THE WINNER.

James E. Ferguson of Temple has won the nomination for Governor of Texas. His opponent had the endorsement of what was believed to be the dominant wing of the party and the support of nearly every accredited leader, including President Wilson and Mr. Bryan. He went to the people as plain "Farmer Jim," told them his story and as the result shows, succeeded in enlisting their sympathies. He is forty-two years of age, a native of Bell county and the son of a Methodist preacher. He was raised on a farm and had little schooling. At the age of sixteen he went to California, where he worked in vineyards, on wheat farms, in placer mines and in a barbed wire factory. Later he worked in mines in Nevada and Colorado, and was a bellboy in a Denver hotel. Two years he was gone from home. Returning to Texas he farmed awhile, then took employment with a bridge gang, building county and railroad bridges. He returned to the farm, later was admitted to the practice of law, invested in farm lands and finally became a banker. We doubt if there is a man in the State—possibly the United States—with such a varied career. Farmer, miner, factory hand, bellboy, lawyer and banker—not theoretical, but by actual experience, and never a complete failure in any undertaking. The man's chief recommendation is his common sense. He goes to the heart of a proposition without any circumlocution. His triumph is an illustration of what is possible in a democracy, he having won the highest honor in his State over the combined political forces, including the President of the United States. Men will now seriously consider Ferguson's rental scheme. The chances are that two years from now he will have another proposal as to the land. As the saying goes, business will pick up in the State's affairs when Jim Ferguson takes the reins of government.—Waco Times-Herald.

We have lost enough time because of the election. Now that it is over let us get busy on the matter of good roads. Brazos County needs good roads and she should have them. There is nothing that would be of greater benefit to the farmers than good roads. It would benefit them in a thousand ways. It would multiply their conveniences. It would give them almost all the conveniences enjoyed by the man in town. It would practically eliminate distance and bring the farm and the market in close touch. It would enhance the value of the farmers' land. It would help in a thousand ways we cannot here enumerate. Let us have the roads. Brazos County is rich and the cost can be arranged so no one will feel it.

Methodist Jim (Cyclone) Davis has been whooping them up for a long time and has at last made the landing. Cyclone was a populist of the "strictest sect," and persecuted the democrats even as Paul persecuted the Christians. But after the populists were wiped from the face of the earth and he had remained in mourning the required time he came forth with even greater splendor as a progressive democrat. His old enemies have forgiven his past transgressions and taken him back into the fold, "placed raiment upon him and a ring upon his finger." The fatted calf has been killed; he was elected as one of the State's Congressmen-at-large in Saturday's primary. May his shadow never grow shorter and may he win new laurels for himself and add new glory to his illustrious State.

We fancy that Jeff; McLemore will exclaim when he obtains his first view of a Congressional warrant: "This is the place I long have sought and mourned because I found it not,"—Houston Post.

We opine that Jeff; will not be alone; but that others will help him to swell the sweet refrain into a mighty chorus when they tear the end off their first Saturday night-pay envelop.

The Eagle is proud of its record made in gathering and publishing the returns of the primary. Neither time, expense nor hard work were spared in doing it. We also rejoice in the fact that our efforts were appreciated as evidenced by the many expressions of commendation that have come to us from the people.

The tumult and the shouting dies, The boosters and lunks depart, So do the snorting other guys, Who've been a nuisance from the start.

But Lord of hosts, we can't forget, The Sons of Rest are with us yet, —Bailey in Houston Post.

Jeff; McLemore, elected as one of the Congressmen-at-large, says that he puts a colon after the Jeff; because he never comes to a full stop. The returns of the late primaries show that he not only did not stop, but that he ran like a scared wolf.

All good democrats are now for Ferguson and will hold up his hands in every way possible in order that the greatest good may be accomplished for the State, its interests and its institutions.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Every man has a hobby, and every woman two or three.

One man's automobile may be another man's juggernaut.

It is easy for a two-faced person to manufacture a bare-faced lie.

Abuse some one and we always find an appreciative audience.

A woman isn't necessarily industrious because she has a busy tongue.

Love brings the parson in, but only common sense will keep the divorce judge out.

A man never realizes that time is money more thoroughly than when he settles with a taxi chauffeur.

What has become of the old-fashioned mother who thought that her small son was destined to become a great musician because he could get a tune out of a mouth organ.

A girl may ask all kinds of questions during the courtship, so that he will think she thinks him a second Solomon, and after marriage give him the pitiful look every time he opens his mouth.

WORLD CENTER PROPOSED.

Los Angeles Express: At the bottom of the consciousness of mankind there is a growing appreciation of the fact that the world is made of people, and that there is a community of interest between nations and between races which, when properly understood, will overcome the tendency toward opposition and war. It will take a long time to break down the barriers of prejudice, selfishness and distrust which still exist, but some day these barriers will fall. In this connection it is interesting to note the movement under the leadership of Hendrick C. Anderson, an American architect and sculptor, looking to the establishment of a "world center"—a sort of social and governmental clearing house to be financed and conducted jointly by all the civilized nations. The purpose of this "center," should it ever become a reality, will be to promote more practical relations between governments, economical, educational, social, the maturing of all forces working for peace and good will; the interpreting of nation unto nation. It would indeed become a glorification of The Hague tribunal.

NOTES BRYAN'S GROWTH.

M. B. Davis, Jr., of Waco, Here After Absence of Two Years.

"Bryan is certainly growing fast," remarked M. B. Davis, Jr., of College, where he is reporting the Texas Farmers Congress.

"It has been two years since my last visit here and notice so many substantial improvements on all sides that I am led to believe that progress is in the saddle."

"I understand that efforts are being made to convert the motor line between Bryan and College into an up-to-date electric interurban railway, with a large summer theatre and lake midway, with all the incidental pleasures and opportunities for enjoyable outings. Certainly that would make things liven up to a great extent and help in the material advancement of the city in many ways."

Mr. Davis for four years was secretary of the Young Men's Business League at Waco, known far and wide as the biggest, best and busiest bunch of boosters that ever put a town on the map.

He was busy boosting the Cotton Palace while here and said this fall's exposition would far exceed last year's show, though the 1913 exposition was a record breaker from points of attendance, attractiveness, educational features and financial success. He said the Cotton Palace opens this fall on October 31st and runs for sixteen days, closing on November 15th, with $100,000 in additional grounds and substantial improvements of an entertaining and elevating nature.

WISHED SHE COULD DIE

And Be Free From Her Troubles, but Finds Better Way.

Columbia, Tenn.—"Many a time," says Mrs. Jessie Sharp, of this place, "I wished I would die and be relieved of my suffering, from womanly troubles. I could not get up, without pulling at something to help me, and stayed in bed most of the time. I could not do my housework."

The least amount of work tired me out. My head would swim, and I would tremble for an hour or more. Finally, I took Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I am not bothered with pains any more, and I don't have to go to bed. In fact, I am sound and well of all my troubles."

Cardui goes to all the weak spots and helps to make them strong. It acts with nature—not against her. It is for the tired, nervous, irritable women, who feel as if everything were wrong, and need something to quiet their nerves and strengthen the worn-out system.

If you are a woman, suffering from any of the numerous symptoms of womanly trouble, take Cardui. It will help you. At all druggists.
