We do not publish anonymous communications under any circumstances. The real name of the author must accompany every communication, or else it will be consigned to the waste basket. We do not publish the names of correspondents, but want them simply as a guarantee of good faith.

Simple announcements of deaths, marriages, etc., will be published without charge, and our friends all over the county will confer a favor by furnishing us with such as soon after their occurrence as possible.

HON. S. F. WILSON, of Sumner county, is being pushed by his friends for appointment on the Interstate Commerce Commission.

SAM JONES and Sam Small, the evangelists, have been summoned to appear before the grand jury at Rome, Ga., to substantiate charges of corruption and evil practices made from the pulpit in that city.

A SECOND survey of the Ohio & Mississippi Valley Railroad from Princeton, Ky., to Nashville has been ordered. Gould is behind this road, and if he sets his stakes for Nashville, he will "get there."

WHETHER or not Benton McMinn succeeds in knocking the Speakership plum, he is winning as much national fame and popularity now as any other man on the continent, and it looks very much like he is going to be speaker.

NASHVILLE and Chattanooga are both laboring in the throes of heated municipal campaigns. Nashville has two Democratic tickets in the field, while Chattanooga has a colored gentleman aspiring to the mayoralty of that city, in addition to the regular Democratic and Republican nominees.

CHIEF Justice Peter Turney has written a letter to the Nashville American in which he shows that the work of the Tennessee Supreme Court is rapidly increasing beyond the capacity of the bench to handle it. By very long and hard labor the court has kept the dockets cleared for the last few years, but Judge Turney says it will be impossible to do so in future with the rapid increase in number of cases. He urges that something be done to keep the work of the court from getting far behind.

THE Legislature having failed to do anything with the lease system or penitentiary question, the courts are now to have a chance at the matter. While the Legislature was in session, Attorney-General Pickle rendered an opinion, holding that the convicts could not be sub-leased. The miners at Briceville have now instituted proceedings in the Knox County Criminal Court to test the legality of the matter, and the miners have again magnanimously agreed to suspend hostilities in that region until the suit is settled.

Our contemporary says that "the United States is now coining sixty millions of dollars of silver annually. The product of our mines amount to less than sixty millions per annum," from which the amount used in the arts should be deducted. He also tells us that if the Government should coin the remaining fraction that the price of silver would advance 25 per cent. G-e-e-W-h-is!—New Era.

If by "our contemporary" in the above the STANDARD is meant to be designated, we want to deny the impeachment. The STANDARD said no such silly things as are imputed to it in the above. The Era is just about as accurate in the above, however, as it is in measuring the approval of its course by the Democracy of Warren county.

Here is an extract from a speech recently delivered by Hon. R. Q. Mills at Mansfield, O.:

"During my public services I have spoken, written and voted for free coinage. I have believed and still believe that the United States can open her mint to the free coinage of silver at 15 1/2 ounces equal to 1 of gold and keep the two metals at par, not only in the United States but in the commercial world, but I don't believe that the free coinage of silver will relieve the country from the distress from which it is now suffering."

The National Democratic convention next year will take the same view of the matter, and will side-track the silver question as Mr. Mills has done.

The McMinnville Standard remarks: "Gold has the same value with or without the government stamp; silver has not; therefore silver would not be as good as gold under free coinage of silver." Will Brother Reams please inform us what gives the gold the same value with or without the government stamp as with it? This is one of the deceptive arguments of monometalists.—Clarks-ville Leaf-Chronicle.

The intrinsic worth of the metal, we suppose. We can see nothing else which could give it a uniform value the world over. The Leaf-Chronicle does not deny the fact of our statement, and we fail to comprehend how a solid, rock-ribbed fact can constitute a deceptive argument. We know that our free coinage friends hold that the fiat of the Government would put silver on a parity with gold, and give it an intrinsic value which it does not now possess. We take no such rosy views of the powers of our Government, we do not believe the stamp of the Government can add anything to the intrinsic worth of silver, therefore we oppose its free coinage. We believe free coinage of silver will give us two standards of money—a cheap kind for the poor and a high kind for the rich, and that this will work great injury the masses.

ASIDE from the political heresies which the Alliance is trying to foist upon the country, the Alliance is exercising an influence for evil in other ways. A large majority of the Alliance "lecturers" are men whose minds run in very narrow grooves, who have small conception of the nobility and independence which should characterize the real farmer, and whose chief talent is a glib tongue and a windy pair of lungs. Their "lectures" for the most part are simply wordy denunciations of the old parties, and appeals to the prejudices of the more ignorant classes. Instead of a tendency to instruct and elevate these classes, seeds of discord are sown, and a spirit of agrarianism and socialism is engendered. The Alliance has fallen far of its organic promises. Had its first declaration of principles been carried out in proper spirit, it might have been an instrument of great good to the agricultural classes, but the order rapidly degenerated into a secret political organization. It can point to few, if any, instances where it has made better farmers out of its members, but it has made third-rate politicians out of many men who might have been good farmers had the educational line of work proposed by the Alliance been pursued. The Alliance is cultivating discord and dissatisfaction in the ranks of the farmers, and has utterly failed to better their condition in the smallest particular. An organization with such a record deserves only the censure of every good citizen.

