During the visit of the A. and M. board to the College this week, a very pleasant incident was a meeting of the student body at the chapel and addresses by the members of the board, who were introduced by President Harrington. The entire battalion was mustered and marched to the chapel for the occasion. All the members of the board addressed the young men, among them being Major L. L. Melonis of this city, who said among other things that during his thirty years intimate knowledge of the A. and M. student body he had never known them to be guilty of a disgraceful act.
