WAS FIRST BASEBALL GLOVE

Writer in All Outdoors Believes it Appeared in 1867, When He Saw It.

About 1867-68 a baseball team came to Rockford, Ill., to play our nine. They called themselves the "Conquerors, Clippers of Illinois," and plastered our town with big posters. We made up our minds to give them a drubbing, and at the end of the game the score was Rockford 76, Clippers 6. There was a little chap playing third base who grabbed everything that came near him, and held it, too. I noticed that he wore a kind of glove. When the game was over I went to him and asked what it was that he wore on his hand. He told me that he was a machinist, and had got his hand badly hurt the week before, and he showed me the wound in his palm. He said the boys did not want him to play in that game, but he got a piece of thin sheet steel and made it slightly concave, but so that it did not quite touch the sore place. He then made a short glove to cover all the hand excepting the first joints of the fingers, and doubled the leather in the palm so that he could slip the plate between. I asked him if it hurt, and he said it did not, and that he could take a hot one and hold it better with the glove than without it. That is the whole story. I don't think that Spalding ever talked to the little chap with the iron fist, as the boys dubbed the third baseman, but everybody in Rockford knew about the mitt, and he may have got the idea from him. Anyway, that was the first glove that any ballplayer ever wore.—All Outdoors.

MADE SMOKING A HARSHIP

Foolish Competitions That Should Have Disgusted Genuine Lovers of the Seductive Weed.

At a smoking competition held recently at Brighton, England, the winner kept an eighth of an ounce of tobacco alight for 103 minutes. There was a severer test at Oxford in 1723 on a scaffold over against the theater. Thomas Hearne described the scene:

"The conditions were that anyone (man or woman) that could smoke out three ounces of tobacco first without drinking or going off the stage should have twelve shillings. Many tried, and it was thought that a journeyman taylor would have been victor, he smoking faster than, and being many pipes before the rest; but at last he was so sick that 'twas thought he would have died, and an old man, that had been a soldier, and smoked gently, came off a conqueror, smoking the three ounces quite out."

In Derbyshire there was a club where the qualification for membership was the ability to smoke up a pound of shag tobacco at one sitting. A china pot served as pipe, and the candidate smoked through the spout.

Airmen Are Sportsmen.

The fate of an airman who comes to grief generally becomes known to his comrades, and through them is communicated to his friends at home. The explanation of this is that a practice has sprung up on both sides of dropping messages into the opposing lines reporting exactly what has happened to any flyer who has been forced to descend. One of the messages dropped in the British lines showed an intimate knowledge of London. After mentioning that a particular airman had been taken prisoner, but was unharmed, the message continued: "Hope the British aviators are going strong. Give my regards to Leicester square, dear Piccadilly, and Mayfair. Sorry can't stay."

Was a Heavy Loser.

Lew Shank and a friend were playing pinochle at Shank's summer home a few nights ago and the game became interesting—so much so they engaged in some imaginary betting. "I'll bet one hundred dollars I win," declared Shank's friend, enthusiastically. "I'll just make it five hundred dollars," replied Shank. A few days later Shank's servant girl quit and with some difficulty Mr. and Mrs. Shank employed another. "Mother didn't want me to come," said the new girl. "The other girl told mother you were running a gambling house here and that Mr. Shank must have lost four or five hundred dollars in one night."—Indianapolis Star.
