WHY NOT BOOST?

Most every man is tempted
A little now and then
To do a bit of boosting
About his fellow men.
It's easy, it's easy,
To say the ugly thing,
It's easier to grumble
Than to merely sing.
And yet a hammer doesn't
Improve the world a bit—
It doesn't help the knocker
Or man that he has hit.
If Mr. Satan tempts you
Some other man to mock,
Just keep so busy boosting that
You don't have time to knock.

Some fellow has grown wealthy
While we continue poor,
Some fellow has been honored
While we remain obscure,
Some fellow has been lucky
When things were going bad,
Or demoralized wisdom
We didn't think he had.
Some other fellow travels
Along the easy road,
While we must struggle onward
Beneath a heavy load;
And yet for us a hammer
No treasure will unlock—
Just keep so busy boosting that
You don't have time to knock.

It's hard to see the others
Press forward in the race
While we who toil as bravely
Must stay in second place.
There fortune is a female
With all a woman's wiles
And often she is partial
Distributing her smiles.
How oft the unobtrusive
Shine hours a day by day
And leave his fellows creeping
Along the weary way.
But some have brighter plumage
In every feathered flock—
Just keep so busy boosting that
You don't have time to knock.

Make Satan get behind you
When tempting you to do
The thing that isn't pleasant
Or say what isn't true.
He'll tell you how another
Won riches rightly yours,
How one by murky methods
His eminence secures.
Don't let him make you jealous
Of other's plans and pelf,
For while you're boosting others
You're sure to help yourself.
Just go about your business
As steady as a clock—
Just keep so busy boosting that
You don't have time to knock!

—American Lumberman.

A GREAT POLITICAL STRUGGLE.

That the next few years will bring about the greatest political fight the country has ever known is admitted by all. On one side will stand the representatives of special interests who will insist on a government by the interests and for the interests and their representatives, while opposed to them will be those who insist that the people still have a right to govern themselves. The fight along these lines will have to be first in the parties, and perhaps afterwards between the parties. Already the Republicans are engaged in a conflict with the wing known as the insurgents, fighting the battle of the people, and all who study closely the political trend must know that insurgency is daily gaining ground even though it is being strongly fought back by representatives of both the Republican and Democratic parties, who are in sympathy with the interests rather than the people. In their determination to have a government by the interests for the interests, those interests are insisting that the representatives elected by the people to serve the people should be free to serve the interests, and strange to say these are Democrats bold enough to take such a stand, and to insist that they be allowed to serve, as they choose two masters with conflicting interests, the public service corporations and the people. This is a bold stand that the Republican stand-patners have ever assumed, for they deny that they are at work for any others than the people in their votes.

while certain Democratic office holders claim the privilege, as a right, to serve whom they please without regard to the will of the people. Upon this issue the political battle of the near future will be fought, and it will not be so much a battle for party supremacy as for the supremacy of the people over the special interests that are now dominating this country through special legislation, a struggle for the right against wrong. The interests have been insidiously accomplishing their ends through the representatives of the people, having their ravenous clutches upon enough in both parties to enable them to prey upon the people at will, but these people are gradually awakening to the real condition into which their own insouciance has drawn them, and the insouciance of the Republican party, that is but the awakening of the people to the enormity of the burdens imposed upon them, will find a counterpart in the Democratic ranks when the masses see that their representatives are in sympathy with the trust-ridden corporations, and have but little in common with the people who feel them to office. It may be known in the Democratic party by another name than insurgency, but whatever it may be called, the sentiment favoring a government in the interest of the people rather than of the monopolistic corporations will eventually control this country, and the time is not so far off as some appear to imagine—Brownwood Banner-Bulletin.

THE NEW INSURANCE ACT.

The new insurance act will not become operative until almost within a month of the assembling of the next Legislature. At most the computation that the extra session has given us might have expected of the next Legislature is as much relief as we have reason to hope for from the action of this one. Whether the computation thus touchsafed in words the rest of believing it about will depend obviously on the merits of the new act.

As for ourselves, we have more hope for it than falls in it. For anything, it remains to be seen whether the insurance companies will care to do business under its provisions. The chief point of difference, it seems to us, between the existing law and the new act is that the latter rates are to be made by the State rather than by the insurance companies. Since, under the old law the State reserved the right to change rates made by the insurance companies, this change, it seems to us, involves mostly only the transfer of initiative. Whereas, before it was the State that might challenge and suspend the action of the insurance companies, now it is the insurance companies that may challenge and suspend the action of the State. The new act does, to be sure, attempt to bring about competition by a sort of automatic process—by permitting the companies to undercut certain restrictions. To what extent the scale and sound companies will do this will depend manifestly on the level of the maximum basic rates. If this should be put high, we should have reason to expect a considerable competition. If it should be put low we should have no reason to expect much competition, at least on the part of those conservative companies which are not ready to regard their business as a mere gamble with rates.

PREDICTS NEW ALIGNMENT.

The following special telegram to the Dallas News is suggestive: "A new political alignment in the erstwhile Solid Democratic South, the creation of a progressive party that will stand for purity in politics and will in no way compromise with the policies advocated by Col. Roosevelt as a guiding star, is the political prophecy advanced by W. H. Sullivan of Atlanta, Ga., representing Governor-elect Hoke Smith of the State, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and the Hardwood Manufacturers' Association at the Convention Congress. Mr. Sullivan's dispatches are evidence of being a politician, but his record shows that he has taken an active part in measures affecting the welfare of Georgia.

The feeling of the people of Georgia on the question of Col. Roosevelt's policies is best demonstrated by the resolution adopted by our State Legislature endorsing the White Mountain Appalachian forest reserve plan advocated by Mr. Roosevelt, and granting (to State Representatives in Congress to vote in Congress for the bill creating this reservation," said Mr. Sullivan. "This one poller, if consummated, would result in the conserving of forest lands and agricultural lands worth millions.

"It is practical and progressive policy and the South, as far as I have been able to ascertain, is beginning to realize that policies of this kind must necessarily be the way to the formation of a progressive political party, a party that will be all that the name implies and a party that will bring together such men as Col. Roosevelt, James Garfield, Gifford Pinchot, Hoke Smith and other progressive men."
