

FADS AND FASHIONS.

By Florence Fairbanks.
New York, May 12.—The more the season advances the clearer it becomes that no particular style predominates at the present time and that none will predominate for some time to come, at least not during the coming summer. French authorities on dress have taken their ideas from a number of widely separated periods and have so clearly mingled them that the result only may be considered and not the exact period whence they came. It seems that women as a class will no longer accept freakish and outlandish styles, no matter who may have launched them. Styles must be modified to suit the more highly refined and developed taste of the individual and even then they are accepted only in so far as they harmonize with the individual type. Only women without taste and refinement will, nowadays, slavishly follow an extreme and unbecoming fashion simply because it happens to be launched from some prominent shop in Paris or elsewhere.

The sheath gown of last autumn never became popular, not because it was immodest, but because it was becoming only to women with nearly perfect shapes and those women, not so fortunate as to have the shape of a sylph, utterly declined to make themselves conspicuous or even ridiculous in a sheath gown, plainly disclosing every defect of their form. It is quite probable that never before, in the history of feminine fashion, were hats as unspeakably ugly and unbecoming as at the present time. But, although freakish hats built after the models of peach baskets, cheese boxes and bread bowls are common everywhere at the present time, few women choose to accept these extremes.

In spite of the fact that many of the modern models contain suggestions taken from the style of 1830, it would be extremely difficult to point out any particular feature in the modern dresses which clearly belong to that period. More than any other oriental influence is shown in the beauty and glitter of rich and abundant trimmings. Both the directoire and the empire style have been materially modified. Although the one-piece gown of the princess style continues to be in favor, the new waistline is much nearer the normal than it has been for some time.

Medieval styles appear in many costumes, but they must be decidedly modified before they may hope to become more generally popular. They are a little too ultra to suit the taste of women who are in the habit of dressing artistically. But the advent of the medieval style indicates that the natural waistline will again return to favor and that by next fall it will be popular in the models for winter wear.

Straight tunic arrangements, carrying out the moyen age lines, have caught the fancy of some of the most famous designers, and transparent overrobes of this sort, richly embroidered, are the striking features of many handsome models. These tunics vary in form and detail, but all give the almost straight side lines and the plain, flat back and front. A majority open on the shoulder and under the arm, the side seams being open on both sides and held only by loose lacing or straps. Metallic nets and laces are advantageously used for such tunics in dinner and evening gowns, the net, in such cases, being as a rule embroidered in the same metal, though frequently applied or inset metallic trimmings are made to give the effect of self-embroidery. Such beautiful things are offered in the allover fancy nets and fine laces of silver, gold, gun metal, pewter, etc., that there is little difficulty in finding a desirable metallic tunic material and the underrobe may be severely simple and untrimmed.

The metallic nets and fine laces find much favor also for the short sleeves and decolletage finish of evening frocks and for the guimpes of high-necked dinner gowns, one of the coarse metallic nets boldly embroidered in silks carrying out the color scheme of the frock and giving much effect for little effort. Hand embroidery is the thing that makes so many of the dressy frocks costly and difficult to duplicate, even when they have an air of extreme demureness. Still, charming lines and effects may be obtained without resorting to the expensive embroidery.

It is extremely difficult to say what is the newest thing in neck finishes. The low, broad collar similar to that worn last season and known as the Dutch, has found favor with many girls to whom it is becoming, but this style of neck finish is undoubtedly trying and only those who have a pretty plump neck should attempt to wear anything so striking. For those who must stick to the high collar, fashion has provided a standing band of linen over which falls a pretty turn-over of Irish crochet. With this is worn a narrow tie that goes round the collar and ends in a short, stiff bow at the front. However, in warm weather, these collars are not so comfortable as the transparent collars that held sway for several seasons and are again used in connection with lingerie waists.

One of the newest ideas for this style of collar is to have it of the waist material, joined at the neck line with a half-inch wide strip of Irish crochet insertion, through which is run a colored ribbon, the width of the band, finished at the front with a short bow or knotted in four-in-hand style, the ends of which are finished with silk tassels.

