OPPORTUNITIES ARE SEEKING GOOD MEN.

Never in the history of the world was opportunity more persistently seeking the man. Opportunity is reaching out for the man who can do things; the man who can make good. In all professions, in every walk of life, opportunity is standing on tip-toe beckoning to those coming along the pathway of life, and is pointing the way to success, to life, to fortune. This is an advanced age, and opportunity has vast tasks to perform, great works to be done. To seize opportunity the man must be qualified; he must be equipped with the education, the training, the tact, the will, the determination.

Never were opportunities greater than now to accomplish great things; never were there more opportunities to reap wealth, fame, and a name in history. The great things of this world have not yet been achieved. True, some great things have been accomplished, but this old world is but on the threshold of a greater development, a greater achievement in the many lines of advancement—in engineering, in building, in aeronautics, in science, in philosophy, in religion, in civic building—in everything. To meet the requirements of the opportunity that is beckoning to every ambitious soul requires equipment in mind, in body, in heart. The mind and hands must be trained in the work sought to be done. The time is here when the man who has not the training is left to a sad plight—to plod out an existence that is not life, but slavery.

Opportunities are seeking good men, and there are not good men enough to answer the ever-increasing calls.

CLINGING TO HER DREAM.

The Star-Telegram of September 29 contained a story about a woman who has been coming to the Fort Worth postoffice twice a day for ten years, looking for a letter in which she expected to receive notice of a fortune. While few of us expect fortunes from afar through the mails, many of us go on through life expecting that each day will bring us some unexpected favor. There is a song of hope in the heart that carries us to the end, to patiently perform our duties. As long as the poor woman does not lose hope, she will enjoy the pleasure of anticipation, her fancy still clinging to the dream of gleaming gold. But when her daily visits cease, then hope will have left her aching heart, and the light of life will soon depart. I am glad that she can cling to her dream, that she can fall asleep each night having faith in the morrow bringing her a message of much money; that poverty may vanish in the twinkling of an eye like the mists of early morning fade away under the golden gleams of the waking sun. I trust that she will never lose this hope, but when the last sleep comes the long cherished dream may still be nestling in her feeble heart until its last throb is felt and the last conscious moment is reflected in the dimming eyes. God did a gracious thing when he planted hope in the human breast.—J. R. Ransome in Cleburne Enterprise.

It's a funny old world, and one never knows what to expect. The great democratic landslide resulting from the recent elections even made the most hopeful of the democrats sit up and take notice. Even the ever-hopeful Champ Clark was startled. It has not been so long ago that he made the assertion that he would drive a pair of Missouri mules down Pennsylvania avenue in Washington if he was made speaker of the house. Looks like he is going to have the chance. He was permitted to preempt the prize when there seemed little hope of winning it, and now there will be but slight, if any, opposition to his candidacy.

There is a Sulphur Springs, Texas, farmer who this year grew two bales of cotton on one acre of ground. This same farmer last year raised 130 bushels of corn to the acre. He does intensive farming, and uses good horse sense, backed by experience. That man will get along.

Governor-elect Colquitt is perhaps by this time sighing for political rest. Those candidates for appointive offices are certainly a pesteriferously persistent aggregation of political pie hunters. Awful.

Turkeys are scarce. In fact they are so scarce—and dear—that many Palestine families will have to content themselves with roast chicken, roast duck, baked fish, etc., etc., for their Thanksgiving dinners.

The press dispatches tell us President Taft wrote his forthcoming message to congress while at sea. It seems the whole republican party is at sea just now.

Yes, Charlie, there are far more opportunities these days than there are young men to take advantage of them. Just think it over.

Roosevelt has not suffered such a long period of silence in 10, these many years.

When a bank robbery is pulled off the news of it usually winds up with the assertion that the officers are investigating. The officers are usually "not there" when the explosions are shaking the town to its very foundations. After the robbers have been permitted a good start then the hunt begins. It is quite noticeable, however, that the officers never run up on the fleeing men who get away with the booty. But then it is quite considerate on the part of the officers to "investigate."