Harvey Watterson Dead.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 1.—Hon. Harvey M. Watterson, father of Henry Watterson, died tonight in this city at 10:30 o'clock. He was born in Bedford County, Tenn., Nov. 23, 1811. In 1839 he succeeded James K. Polk in the Twenty-sixth Congress, and was the only surviving member of that body. He served in the Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth Congresses, and in 1843 was sent by President Tyler to South America on an important diplomatic mission. He declined office at the hands of Presidents Pierce, Buchanan and Johnson. He was a strong Union man during the late war.

An Earthquake.

The Mississippi Valley was shaken up to a considerable extent by an earthquake between ten and eleven o'clock last Saturday night. St. Louis experienced the heaviest sensations, many tall buildings in that city being visibly affected, and the people much alarmed. The shock extended to many other towns and cities, but no damage to buildings is reported from any quarter.

A convention of the negro women of the country has been called to meet in Washington Oct. 12th, to memorialize Congress for an appropriation to enable them to make a display of their handiwork at the World's Fair.

GRAINS OF GOLD.

Clemency is a kingdom's best preserver. Many laws are the signs of a sick commonwealth.

Endeavor to think high thoughts, pure and good.—[Calhoun].
Those who plot the destruction of others often fall themselves.

The beautiful hidden virtues are the most lovely.—[Pascal].

Who waits until the wind shall silent keep,
Who never finds the ready hour to sow,
Who watcheth clouds will have no time to reap.
—[Helen Hunt Jackson].

The wise and active conquer difficulties by daring to attempt them.

If you wish to remove avarice, you must remove its mother—luxury.

You should not fear, nor yet should you wish for your last day.—[Martial].

He who will not answer to the rudder must answer to the rocks.—[Herve].

Many men owe the grandeur of their lives to their tremendous difficulties.—[Spurgeon].

"Think not of gratifying thyself, but consider each day what good thou canst do to others."

That man enters infinite life who seeks and finds a place where he can work with God.—[Rev. E. E. Hale].

Griefs are finally turned to joys if the faith that walks with them can daily look into the face of God.—[Anon].

One of Sancho Panza's sayings was this: He preaches well that lives well; that is all the divinity I understand.

Our character is but the stamp on our souls of the free choice of good and evil we have made through life.—[Geikie].

The greatest benefit which one friend can confer upon another is to guard and excite and elevate his virtues.—[Dr. Johnson].

Thoughtlessness is never an excuse for wrongdoing. Our hasty actions disclose as nothing else does our habitual feelings.—[Field].

It was the policy of a good old gentleman to make his children feel that home was the happiest place in the world; and I value this delicious home feeling as one of the choicest gifts a parent can bestow.—[Washington Irving].

One will confer the greatest benefits on his town, not by raising its roofs, but by exalting its souls; for it is better that great souls should live in small habitations than that abject slaves should burrow in great houses.—[Epictetus].

The Chicago Dial, a literary paper, culls phrases like the following from Bishop Spalding's volume of essays, "Education and the Higher Life": "The highest joy is serious"; "What only the few can attain can not be life's real end or the highest good"; "Joy is good only when it comes unbidden"; "Distrust is the last wisdom a great heart learns"; "To grow is to outgrow"; "The worst foe of excellence is the desire to appear."

WIT AND WISDOM.

Money does not improve a mean man. Contentment is the wine made from the historic sour grapes.

The moment humility undertakes to carry a flag it kills itself.

If the devil ever feels good, it must be when he looks at a hypocrite.

Keep a close eye on the man whose wife is afraid to ask him for money.

True merit never found a cloud big enough or dark enough to obscure it.

Wealth may be unequally divided, but every man gets his full share of trouble. "There are born liars as well as born poets," but the former comes easier to a man.

Never put yourself in the power of a man who will kick a dog for fun.—[Ran's Horn].

A man had better not know so much than to know so many things that ain't so.—[Josh Billings].

Don't try to make a pet of a bumble-bee because he is pretty. Beauty is sometimes deceitful.

The poor want money and the rich want to spend it, and that's what gives to the world progress.

A runaway horse and a mad dog have no conscience. Never dispute the right of way with either.—[Texas Siftings].

Tommy—Paw, what is "fame?" Mr. Figg—Fame, my son, is something a man makes money out of after he is dead.

There never was a man who failed in business who did not claim it was because he was too honest.—[Aitchison Globe].

"Don't rob your wife all her lifetime in order to make some provision for her in case you should be first taken away.—[Troy Press].

There is room for everybody in this big world. Friction comes from the fact that too many want the front room.—[Scranton Truth].

There are plenty of people on earth who will be very indignant when they reach the other world to find there are no reserved seats.

Brotherhood—Marriage is a failure. Bene-dict (in surprise)—Why, I didn't know you had ever been married. Brother-ton—I haven't, I failed.—[Puck].

"Bridget," said Barrows angrily, "I told you to have my hot water the first thing in the morning." "Shure," replied Bridget, "and didn't I bring it up and leave it at the door last night, so as it would be in time, sir?"—[Harper's Bazar].

A Desirable Tenant.—"You say the rent of this flat is $60 a month. Why do you let Jones have the front flat on the same floor for $40? He never pays his bills." "That's very true," replied the real estate agent, "but you must remember that Mr. Jones has no children."—[New York Recorder].

It is not every boy that can make a bicycle for himself. Yet that is what a 16 year old negro of Georgia, a blacksmith's apprentice, has done. He made the bicycle out of raw metal picked up in the shop, and it rides as smoothly as a factory made machine.
