHICH THEY TAKE FOR THE BUFFET."

It doesn't matter which route you choose in order to get to us—the telephone route—a zigzag route, or a straight one. You'll get what you want, hay, grain, feeds, pipe, lime, cement and coal.

ed as by the Democrats. With an overwhelming majority they still whip their wavering lines into submission with the caucus, lash and deny any independence of judgment or recognition of representative opinion.

THE FAIR WORTH WHILE.

The Copper Country Fair has come and gone, and those who were fortunate enough to see the exhibits must be converted to the fact, if not previously convinced, that this region has a splendid future in an agricultural way.

WAR'S COST AND LENGTH.

Richard D. Wykoff, explaining in London's "Why the War Must End Soon," argues that the sinews of war are not soldiers but money, and that therefore the cash and credit resources of the contestants must determine their ability to stand the strain of the war.

VIVID STORIES OF THE WAR

London—A story received from a point in France not given and dated Sept. 11, says: A soldier comes out from behind a pine tree with rifle and fixed bayonet.

Women Ready to Be Shot.

Mlle. Jennie Dufan, grand opera singer, arrived in New York direct from the Alsatian front of the great European war, where for twelve days she was between lines of two big armies and at one time was held a prisoner by the Germans.

Incidents of The War

Corporal Ansell, awarded a medal by French, occupied an outlook post in a tree for three days, not coming down until he was wounded.

Thirty thousand carrier pigeons for use in the national mail service have been placed at the disposal of the government by homing pigeon societies in Birmingham, England.

In a side street off the Strand, London, is a jolly little dachshund—the dachshund might be called the national dog of Germany—walking cheerfully along well bedecked in red, white and blue ribbons.

Many English sportsmen, themselves unable to go to the front, are contributing their field and stalking glasses for the non-commissioned officers under orders.

Hundreds of men from the Salvation Army missions of London have answered the call of Lord Kitchener for service, and stories of the gallantry and bravery of the Salvationists are now coming back from the front.

One of the wounded served as a motor driver in the Royal Field Artillery. He was a bandman in the Salvation Army before war was declared and told of hearing other former Salvationists singing the favorite songs of the Army on the battlefields at night.

"On the fourth night of fighting we well in with the British ambulance sections," he said, "and one of the first sounds I heard was a wounded man in one of the wagons singing: I'm a child of a King. I'm a child of a King. With Jesus my Saviour. I'm a child of a King."

"I learned that he was a Salvationist, and later in the stillness of the night I heard a clear voice in another part of the camp singing: Then we'll roll the old chariot along. And we won't drag on behind. The song was taken up in other parts of the camp until it swelled into a chorus of voices that made the air ring with the old Salvation Army song."

While driving from Brussels to Grammont, where they purposed taking a train for Ostend, Edgar Allan Cantrell of Newport, Ky., and his invalid wife, went through a hail of bullets, one of which killed their driver.

London is extending its hospitality to thousands of refugees of all races. Every afternoon at 5 o'clock, when a bell rings in the exhibition hall of the Alexandra Palace, 1,500 women, children and old men, with a clatter of wooden shoes, gather around for supper.

This amusement park is now the largest camp for Belgian refugees, and each day brings hundreds of the homeless to join their destitute compatriots. Great crowds gather in the park in the day time to hear the harrowing stories of hardship, destruction and death that the refugees, including the little children, relate.

An interesting prophecy of Emperor William I. is now being recalled. When, in October, 1870, the position of the French army at Metz had become untenable, Gen. Boyer was sent Weather Conditions.

Moderately high pressure continues over the East, although it has fallen much since Saturday.

"To the ghastly fields about Puisseux I came," writes a French correspondent, "through the haunting horrors of men in gray and blue lying on the roadside—some as though they had lain down to rest and would spring to their feet at the trumpet's sharp summons; others as though some savage beast had sprung on them unaware and mauled them to death; others as though lightning had struck them and left only the charred remains."

Zouaves Show Valor.

"In part of the fighting we have been assisted by the reckless valor of the Zouaves," cables a French correspondent. "I have already described in previous dispatches the gallantry of this famous regiment, but in the battle around Soissons yesterday they covered themselves with new glory. They charged again and again under the most deadly fire and were successful repeatedly in reaching the enemy's positions."

War's Gentler Side.

"In the evening of Sedan day at Berlin," writes a correspondent, "a soldier in his war clothes of gray hobbled about Bismarck's statue, before the Reichstag building. His left leg was entirely stiff—bandaged, I suppose. His girl was with him; and how all adored him!—fingers, hands and arms were locked, and her eyes never left her hero's face."

WHAT OTHER PEOPLE THINK.

To the Editor:—A state commission is trying to hunt up more things to tax. Why not tax the politicians? There seems to be more of them than of anybody else.—Voice of the People.