WEATHER BULLETIN.

Published By Authority of the Secretary of Agriculture.

For Palestine and vicinity until 7 p. m. Saturday: Tonight and Saturday unsettled weather; rain tonight or Saturday.

Temperature: Lowest last night, 46; highest yesterday, 50.

Weather Conditions.

Three areas of low pressure appear upon this morning's map; one is over the New England states and the eastern lake region, another is near the mouth of the Mississippi, while the third extends from southwestern Canada southward over the Plateau district. Precipitation has occurred in the Gulf states, the Pacific states, Idaho and Michigan. Temperatures are somewhat higher in the South Atlantic states. The weather is cloudy and slightly warmer in Texas this morning, with northerly winds and a falling barometer. Unsettled weather is indicated for this vicinity during the next 36 hours, with rain tonight or Saturday.

Official in Charge.

SOUTHERN KID MINSTRELS

Will Give Two Performances at the New Lyric Tonight.

The management says:

The disagreeable weather does not seem to interfere materially with the attendance at the New Lyric Theater. Good crowds attended the shows last night and witnessed a most excellent program of motion pictures and vaudeville. Princeton and Yale offered in vaudeville a merry vehicle of slang, entitled, "The Hick and the Chorus Girl," that kept the audience in roars of laughter.

Tonight that ever-popular local organization, the Southern Kid Minstrels, will occupy the boards, and judging from the advance sale of tickets for tonight's performance the little Lyric playhouse will be packed to its capacity. In addition to the minstrel show, the regular bill of vaudeville and motion pictures will be given, including Princeton and Yale, the premier team of the Lyric vaudeville circuit.

A Broken Back.

That pain in your back caused by lumbago, stiff muscles or a strain, is an easy thing to get rid of. Ballard's Snow Liniment cures rheumatism, lumbago, sore and stiff muscles, strains, sprains, cuts, burns, bruises, scalds and all aches and pains. You need a bottle in your house.

TEXAS CONFERENCE

Of the A. M. E. Church, in Session Here, to Adjourn Sunday Night.

Among the well known men of the colored race none stand out more prominently than Bishop Evan Tyree, who has presided at the sessions of the A. M. E. conference here during the past week, and who is to preach the ordination sermon at Grant's Chapel A. M. E. church Sunday morning and will lecture Saturday night.

Bishop Tyree was born in Cab county, middle Tennessee, in 1854, of slave parents. There he spent his boyhood days on the farm doing the work incident to his condition, and while hired out he learned to read and write, studying chiefly at night. After the war he entered Central Tennessee College at Nashville, Tenn. He made rapid progress until he finished with first honors.

He was converted in 1866, and soon after, at the age of fourteen years, he entered the ministry of the African Methodist Episcopal church, which was the beginning of a most interesting and active life. Serving in his native state with growing usefulness as a church builder and pastor, he was finally, at the solicitation of his bishop, transferred to Louisville, Ky., where serious conditions confronted the church. He stayed on the charge five years, paying off a large debt, and at the same time uniting the membership in bonds of peace and harmony. The success of Bishop Tyree in the connection as a pastor caused him to be sought for all over the country. Every church that he has ever pastored he made it the mecca of the connection. His agency in bringing about friendly relation between the races is perhaps as remarkable as his pastoral success. He has been called into constant conference on matters of most serious importance by governors of states that were in his diocese. Bishop Tyree was elected bishop in 1900 at Columbus, Ohio, and since that time has presided over Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and seven years in Texas. He has been to Europe, and was a member of the Ecumenical conference that met in London. He preached in Rhode Chapel, and made a great impression. He also visited continental Europe. Bishop Tyree is essentially an evangelist, and is known as being one of the greatest preachers of his race. He has perhaps brought more people into the church than any other man. He is large hearted, genial and a shrewd man, much beloved by all who know him. His public utterances have commanded universal respect by reason of their sanity and manliness.
