

NOVEL CANE FOR BRYAN.

Carved by an Admirer, It is a Marvel of Uniqueness and Beauty.

John Botta, of New York city, has made a unique and handsome cane, which will be presented to William J. Bryan. He cut the cane from an old hickory haggpole and carved it with a small penknife. The greater portion of the cane is coated with silver, and the colors employed in the design are red, white and blue. On the top of the straight handle is cut an imitation of a watch, and the hands register 16 minutes of 1. Curling around this handle is carved and enameled the representation of a folded American flag. The red stripes are raised and stand in relief against the silver ones. A long streamer falls from the top of the flag and coils itself many times around the stick at the bottom. On this coil is inscribed in red, white and blue letters the following expressions:

"Our protector, William J. Bryan; friend of the workingmen of 1900; he does not like the trusts; he is the man for us."

Running in a straight line from end to end and in prominent lettering is the familiar name of the leader, "Billy Bryan." A small photograph of Bryan is inlaid in the handle of the cane and a silver ferrule is capped upon the bottom.

No less interesting than the cane is the box in which it was inclosed when sent to the democratic nominee for president. The box was also made by young Mr. Botta with his penknife. It is coated with silver and carved, as was the cane. On two opposite sides are inscribed, respectively: "Sixteen to One" and "Anti-Imperialism." The other sides of the box are decorated with two cartoons cut upon them. One of these pictures represents Mr. Bryan perched upon the top of a tall ladder—the presidential ladder—with McKinley standing at the bottom gazing anxiously upward. The other cartoon shows Mr. Bryan seated upon the democratic donkey entering the white house grounds, where he has been nominated to stay four years as president, and McKinley and Hanna are pushing the mule desperately from behind, thus helping him along.

THOUGHT SHE WAS IN HEAVEN

Little Girl Spends Five Days in a Trance and Says Queer Things.

A remarkable case of trance or suspended animation occurred in Milford, Conn. Sophie, the 11-year-old daughter of Mark Fowler, of Broad street, lay in an unconscious state from Sunday evening to Friday forenoon, taking no nourishment whatever.

On Monday morning, when the family assembled at breakfast, Sophie did not appear, and one of the younger children was sent to call her. In a moment the little one came running to the head of the stairs. "Mamma," she called, "Sophie's dead." The mother rushed to the room of the child. They found Sophie lying in an unconscious state upon her bed. Dr. A. L. Tuttle was called, and upon his arrival he used every known method of restoring Sophie, but without success. He said, however, that she was not dead, but in a comatose condition.

On Friday morning the condition of the girl was seen to be changing. She was breathing and showing signs of life. Along toward noon she opened her eyes. Nourishment was brought and soon she was able to talk. She related wonderful tales of strange visions that had come to her during the trance. Her ears had been filled with strains of music and her eyes dazzled by the beautiful sights she saw. "Oh, mamma," said the little girl, as she was telling what she had seen, "I must have been in Heaven."

Dr. Tuttle was at the bedside by the time Sophie had thoroughly awakened, and he examined her to find that she was in a normal condition. Her heart beat was full and regular, and, while she showed a slight exhaustion, that was all. She improved rapidly, and soon was up and around the house as bright and chipper as ever.
