GROWING JEFFERSON.

Abreast of all Her Compeers in the List of Great and Glorious Texas Cities.

[An Appreciation by Frank McDonald.]

Dual conditions obtain to prevent the writer of these articles to do full justice to the splendid resources and bright prospects of this grand old town. The multitudinous advantages of this portion of Marion county cannot be pictured in the limitations of space weekly afforded in this column and must hence be treated of and in continuous chapters.

And the JIMPLECUTE is also circumscribed from any present exposition of the pending movements looking to and backed by such persons as warrant the surety of entire success—the rejuvenation of great iron industry which once bestowed the color of bright prosperity over the community, lest the premature disclosure of their broad gauged and wisdom conceived plans, work to their possible disadvantage.

And concurrent and committal with these propitious developments in the industrial field is the almost assured fact that the Cypress river will at the next session of Congress receive the attention she has ever been worthy of but has been so long denied. It is ironical to think of the Trinity receiving three quarters of a million dollars in one bulk sum, as it did at the last river and harbor bill, the Sabine was cared for and private capital fearlessly investing in navigation enterprises in this little stream and that the Cypress whose pellucid waters once floated more navigable craft than any other stream in Texas, should be overlooked.

An expenditure of $20,000 would make the Cypress navigable for the largest draft vessels from its natural head at Jefferson clear to its confluence with the waters of the Red river, and whilst the big brained men of Jefferson and Marion county are bending every effort to secure this end it behooves every citizen to pitch in to the same end. The city has recently and is now experiencing a moral wave which is in touch with the spirit that is making for a greater Jefferson.

The JIMPLECUTE readers well know that this paper has never been in tolerant in its leechments, yet it fully realizes and correctly reads the handwriting on the wall which plainly states that no community in modern moral Texas can hope to achieve civic greatness without concomitant private morality and chastity and hence we welcome the present and kindred movements.

To the desirable citizen who wishes to combine the conditions which make for material prosperity with the concomitants of Christian and education opportunity Jefferson presents avenues seldom surpassed. She has six churches with resident pastors and well attending congregations, a first class graded school with five teachers, an excellent waterworks and electric light system. She is envied by as rich a land as lies under the sun, blessed canopy of Texas skies, is populated by a generous, broad-gauged, whole-souled people, and that Jefferson will soon again assume its ancient sway as the metropolis of Northeast Texas the writer firmly believes.

Jefferson Foundry and Machine Shops. The establishment above named enjoys the distinction of being the oldest manufactory of this fine old town, in upbuilding and support of which it has played an important part, and indeed, if reckoned from the time of its earliest inception, it is the pioneer machine shop of the great Lone Star State.

The plant was destroyed by fire in the early eighties and rebuilt by the late Green B. McDonald and has ever since been in the hands of his family. Upon the demise of Mr. McDonald, here, in 1899, its management was assumed by E. B. and John McDonald and by them jointly managed until two years ago when their interests were segregated, the latter taking the Jefferson Ice, Light and Power Co., which they had recently promoted and built and Mr. E. B. McDonald becoming sole owner of the shops.

The plant manufactory of brick, shingle, mill machinery, saw mill machinery, lumber buggies and all kinds of mill supplies. It makes gear wheel patterns on short notice and keeps in stock Garfield injectors, jet pumps and added to the filicitious courtesy which has ever graced its extended incumbency of it. W. F. Jones was born in Marion county, Ga., April 15, 1841, his parents removing to Louisiana when he was five years of age, and three years later came to within five miles of Jefferson, where his father purchased a large plantation.

The outbreak of the war between the States found him in the prime of vigorous manhood and he promptly enlisted in the 7th Texas Infantry, serving through the bitter struggle and participating in many desperately contested battles and sieges.

At the cessation of hostilities he returned to the home plantation, took a turn at a New Orleans business college and for 16 years thereafter he was Lockkeeper for the G. A. Kelly Foundry Co., at Kellyville, and served for two years thereafter in the same capacity with L. K. Bivens of Atlanta, when he was elected County Clerk as first stated.

