VALUE OF COMMERCIAL WATERWAYS.

The Picaquey of New Orleans says: "The value of commercial waterways as seen in the comparative growth of Chicago and St. Louis. Chicago first appeared in the census reports of 1840 with 4,500 population in round numbers. St. Louis which started far ahead of Chicago in 1820 kept far ahead of Chicago until 1880. In 1870 Chicago had 299,000, while St. Louis had 311,000. Then it was that St. Louis began to abandon the river trade. Before that her boats had plied on the upper Mississippi and the lower Missouri, sending as many as thirty steamers in a year into the Dakotas and Montana.

"But that has all become a thing of the past. St. Louis gave up the river trade in 1880. She had 350,000 population to Chicago's 503,000. While in 1900 St. Louis 575,000 to about 1,700,000 for Chicago. What ever else has been the cause of these phenomenal changes in the two cities, the fact remains that Chicago had been constantly developing transportation on the lakes until her interior commerce by water is greater than that of any other city. But not satisfied with that Chicago is now clamoring loudly for a deep water route from the lakes through the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico. It will pass by St. Louis, which long ago abandoned the river as a route of commerce, and there is every reason to believe that Chicago with her extraordinary enterprise will soon get that deep waterway and will get more business and money out of it than will any other place that may have the use of it. It is true Chicago is a great railroad center, but so far from depending on railroads as her only route of trade she has constantly developed her waterway business and by its use has become the greatest interior city on the continent and perhaps in the world, having no direct unbroken waterway to the sea. This is a remarkable example of the value of interior waterways for commerce, and should furnish a most striking object lesson to all who can understand."

Jefferson should not neglect nor forget the lesson herein taught, that waterways build up cities. In 1870 St. Louis had 12,000 more population than Chicago, but 30 years later Chicago had passed the city of St. Louis over one million. St. Louis pinned her faith to railroads and gave up her water routes, while Chicago held on to both. Jefferson should now tie on to the water, and get every advantage there is in it. The ice has at last been broken, in only a short while from Jefferson to New Orleans a boat can go any time during the year. The country can't afford to not take advantage of this. The commerce of the country has already gotten beyond the ability of the railroad to handle it. Each year the commerce will increase more rapidly than the railroads' facilities for handling, therefore the country must look to the waterways to market the surplus.

The big Dallas Fair will open its gates Saturday, 19th. Governor Campbell will deliver the address, and a big attendance is assured.

It was a glorious victory.

PROHIBITION CARRIED.

The Election a Victory for the Pros. and Old Jefferson Will be Dry for the First Time in Her History.

The Local Option Election held Saturday, Oct. 12th, 1907, to decide whether Jefferson and Precinct No. 3, should be dry or wet, resulted in placing the old town in the dry side by a majority of 47 votes.

Saturday, Oct. 12th is a day that will long be remembered in Jefferson by all who battled so nobly for their cause. The morning opened cool and cloudy; at 5:50 all church bells and the school bell began to ring and continued for at least 30 minutes, calling the Christian people to the churches to prepare for the day's work. At 7:30 the children, who took part in the singing, and the ladies had marched to their place, just across from the court house, where the voting was held. A tent, an organ and tables were on the lot, and the children sang prohibition songs all day assisted by the ladies. Two carriages decorated in white and filled with children, single, were driven through the street during the day. The songs, pleadings and banners of the women and children were a scene that touched the heart of even the most bitter opponent, and will always be remembered, and to them alone is conceded the victory of this cause. The colored Sunday School children and their teacher, more than a hundred, marched to the scene with their organ, and took their place on south side of Austin street and near court house. They sang and marched under the instructions of Mrs. Peterson, the colored temperance worker, who had been here for the past week, and they did good work for the cause, and remained at their post all day. At noon the ladies spread a fine dinner and every prohibitionist and worker were invited to this dinner.

The election passed off with very little disturbance, and both sides worked to the voting hour with faith in their victory. As the anti had conceded their majority a hundred or more, the victory of the pros was made the greater when it was announced, and such a shout of rejoicing went up as never before in old Jefferson, while church bells announced the news also. It was a great day in the history of Jefferson.

A grand jubilee rally was held Sunday morning at 10:30 at the Presbyterian church and a large crowd assembled to take part in it and give thanks to God for the great victory won by the Christian people.

The colored people held their rally Sunday afternoon at the Berean church and it was largely attended.

Card of Thanks.

To the Editor of the Jimplectite.

The women of Jefferson would like publicly to express their thanks to God, who gave them victory, and to the men who gave them victory. They also wish to acknowledge their gratitude to all persons who helped them in any way. First, to the editors of the Jimplectite, who have always given space and words to advance the cause of Temperance, and who have lately donated the use of their paper to such an extent that they feel like saying, "Your paper has saved Jefferson."

Next, to Mrs. Haywood, the one who began the movement, and pushed it on to a successful end. Then to the valiant "Committee" of men who worked so earnestly, and so laboriously, and to the preachers for their zeal and persistent efforts, both in the pulpit and out of it. And to the mayor, who did honor to his office, as chief of the city, by his brave adherence to principle, and also gave them his carriage, his horses, and his drivers to use. And to the county attorney, who defied public opinion, and bravely championed the cause. Special merit is due the children, who aided so faithfully, so beautifully, so effectively—and to Mrs. Rowell and Mrs. Stutz who trained them, with the assistance of Miss Maybelle Hale as organist, and helper. The "N" also did much work, and did it all promptly and willingly.

We wish to thank the colored people, who so nobly came to the rescue. May God bless them.

