

TO HONOR MEMORY OF CAPTAIN PIKE

PEOPLE OF COLORADO SPRINGS
WILL CELEBRATE DISCOVERY
OF PIKE'S PEAK NEXT WEEK.

Special to the Herald.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 22.—The people of Colorado Springs have completed elaborate preparations for the celebration next week of the one hundredth anniversary of the discovery of Pike's Peak. The date of the celebration anticipates by two months the actual centennial anniversary, the change being made because the weather conditions at this time of year are more favorable to outdoor festivities than later in the year.

It was on November 26, 1806, that Captain Pike attempted the ascent of the mountain, which bears his name. His was the first military and the second exploring expedition ever sent out by the United States government, and its object was to learn something about the territory recently acquired by "the Louisiana purchase." With a little party of private soldiers and others, Pike started from St. Louis, July 15, 1806. After long travel and numerous hardships the condition of the little party was becoming rather desperate when, on November 15, the "Mexican mountains" were sighted from the banks of the Arkansas river in what is now Western Kansas. Three cheers were given and Pike determined to press on to the "great white peak." The nearest the party came to the peak was on November 27, when Pike and two followers climbed to the top of a mountain some fifteen miles from the peak. Pike wrote in his diary that the great white mountain appeared to be as high again as the mountain he had climbed and that it would be impossible for a human being to reach the summit.

As Captain Pike made his expedition to this region under the auspices of the army, a large detachment of United States troops had been detailed to take part in the celebration of the coming week. The various tribes of Indians that inhabited the Rocky Mountains at the time of Pike's visit also will be represented by liberal delegations. These include Arapahoes, Utes, Cheyennes, Comanches and others.

The complete program arranged for the centennial is as follows:

Monday—Military Day. A parade will be held in the morning of United States troops, cavalry, artillery and infantry; Grand Army veterans, Spanish War veterans, state militia, cowboys, Indians, etc. In the afternoon patriotic exercises will be held in the opera house under the auspices of the Daughters of the American Revolution and National Society of Colonial Dames of America, together with representative club women of Colorado. In the evening Governor McDonald will hold a military reception in the Antlers Hotel.

Tuesday—Pioneer Day. Vice President Fairbanks will deliver an address in North Park at 10:30 a. m. The pioneer societies of the state will hold exercises at Stratton Park, with a band concert for the evening feature. Congressman and Mrs. Franklin E. Brooks will give a public reception in honor of Vice President and Mrs. Fairbanks. Indian dances will be given at the Indian camp at Broadmoor.

Wednesday—Historical Day. The Pike tablet on the summit of Pike's Peak will be formally unveiled, under the auspices of Colorado College. Historical exercises will be held in the afternoon under the college auspices at Perkins Hall. The breakfast luncheon by the women's executive committee will be given in the Antlers

Hotel at noon, and a reception of patriotic and learned societies will be given in the evening.

Thursday—Pike Day. A massive granite memorial to Capt. Pike will be unveiled in Antlers Park. The "Ode to Colorado," composed by C. J. Pike, a grand-nephew of the soldier-explorer, will be sung for the first time by a trained chorus of one thousand voices. The military review will take place in the afternoon, with a banquet at the Antlers Hotel in the evening.

Friday—Colorado Day. A parade in the forenoon will be followed by a reception to the distinguished visitors. Fireworks, band concerts and a banquet of the Colorado Bar Association will be features of the evening program.

Saturday—Centennial Day. Military maneuvers will be followed by the breaking of military, Indian and cowboy camps in the afternoon. Band concerts will be given at North Park in the afternoon and at Manitou in the evening.

In addition to Vice President Fairbanks, the distinguished speakers during the centennial will include Senators Warren, Scott and Teller, Representative Brooks and Chancellor Buchtel of Denver University. A number of prominent army officers and officials of other departments of the government will be present and take part in the exercises of the week.

JOSEPH D. SAYERS SIXTY-FIVE SUNDAY

ONE OF THE MOST PROMINENT PUBLIC MEN OF THE SOUTH.
SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

Special to the Herald.

Austin, Texas, Sept. 22.—Ex-Governor Sayers will celebrate his sixty-fifth birthday Sunday.

Joseph D. Sayers, one of the most prominent public men of the South, was born in Grenada, Miss., Sept. 23, 1841. He removed to Texas with his parents when ten years old and has made the Lone Star State his home ever since. He served in the Confederate army through the Civil War, and was admitted to the bar in 1866. He entered public life as a state senator in 1873, and was lieutenant-governor in 1879-80, and from 1885 to his election as governor in 1898 he was a prominent member of congress. He served two terms as governor, and the four years he spent as chief executive added greatly to the development of the natural and industrial resources of his state. Two great public calamities visited Texas during Governor Sayers' administration. The first occurred in 1899, when great overflows occurred in the valleys of the Brazos and Colorado rivers, destroying the crops and rendering many people homeless. In September, 1900, the great storm that cost the city of Galveston and the coast country many thousands of lives and an appalling destruction of property took place. Governor Sayers took personal charge of the distribution of the several million dollars contributed to the relief of the sufferers, and in this work he looked after every detail so carefully that no word of complaint ever was heard of the manner in which the vast fund was handled by him.