Mr. Jones' innate affability and courtesy of demeanor, coupled with thorough competence, are the twin qualities which has won him the encomium of "well done thou good and faithful servant," is emphatically expressed at the polls for the last quarter of a century.

Davis Biggs. Like his co-laborer in the onerous and delicate duty of assessing the county taxes, the gentlemen above named has long been an incumbent of the office of tax assessor, having been first chosen to the office in 1900 and re-elected at every election since, being now serving his fourth term.

Relief from Rheumatic Pains. "I suffered with rheumatism for over two years," says Mr. Roland Curry, a patrolman, of Key West, Fla. "Sometimes it settled in my knees and lamed me so I could hardly walk, at other times it would be in my feet and hands so I was incapacitated for duty. One night when I was in severe pain and lame from it my wife went to the drug store and came back with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I was rubbed with it and found the pain had nearly gone during the night. I kept on using it for a little more than two weeks and found that it drove the rheumatism away. I have not had any trouble from that disease for over three months." For sale by all druggists.

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought. Bears the Signature of J. C. Atkinson. The richest men are those who make the most of what they can get. Danger in Delay. Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Jefferson People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with any certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills. William Potts, machinist of 417 E. Locust street, Marshall, Tex., says: "For ten years I had attacks of backache, some of them very severe after a hard day's work or if I contracted a cold. The latter was always sure to get in my loins and extra pains and inconvenience ensued. I knew from the action of the kidney secretions when these attacks were at their height that there was something radically wrong with my kidneys, but until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills I was disappointed in every preparation I used. I noticed the direct effect of Doan's Kidney Pills on the kidneys after a dose or two and a continuation of their use for some time absolutely rid me of that last attack." Plenty more proof like this from Jefferson people. Call at the J. F. Crow Drug Co.'s store and ask what their customers report. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Clark & Boice Lumber Co. Whilst its rich enviroing lands and their sturdy yeoman cultivators are valuable assets and great supports to any community it is the merry whirr of the manufactory wheel and the vinelad cottages of their workmen which sings a sweeter song than the peans of departed glory or the bolts of triumph in war. And clustering close to the banks of the Cypress river bordering on the northern confines of the city, Jefferson can boast of a busy hive of industry and the greatest manufactory of its kind in Forth Texas. Reference is had to the vast plant of the Clark & Boice Lumber Co., comprising some dozen large buildings and covering nearly 40 acres of ground. Of its buildings the splendidly appointed saw and planing mills, having a respective daily cutting capacity of 40,000 feet in the saw mill and 60,000 feet in the planer, are the largest, and with its splendid brick dry kiln, holding 500,000 feet in dimension are the most important of its plant. And there is in addition six large lumber sheds and a commodious and complete office building. The company owns its own railroad, which operates thirty miles of track, hauling timber from the company's vast timber domain and their railroad has its own regular laid out yards and well equipped repair shops on the lumber company grounds. The immense output of the lumber company is marketed in nearly every State and is heralds afar the fame of Jefferson as every cardinal point of the compass. The Clark & Boice Lumber Co. was established twenty years ago and for two decades has been the financial mainstay of the city, it having constantly on the pay roll 200 well paid hands whose wages have all that time ramified through every artery of trade and benefited every business and institution of Jefferson.

W. F. Jones. The nestor of the competent coteries of county officials of Marion county is the gentleman above named who for nearly a quarter of a century has discharged the duties of County Clerk in a thoroughly competent manner wholly satisfactory to every citizen of the county, a record rarely matched in the entire broad domain of the United States. Mr. Jones was first chosen to this office in the fall of 1884, and in the long lapse of years that has intervened since that time has been regularly elected.

and unlike so many long political incumbents he has never wavered in his diligent work as a public servant, but each succeeding year has brought to the office the value of additional experience

Get Right With Man. A religion that fails to make a man pay his debts promptly and cheerfully isn't worth wagging around in the vest pocket. There are men who profess great interest in the work of the church the mention of whose names would give an army of bill collectors nervous prostration any time. "Get right with God" is advice that every sensible man should heed—and the first step in that direction is to get right with your fellow man.—Honey Grove Signal.