Sincerely do they thank every one who contributed substance, work, influence, prayers, or encouragement, in behalf of the cause of purity, peace and prosperity.

That Prohibition Victory.

To the Editor of the Jimplectite:

For many weeks the citizens, both white and black, male and female, of this precinct have been engaged in deadly conflict over the question as to whether or not we should longer license saloons. Our precinct has been an arena of contending forces seeking with might and main to carry off the laurels on October 12, 1907. As I understand it this was not a battle of men against men, but on the one side citizens were trying to overthrow the saloon, and on the other side citizens were trying to defend the saloon. The people seemed to understand the issue and, so far as I know, the fight was honorable on both sides of the line and nothing led to the disagreeable state of affairs that would have resulted from a fight of man against man. The contest was sharp and resulted in victory for those who oppose the saloon by forty-seven votes majority.

Now as the smoke of battle is clearing away I want to make a few suggestions. Prohibition has won the victory, but in our hearts we can not hold ill feeling against the man who honorably defended his business. I know that in victory there is often a disposition to boast. This is wrong. I have been defeated and I know it is easy to bear defeat if the victor don't brag about it. Let us all be thankful but let us not boast.

I want to say further that, our fight has not been against the saloon keepers. They are citizens among us and we want to see them prosper and do well. This victory has entailed upon some saloon keepers a financial loss. Now I want to suggest that we give them all the encouragement we can as they launch into business of a different character. Let us be charitable and divide our trade with them. Let us buy their groceries, dry goods, etc., and show our good will and I believe they will be glad soon that prohibition was victorious.

Now as to extending the time for local option to go into effect, I know that many would be glad to make the concession, but it is a legal impossibility. The statutes prescribe the time and manner in which it must be put into effect and there could be no variation therefrom without invalidating the local option laws altogether. I don't believe the men engaged in the liquor business want that, for it would be defeating the expressed will of a majority of this precinct. We are all Democrats and let's allow the majority to prevail.

I want to conclude with this: Let's all endeavor to feel good and let's all endeavor to enforce the law the majority has enacted, and all stand together and know no pros nor antis when the upbuilding of our old town is in question. We are citizens of the same town and county. We differed upon a proposition. A majority was on one side of the question and a minority on the other. We all exercised our rights as citizens and who can complain?

Very respectfully, M. W. Reavis.

Hurray for Prohibition!

To Editor Jimplectite:

We won a grand victory, didn't we? Saturday evening was the happiest we have spent in many a year. Oh, it was a glorious day for old Jefferson. And now since we have found what unity can do, let us keep right on till our town is the cleanest in all this big State.

It has been a long time since the good people of our town pulled together for the good of all; now we see what united force can do. Let us keep together and make our town a place to be proud of. Then when our boys and girls go a visiting they won't be ashamed to tell where they came from. Oh, the shame of it! A year or so ago I heard a young lady say, "I am always ashamed to tell where I live when I am away from home." I think love of home, the home we live in, the town, the state, the country should burn in every soul that is capable of any feeling.

"Why are you ashamed?" I asked.

"You don't know what a name this place has," she replied. "One is looked at cross-eyed, laughed at; so I tell a fib and say I live in some other town."

Since then I have heard both boys and girls say the same.

All this is going to be changed. Why we have the best men and women, both white and colored, of any town in the state of Texas; there isn't any better men and women in any state. And we are going to pull together and make our town the best.

In our joy over our victory don't let us forget that there is work ahead and plenty of it. We are to stand firmly together, be watchful, slow to anger but full of courage.

We are to look after the poor fellows who have drunk until every nerve cries out for the fiery liquor; we are to pass them by in scorn! Ah, no. We are to take them by the hand and pull them up to man's estate again. Each one of us white ribbon women may be enabled to "help some fallen brother rise" and that is grand work—grand enough for our noble white ribbon women.

Hurray for a town full of noble men and women, handsome boys and pretty girls, the dearest, sweetest children who can march like soldiers and sing like nightingales.

Hurray for Jefferson and Prohibition! Mrs. H. A. Benefield.

How Nature Provides.

OUR BEAUTY, HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

It is not possible if not probable that elements necessary for the body health are contained in the native medicinal roots found in the earth, digested in the plant laboratory of nature and made ready for man or animal?

The medicinal virtues of many American plants and roots were known to the early Indians. Thus a root known to the Indians as "Cascodyllum" or "Blue Cohosh" was known to the Indians as "Squaw root." Another, known to the Indians as "Rattleweed root," is used in modern medicine as "Cimicifuga."

Prof. King's American Dispensatory, an authority in these matters, says: "Our Indians set a high value on Rattleweed root (Black Cohosh) in diseases of women. It is surpassed by no other drug in congestive conditions of the parts where there are dragging pains and tenderness."

After many years of study and experiment Dr. Pierce, the medical director of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., put up a prescription of his own, containing the non-alcoholic glyceric extract of the two above mentioned ingredients, together with Golden Seal root, Lady's Slipper root and Unicorn root. Thus, there is no mystery in the makeup of this famous "Prescription." The use of alcohol is entirely avoided in its manufacture, chemically pure glycerine being found to serve the purpose of extracting and preserving the medical properties even better than alcohol.

Learn the Truth. The one medicine for the cure of all women's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, the ingredients of which are printed on the wrapper of each bottle, being the great Laboratory in Buffalo, N. Y., where it is made, is called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Purgative.

It Stands Alone not only in respect to its ingredients, but also as the only specific advertised remedy for women's diseases which absolutely contains no alcohol.
