COLORADO OUTRAGE

Adjutant General Tarsney Tarred and Feathered

By Masked Men at Colorado Springs—No
Clue to the Perpetrators—
Great Excitement.

Colorado Springs, Col., June 23.—Adjutant General Tarsney was kidnaped from the Alamo hotel a few minutes after midnight by masked men, taken to the suburbs in a hack, and there tarred and feathered. Several unknown men took part in the outrage.

After the ceremony the adjutant general was left lying on the prairie, and it was some hours after the outrage before he was found and cared for by the officers.

He is thought to be not badly hurt, but he was suffering from bruises caused by rough handling and was in great mental anguish.

The kidnaping caused the greatest sensation and excitement ever known here as soon as the facts became public, and also at Cripple Creek, to which place the telephone company carried the news.

General Tarsney has been in the city for several days, attending the examination of the arrested Bull Hill miners, for whom he and Col. B. F. Montgomery, of Cripple Creek, appeared as attorneys. At midnight, while only the night clerk and porter were on duty, Tarsney was called to the telephone. He had scarcely spoken when two masked men appeared, and upon his refusal to go with them he was struck a vicious blow on the head with a revolver. He staggered toward the door, when he was ruthlessly seized by two masked men and hurried into the street. The clerk did not interfere, as he had been warned to keep his hands off by a third masked man, who had suddenly appeared at the door.

In front of the hotel two hacks were standing, and four other masked men were seen there. The drivers who, it was afterward learned, had been introduced on the cab boxes and the vice, hustled into one of the vehicles, and the masked men got into them. The drivers were ordered to be off, and up the street the party moved at a mad gallop.

In fifteen minutes Police Captain Gathright and Officers Harlan and Henry were on horses and riding furiously in the direction taken by the kidnapers and their victim. The officers, however, had a poor trail to follow. It was pitch dark, and they only knew the masked party had gone out of town to the north. It was over an hour before the facts became generally known.

The drivers of the two hacks first brought the news to town. It was that the masked men had taken their victim to a point near Austin Bluffs, between two and three miles out of town, and after removing General Tarsney's clothes had covered him over with tar and feathers.

Driver Sherman Crumley says after the deed was done Tarsney was left lying on the ground and the masked men took to their heels. They drove to the Rock Island tracks and there dismissed their drivers, not paying them, but simply saying, "good night, honey." That was the last seen of the masked men and the drivers came into the city.

Driver Crumley says after the tar and feathers had been applied Tarsney was told to move on out of El Paso county, that he was not wanted either in Cripple Creek or Colorado Springs, and if he ever showed up again he would meet a worse fate than a dose of tar and feathers.

There was a meeting of twenty-five deputy sheriffs at Antlers park at 10 o'clock, and it is believed the plot against Tarsney was hatched there.

Tarsney's Record.

Denver, June 22.—Governor Waite is greatly excited over the outrage committed upon Adjutant Tarsney at Colorado Springs last night. He has offered a reward of $1000 for the arrest and conviction of the parties.

Timothy J. Tarsney was appointed adjutant general of Colorado by Governor Waite. He is a brother of Congressman Tarsney, of Missouri, and ex-Congressman Tarsney, of Michigan. General Tarsney was the personal representative of the governor during the police board troubles. His undaunted bearing then antagonized the police and their sympathizers, and it was freely stated that if shooting commenced he would be the first man to fall. In the earlier stages of the Cripple Creek trouble he was the legal adviser for some of the miners, and since the settlement of the strike has resumed his services in that capacity. While the militia were in the field at Cripple Creek he was the direct representative of the governor, and through him orders were transmitted to General Brooks. In this service he found himself opposed once more to many of the men aligned against him at the city hall. The A. P. A. also was bitter in its threats against General Tarsney.

To Hunt the Kidnapers.

Denver, June 23.—Governor Waite ordered a special train to leave for Colorado Springs at 11 o'clock. It is believed he intends to go to the Springs in person to assist in the hunt for the men who kidnaped General Tarsney.

The Drivers' Story.

Colorado Springs, Col., June 23.—Hack Drivers Sherman, Crumley and McKinney were arrested and released on their own recognizance, as they declare they do not know any of the kidnapers and were forced at the point of revolvers to take the party to Austin Bluffs. Crumley, who owns both hacks, says one masked man remained with Tarsney, ostensibly to show him the way back to the city.

Some of the men wanted to kill Tarsney, but their leader held them in check. Tarsney thanked this man and shook hands with him.

A mass meeting was called to denounce the outrage.

A Probable Candidate.

Washington, June 23.—The tarring and feathering of Adjutant General Tarsney by Cripple Creek miners has been much discussed among the members of the house today. General Tarsney was here recently and met many members of the house. He has been spoken of as a possible Populist nominee for congress in the district now represented by Representative Bell. If elected he would be the third Tarsney brother sent to congress.

Representative Tarsney says he understood his brother to be in sympathy with the miners, although as adjutant general he was at the head of the state militia and subject to the governor's orders.

Waite Did Not Go.

Denver, June 23.—Governor Waite did not go to Colorado Springs, but sent on the special train a party of detectives. Mrs. Tarsney and her daughter also went.

The Situation Unchanged.

Punxsutawney, Pa., June 23.—The situation has not changed since the arrival of the troops yesterday. The infantry is patrolling the roads and the cavalry is scouring the country, but the rebellious Huns and Italians are keeping under cover. No trouble is expected.
