What I Know About Hardware and Christmas Follies.

When considering the great inventions of modern times we must not overlook the fire works. They are of vast benefit to humanity. Without them Christmas could not be celebrated. The fact that they endanger the lives, limbs and property must not be taken into consideration, for the children and fools must have their fun on Christmas. While the fire-cracker is only capable to set your clothes, hair or house on fire, whiskey comes to the rescue and sets your stomach and brain on fire. The social and legal approval given to drunkenness and gluttony on Christmas is rather peculiar. I doubt if Christ feels proud of his followers who honor his birth-day by shooting and yelling, overloading their stomachs and getting beastly drunk.

I am prepared for spring trade in my saddlery department. I have a large stock of bridles, collars, cotton rope, plow lines, back bands with common and Fuller hooks, hames, hame straps, trace chains, doubletrees, singletrees, both wood and steel, plows, steel shapes, plow stocks, double shovels, etc., all at bottom prices retail or wholesale.

E. STRAUSS.

The Speaker's Wife.

The wife of Speaker Crisp was born in Ellaville, near her present home in Americus, Ga. Her father was a planter before the war. She was married to Mr. Crisp while quite young, and four children, two daughters and two sons, blessed the union. The greatest grief the Crisps have yet known came a few weeks ago in the death

MRS. C. F. CRISP, of the elder son. The older daughter is married to a druggist in Americus, while the two younger children are still at school.

Mrs. Crisp has always spent the winters in Washington with her husband since his first election to congress. She is rarely seen at any but the most important events and it is not likely, owing to the recent bereavement, that she will feel like assuming the social position and accompanying honors belonging to the speaker's wife. She is thoroughly domestic, and cares most about being in her Georgia home, where she is accustomed to dispense real southern hospitality. She is about medium height, has dark eyes and hair slightly tinged with gray.
