WHAT THE TIMES SAYS.

LONDON, March 27.—The Times this morning says: Disraeli called out the reserves in 1878 and Earl Derby retired from the Ministry. Earl Derby's opinion, therefore, and his experience were unique. The risks of a rupture with Russia are now greater than they were then. The Czar's forces are almost at the gate of Constantinople. Even if the Cabinet were d sposed to preserve peace by concessions, after the concession it is now clear, such a policy is as unsafe, as it would be dishonorable, and yielding would alienate the Afghans at d degrade us in the eyes of the people of the East, without, in reality, averting war which East, without, in reality, averting war which would only be postponed at most for two or hree years. Delay would only benefit Russia to the detriment of England, Whatever frontier shall be Whatever frontier shall be traced we must protect the Afghans. It will be a ways in the power of Russia to provo e a quarrel unbss we convince her it will not be to her advantage to do so. Compromise in the present state of affairs would be represented as a Russian victory, and would produce opposits convictions in Russian and Afghan minds! We are persuaded that if Russian enchanting more want of surity that if Russia, reckoning upon want of spirit and insdequate resources in England, is pre-paring her elf for war, it will be in order for her to test the strength of the cohesion of he vast empire, which will bring the dreams of her ambitious statesmen and soldiers to a crue

COMMENTS ON THE SITUATION. LONDON, March 27.-The Standard says 150,000 men. This number can cashly be spared from the aggregate population and will not seriously interfere with trade or agriculture. All preparations now being made indicate that the Cabinet Council consider i more probable war will be declared than that a peaceable settlem no of the difficulty will be reached. The nation is in a humor to settle the busicess once and for all. The general impression is that England is better prepared for war now than she has been for years.

She can continue the war in the Soudan and than she has been for years.

She can continue the war in the Soudan and also send 70,000 men to India. India was never before so tranquil. The Soudan campaigns proves the troops are still what they were in the old days. Trade has been treated to such a regime of safe denial that there is little to lose through war. Never was there such time in the present generation, when the nation would so calmly accept as a necessity, that which she would never accept as her choice. LONDON, March 30 .- Consols, 973-16, both "The thing has petered out." 25,000 men are just about enough to fill vacancies in muster rolls caused by recent drafts for the Egyptian and Mediterrainian stations. Some people think there never was any danger of an actual conflict with Russia, and that the government is even trying to obtain glory and credit with the people for having intimidated Russia by an act which was greatly magnified in popular conception, but which was really a matter of course and practically insignificant. cally insignificant.
