Jim Williams Brought Up.

Deputy Sheriff Teague, who went down to Houston night before last after Jim Williams, returned with his prisoner on the noon train yesterday and he is now behind the bars of the Washington county jail. Williams is the negro who is charged with killing a young German farmer named Max Brenner on the road between Burton and Greenvine one evening last fall, and who was captured at Bryan by Sheriff Dever while in the employ of Sells Brother's circus and was taken to the Harris county jail for safe-keeping. The facts of the killing are doubtless fresh in nearly everybody's mind, and as the case is soon to be tried and it may serve to retard justice and cause delay in securing a jury, the BANNER will not publish them peddling a trial. Yesterday evening the reporter called on Jim Williams in jail in company with Mr. Estes, the jailor, to see if the prisoner could be induced to make an admission or confession. But it was impossible to secure anything satisfactory from him. He did say, however, that the reason he left the neighborhood the evening of the killing and didn't return to get his money was that his step-mother told him he was accused of killing a white man on the prairie near Burton some time ago and that a mob was being made up to hang him. When arrested at Bryan and while on the way to Houston he told Sheriff Dever that the reason he did return to get his money was that he heard the Fayette county officers were on his track. Jim Williams is a young, round-shouldered, round-faced negro, about twenty-two years old and manifests a stolid indifference as to the charge pending against him. The brutal instinct is not so very strongly marked on him, and yet his indifference does not appear to result from ignorance. The court will probably fix a date for his trial to-day.

Brick, Cream and Young American Cheese at SLOAN & HODDE.

The streams were full reported on a boom yesterday. The driver of the Independence mail hack came into town in a rush and didn't stop to talk to anybody. He was in a hurry to get back across New Year's creek before the bridge was lost sight of.

H. FISHER.

On Tuesday night before the services began at the gospel tent the Salvation Army held a service on the southeast corner of the courthouse square, in front of the Merchants' Exchange saloon. There was an audience of about one hundred and fifty present. Adjutant Hargreaves and his sister, Lieutenant Elizabeth Hargreaves, both sang and played cornet selections, and Capt. French preached a short sermon. One of the visiting ministers to the Mulkey-Burnett meetings was with them.

THE BANNER'S informant was slightly mistaken in saying that Mrs. George C. Williams, formerly Miss Mamie Goodman, was on the way to Corsicana from Tyler when she died and that she died on the train. In this connection it is but just to Mr Dan Kiber to say the reporter did not get his information directly from him, but second-hand. The unfortunate lady lived in Tyler and didn't die on the train, but soon after returning from a visit to Corsicana. The deceased was a granddaughter of Mrs. B. A. Lockett, who resided in this county over thirty years and who now resides in Sealy at present. She was also a niece of John Lockett, of this city.

THE signal bureau forecast fair and colder weather.

The Funeral of Mr. Lewis.

The funeral of the late Hugh M. Lewis, county clerk of Washington county, who died at his residence in this city at 1 o'clock on Monday afternoon of pneumonia, took place yesterday morning shortly after 10 o'clock from the family residence, on West street, to the Episcopal church, and thence out to the city cemetery. The obsequies were in charge of the Knights of Honor, of which order the deceased was a member, and the service at the church was conducted by Rev. F. S. Leigh, of Hempstead. Notwithstanding that the rain was descending in torrents, the church was filled with friends who had come to pay the last mark of respect to the deceased, thus evidencing the high and almost universal esteem in which he was held. When the services at the church were concluded the downpour was unabated, but a long line of carriages and buggies took up the march to the cemetery, where all that was mortal of Hugh M. Lewis was deposited in the final resting place on earth.

TOM GENTRY, JR., and Mike Gamke two farmers west of Berlin, had a fistfight on Monday evening about a road dispute, in which Mr. Gamke came out second best. He came into town yesterday and made complaint against Gentry before Justice Curry.

MR. IRE HOMER, foreman at Fisher & Weis's sausage factory, met with a painful accident at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. While feeding the machine he had his right fore finger caught in it and dippen off at the first point.

The district court was not in session yesterday. Nearly all of the court officials attended the funeral before dinner, and the jurors having been discharged for the week there was nothing to do anyway.

WOOD is getting a little scarce in town, and if gentle spring doesn't put in an appearance soon several families will have to replenish their piles.

THE Washington county bar association will probably meet to day to take action by passing appropriate resolutions in regard to the death of County Clerk Hugh Lewis.

MR. L. KOFF, who returned yesterday from Buckhorn prairie, says he saw more ducks and geese down there than he has seen for years.

THERE are half a dozen names mentioned in connection with the vacant county clerkship.

THE grand jury has returned five indictments since it was organized.

THE criminal docket will be taken up in the district court on Monday.

NEXT Monday, the 17th, will be St. Patrick's day in the morning.
