TESTIMONY IN THE HARRY THAW TRIAL

THE DEFENSE IS INSANITY—DR. WILEY, SPECIALIST ON INSANITY, QUESTIONED.

Special to the Herald.

New York, Feb. 5.—The only other member of the Thaw family in court this morning besides the prisoner was Josiah Thaw, a brother of Harry.

Dr. Wiley of Pittsburg, one of the physicians of the Thaw family, was the first witness for the defense. Dr. Wiley testified that he is a specialist on insanity in the asylum for the insane of Pennsylvania.

"What happened in 1905 in connection with Thaw?" Attorney Gleason asked.

"That year I was a passenger on a Fifth Avenue surface car, when Thaw entered; it was in the evening. Without apparent reason Thaw yanked a window blind down. The conductor pulled it up. The action caused a furor in the car. Thaw's manner was vague, semi-defiant and impertinent."

Attorney Gleason asked Dr. Wiley if, in his opinion, a man who committed such acts was sane or insane. Jerome objected to the question, but the doctor was allowed to answer. He said his opinion was that a man who acted like Thaw did was insane. Gleason asked Dr. Wiley if he thought Thaw knew his act was wrongful, and knew its nature. "He did not," was the doctor's answer.

The prosecution drew first blood when Fitzgerald, at the request of Jerome, ordered stricken from the records Wiley's answer to a hypothetical question embodying Thaw's act just previous to the shooting of White, and the manner of his remarks afterwards.

Attorney Gleason went back to the hypothetical question, seeking an answer according to the rules, the evidence of Dr. Wiley. The doctor repeated that he thought Thaw's act was that of an insane man.

District Attorney Jerome asked what element of insanity Dr. Wiley found in a man while walking along, saying: "He ruined my wife."

Dr. Wiley answered, "Nothing."

Taken back to the street car incident, Dr. Wiley said he reached the conclusion that Thaw had been insane after reading of the shooting. Recalling the street car incident, Jerome said:

"Your report was partly reached by reading the newspapers?"

"Yes."

The prosecutor referred to the question of pathological conditions, and perverted function.

Jerome: "Did you apply the Romberg test?"

The surprised witness didn't know what that test was. Dr. Wiley said he examined about eight hundred insanity cases. Jerome bombarded the witness with questions, bewildering him. Dr. Wiley was visibly embarrassed when he failed to define Jerome's medical terms.

"Will you be long?" interrupted the court.

"Oh, yes," replied Jerome. "I find the witness very interesting."

Court adjourned until 2 p. m.

AFTER RAILROAD'S SCALP.

Resolution Offered in Senate to Have Reorganization Investigated.

Special to the Herald.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Senator Meyburn offered a resolution in the senate calling for the appointment of a committee of five senators to investigate into the reorganization of the Northern Pacific railroad, with a view to having congress repeal its charter.

OF THE THIRTY MINERS ENTOMBED EIGHT ARE DEAD, AND IT IS FEARED ALL ARE DEAD.

Special to the Herald.

Thomas, W. Va., Feb. 5.—Eight of the thirty miners entombed in the Davis mine are known to be dead. All hope of saving the other entombed men has been abandoned.

One man who escaped says his comrades are buried in the passageway.

Superintendent Jones of the mine was overcome with gas and died while trying to enter the mine.

CHICAGO STREET CAR

Franchise Granted by Council—Mayor May Veto It.

Special to the Herald.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—The city council this morning, after a night session, passed ordinances providing for the consolidation of the independent street railways with a twenty-year franchise. The improved merger system agrees to pay 55 per cent of the net receipts to the city, subject to the voters' approval. The mayor may veto the council's act. He stands out for 55 per cent of the gross receipts.

BROWNSVILLE INVESTIGATION.

A Witness Says Reports Sounded Like Winchester Six-Shooters to Him.

Special to the Herald.

Washington, Feb. 5.—"The reports sounded like Winchester six-shooters," said Sergeant Harris, formerly a member of Company D, Twenty-fifth Infantry, in describing before the senate committee the Brownsville shooting.

The witness said he was confident the shots did not come from Springfield rifles. He said when the men were guarded by armed men with Winchester. He denied any knowledge of the "Conspiracy of Silence."

FOURTEEN PRIVATE CARS.

But Mr. Bell Knew Nothing of His Own Knowledge.

Austin, Texas, Feb. 4.—The senate committee appointed to look into the matter of different Austin specials sent out regarding the lobbying and presumed bribery and debauchery rampant during the time just previous to the election of Senator Bailey, had Representative Bell of Limestone on the witness stand tonight and questioned him regarding the letter sent out to a Mexia paper wherein he charged that seven private cars of trust magnates were here at that time.

The substance of his testimony was to the effect that he knew nothing positively from personal knowledge, but that it was common talk at the time, and he had sufficient information from others to justify him in making every statement he had made and that he had only told half the truth about the cars, as there were fourteen private cars instead of seven.

He could not name any trust magnate nor had he himself seen a single car, but he said that from what he saw around the Driskill hotel he was satisfied that the trust officials were here in force to see that Senator Bailey was re-elected.

A Fatal Snowslide.

Pueblo, Colo., Feb. 4.—A special to the Chief from Salida, Colo., says: At least a dozen lives are believed to have been lost in a terrible snowslide that came down the Manarch Mountain about 9 o'clock tonight, completely overwhelming three business houses and burying their occupants under fifty feet of snow and dirt.

The destroyed buildings are Steve Killen's saloon, Fred Mason's rooming house and Fred Smith's restaurant, the inmates of which had no warning and no time to get out before the rush came. Several of them, however, have been rescued. Great confusion reigns at the scene of the disaster and it is difficult to secure details.

NEW ENGLAND IS SNOW BOUND TODAY

WASHINGTON HAS WORST SNOW STORM IN YEARS, AND NEW YORK IS SNOW BOUND.

Special to the Herald.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The capital is being visited by the worst storm experienced since 1899. Eight inches of snow has fallen.

New York is also snow bound with the worst storm of the winter. Traffic is at a standstill, and the snow is over one foot deep on the level.

New England is practically snow bound today.

HEAD-ON COLLISION.

Two Engines Got Together in Taylor and Were Damaged.

Taylor, Texas, Feb. 4.—A head-on collision occurred in the I. & G. N. yards here this morning, doing considerable damage to two of the company's locomotives. Engine No. 224, called to leave at 7 o'clock on a work train going south, collided with the switch engine doing work in the south yard. Both engines were considerably damaged and derailed, together with a caboose with a train crew asleep inside. The collision occurred as the switching crew was putting the caboose on a siding, engine 224 coming from the roundhouse, smashing into the switch engine with great force.