QUAKER MEDITATIONS.
Even when a couple have a quiet wedding, the quietude doesn't always last. It is sometimes difficult to distinguish between opportunity and temptation. The dignity of labor may be all right, but lots of us are not hankering after dignity. There is nothing so rare as a woman who doesn't think her first grandchild is perfect. Speaking of unadulterated nerve, it is about the only thing that isn't adulterated nowadays. From dabbling in stocks many a man has awakened to the fact that he was actually floundering. We should see more than we tell, otherwise the Creator wouldn't have given us two eyes and only one tongue.—Philadelphia Record.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.
Many a fisherman waits with baited breath. It's awfully hard for a messenger boy to get the run of his business. This is a fast age, but our ancestors managed to get ahead of us. A small boy describes a snake as an animal that's all tail except its head. It would be an excellent thing for the toper if he could take his home-ward way as he does his whiskey—straight. Many a man who has made a failure of everything else imagines he is a success as a husband. The young man who is lost in admiration of a girl is seldom able to find himself until after he has faced the parson with her.

IN THE LABOR WORLD.

The grave diggers of New York have recently formed a labor union.

On May 30, at New York City, the Steel Plate Transferers' Association will hold its convention.

The Journeymen Horseshoers' Union of Boston, Mass., has completed the fiftieth year of its existence.

The Labor Council of San Francisco has taken up the matter of obtaining an eight hour day for the drivers of hospital ambulances.

According to the report of the United States Commissioner of Labor, women in buying for the family spend from 60 to 70 per cent of the total earnings.

Painters, decorators and paper-hangers have obtained a tract of land in North Carolina for the establishment of a home and sanatorium for their members.

The unions at Red Wing, Minn., have begun preparations for the entertainment of the delegates to the annual convention of the State Federation of Labor, which will meet in that city on June 14.

In rural Russia, the wages of farm laborers have advanced about thirty per cent in the last twenty years, but the average is still only 30 cents a day. The board of such a worker is figured at from 5 to 10 cents a day.

The industrial death roll in England in 1908 is thus given by the Home Secretary: In mines, 1,343; in quarries, 92; in factories and workshops, 1,042. These figures do not include the loss of life in mercantile branches, the marine or on railways.

A tract of one hundred acres, situated just east of and immediately adjacent to the Union Printers' Home at Colorado Springs, Colo., has just been purchased for the proposed national sanatorium of the National Letter Carriers' Association.

The Oldham, England, engineers will oppose the proposed reduction in wages in that district. The employers had amended their proposal to 1c a week on the wages and 2-1-3 per cent on piece rates. The subject is, however, to be put before a mass meeting of the members.

The total membership of the United Mine Workers of America, according to the latest figures compiled at the national headquarters of the organization, is now about 309,000. This is the largest paid-up membership on record in the history of the prosperous organization.

The ballot taken in the dyers' dispute at Bradford, England, was so unsatisfactory that the executive committee of the union advised the men not to strike, but to accept the conditions offered by the employers. Only 58 per cent voted, and of the 4,508 who voted, only 1,375 voted for a strike.

Why "Mound City" House Paint HOLDS Its Gloss.

Why do You See so Many Dull, Faded-Looking Houses?

The trouble with such houses is that they are Oil-hungry. They are painted with a paint that has not enough Linseed Oil in it—a paint that never could have enough Oil in it on account of the character of the pigments used.

The best Paint must do two things. It must preserve and beautify. Do you know that Linseed Oil is the greatest preservative in Paint and that if it were not for the sake of appearance, you could give your house a coat of pure Linseed Oil, and it would be protected?

The solid part of Paint (Strictly Pure White Lead, Strictly Pure Zinc, and, in some Paints, baser metals) acts as beautifier only.

Strictly Pure Zinc absorbs more Oil than any other pigment and that is the reason for its use in Horse Shoe Paint. WHITE LEAD is used for its covering qualities, and ZINC for its Oil-carrying capacity.

And Oil-carrying capacity is what your Paint must have if your property is to be protected.

Horse Shoe Paint, while it covers and beautifies the surface thoroughly, is made of pigments that carry so much oil, that the first coat satisfies the oil-hunger of the wood, leaving the second coat to gloss, harden, protect, and beautify.

That's why Mound City Horse Shoe Brand House Paint HOLDS its gloss.

The performance will begin at 8 o'clock and will be continuous up until 10:30.
