Self Culture Club.

The Self Culture Club held the regular weekly meeting with Mrs. R. E. Lee Monday afternoon.

The table talk for the afternoon was "Famous Nominating Speeches of Presidents." It was a fitting time to deal in politics and ably was the subject handled. Mrs. Flanagan gave Ingersoll's speech nominating Blaine.

The table talk for the third term. Mrs. Dallam gave an account of the convention in nominating Grant. "How the President of the States is Elected" was ably discussed. The speeches were all interesting and much enjoyed.

The work for the session is interesting, the membership complete. The names of the following bright young ladies just home from college and university were presented for membership: Misses Marguerite Morris, Mattie Cad Gardner and Mattie Gooch.

Happy Afternoon.

Miss Bessie Wagon complimented her friends with a beautiful party on Friday afternoon, the occasion being her fourteenth birthday. The home was sweet in pink and white, so emblematic of youth and purity. The dining room was "a thing of beauty," here the guests were invited to an elegant repast. The centerpiece was a beautiful pyramid banked high in chrysanthemums and roses, all pink and white—the idea being that youth must climb to higher heights. The afternoon was full of joy and sunshine for the hostess and every guest, who showed their love by a gift of remembrance.

Acorn Club.

The Acorn Club held the regular meeting Saturday with Mrs. P. W. Brown.

Table Talk: European Estimate of Byron. Lesson: Child Harold's Pilgrimage, Canto First.

Senior B. Y. P. U. Seeing Ghosts. Mrs. T. W. Smith entertained the Senior B. Y. P. U. on Friday evening in a ghastly, "ghostly," splendid manner. On entering, the guests were met and welcomed by a ghost and shown into the home, which was dark, only the glimmer of one candle lighting the way. Every guest brought a jack-o'-lantern. Quite a party of ghosts passed before the guests, and a solemn voice sang from a corner of the dining room, "Hark From the Tomb a Doletful Sound." It was thought that the puffs of the coiffures of the ladies were rising in fear, but soon all recognized the voice as being one familiar. A series of ghost stories was next given, Miss Frankie Eastland beginning, and at the exciting point some one taking it up and others continuing. All were invited to the kitchen, where "bobbing apples" was enjoyed. At a late hour a Halloween supper was served, consisting of ginger bread, chocolate candy and apples.

An Afternoon of Witching.

Mrs. Ned Morris entertained on last Saturday afternoon, complimentary to Miss Mary Stedman of Austin and Mrs. Web Wright of this city. Miss Mildred Morris met the guests in ghost-like style, a little ghost herself. Mrs. Morris, assisted by Mrs. Wright, Miss Stedman, Mrs. Barry and Mrs. Dallam, cordially greeted every one in the hall. All were invited to the library, which was darkened. A little witch was serving oyster stew from a boiling caldron. Miss Nell Morris, as a ghost, was assisting the little witch, who was Miss Juliette Houseman. All were next invited to the parlors, which were seated in concert style. Autumn leaves and jack-o'-lanterns decorated the beautiful apartments. Mrs. Morris introduced the program for the afternoon, which was musical, literary, ghost-like and bewitching. Miss Marguerite Morris gave an instrumental solo. Mrs. Dallas gave a ghost story. Miss May Gregg delighted all with her singing. Mrs. Barry gave a beautiful reading. Mrs. Sparkman closed the program with a vocal solo. After this a delicious repast was served of cake and caramel cream, in scooped apples; sitting on each apple was a miniature witch. The afternoon was quickly passed, every guest being fascinated and bewitched.

Social Club.

Mrs. Eugene Fore entertained the Social Club and other guests Tuesday afternoon with an autumn party. The beautiful rooms were aglow in the king of autumn and winter flowers. The hall was in red and gold chrysanthemums; parlor, red dahlias and chrysanthemums. The dining room was in white and yellow chrysanthemums. The dining table was artistic and beautiful, a large bowl of chrysanthemums being the centerpiece. Hearts was the game of the afternoon. Little Jack Fore was assisted by Miss Helen Pearlstone in dispensing the tally cards, which were in autumn leaves. The ladies were in autumn styles and colors, and the whole scene was autumn. The luncheon was delicious: Chicken salad, cheese straws, wafers, creamed oysters in timbals, pear and ginger cocktail, coffee, charlotte russe, deviled food, caramel cake.

Halloween Party.

Mrs. Nat Dobbs was hostess on Saturday evening to the Sewing Club, and the day and night were kept in royal style. The club consists of young girls full of fun and frolic. A ghost met the guests at the door, and quite a number of them were strolling around. Shadows on a sheet swiftly moving, were easily guessed, as also the feet of those hiding behind the sheet. Fruits and candy were served. It was a phantom party full of fun and frolic.
