A SYMBOL OF HEALTH
 The Pythagoreans of Ancient Greece ate simple food, practiced temperance and purity. As a badge they used the five pointed star which they regarded as a symbol of health. A red five pointed star appears on each package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and still fulfills its ancient mission as a symbol of health. If you are troubled with indigestion, biliousness or constipation, get a package of these tablets from your druggist. You will be surprised at the quick relief which they afford. Obtainable everywhere.—Adv. d&w

Classified advertisements, such as "Wanted," "For Rent," "For Sale," etc., will positively not be received for the Express by phone. They must be brought to the office. Please do not phone them, it is embarrassing to us to refuse to receive them. 11-3-4t

Are You Living In the Cobweb Kingdom?

There are cobwebs on the windows, There are cobwebs on the door, There are cobwebs swinging, swaying From the rafters to the floor. Now the place is Cobweb Kingdom, Though it used to be a store.
 If the Cobweb Kingdom's ruler Were a man discreet and wise He would have no cobwebs swaying, Swinging round and catching flies He would crowd his store with buyers— He would simply ADVERTISE!

For Her Sake
 By A. P. DELANCY
 (Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)
 "Mail, sir," reported the office boy, and placed a pile of miscellaneous letters on the desk of young Gordon Leith, manager of the importing house of Waltham & Co.
 Leith only nodded. He was in a pleasant dream and did not want to be disturbed. In four days he was to marry Vera Merriam. He had everything to be thankful for. Her father was wealthy and stood high socially. Recently Waltham & Company had raised his salary. Everything was harmonious and lovely. Even gruff, dignified prospective father-in-law was seemingly pleased at the approaching wedding. Was he not coming in that afternoon to talk over the final arrangements for it with Leith?
 "Routine," observed Leith, at length arousing from his happy reverie. "All right—there will be only three days more of it. Then for a two weeks' delightful honeymoon."
 In a perfunctory way Leith took up the paper knife and slit the envelopes before him. Then he began taking out their contents.
 "Order," he yelled them off—"complaint, request for new price list" and
 "That's Me."

He placed the letters in the trays of the various departments—"hello what's this!"
 Leith stared hard and looked confused and startled, as he read the words:
 "It will be for your own good to meet me at 2 p. m. Tuesday, at Gregory's cafe. It's a safe place and I will be in No. 27. Bring along the cash to take up those L. O. U.'s, or the capital for a new round of revenge, or I'll blow the thing to your bosses and you'll lose your place."
 "DAVENAL!"
 "Why!" breathed Leith in sheer amazement. "What does this mean, anyhow? Where is the envelope? There must be some mistake. Here it is—the mischief! At it again—and worse than ever!"
 Leith allowed the letter to drop to the desk as he scanned the direction on the envelope: "Mr. Harry Merriam."
 The brother of Vera! It was meet that Leith should be interested and natural that he should be anxious and troubled. He had been a friend and guide to Harry Merriam. He had helped, guided and shielded the bright intrepid but impetuous young fellow. Leith had even secured him employment with the business house of which he was manager in order that he might watch and direct him.
 Mr. Merriam was a stern, austere man and it had cost both money and patience to control the peccadillo of the younger Merriam.
 More recently Harry seemed to have turned over a new leaf. In order to get him away from his old associates, only the week previous Leith had sent him on a selling tour. Now an echo of the past defections of Harry had come to the surface as a menace. With all his influence, Leith doubted if his employers would retain Harry when they learned of his gambling habits.
 Ah! at all hazards the changed course of the weak and struggling must not be crossed! Leith arrived at a speedy decision. He winced as he realized the great sacrifice he was called on to make. Then his lips drew firm and resolute. He forgot all save the urgency of the moment, tossed the letter on his desk, picked up his hat and hurried from the office, leaving word that he would return in an hour.
 Fifteen minutes later Mr. Merriam called, according to appointment. He was shown into the office of the manager, where he decided to await his return. Almost the first thing that met his eye was the open note that Leith had received. Twice he read it. That proud lip of his drew closer, his stern eye took to its depths a steely glint. He memorized the address given in the missive, arose and started from the place, a smoldering volcano of wrath.
 Meanwhile Gordon Leith had gone to his bank. He had saved up over two thousand dollars. He drew an open half of this. Then he proceeded straightway in search of this threatening Davenal. Leith had no difficulty in locating the Gregory cafe. Its upper story had partitioned off compartments. Number 27 contained an individual, coarse-faced, evil-eyed, who sat leisurely smoking a cigar.

 "Are you Davenal?" demanded Leith, facing him.
 "That's me," nodded the other insolently.
 Leith passed beyond the drapery of the doorway and sat down at a little table opposite the gamester.
 "I came in behalf of your victim, young Harry Merriam," he spoke sternly. "He is out of the city and I appear in his stead. You demand a thousand dollars from him."
 "Honestly owed, yes."
 "You made a provision," went on Leith steadily, "that he can have his revenge. Does that hold?"
 The gamester studied his visitor keenly. Then he replied:
 "Right!"
 "I know but one game of cards," proceeded Leith.
 "And what is that?"
 "Whist. I will stake one thousand dollars cash against those L. O. U.'s, game ten points."
 The gambler smiled. To his point of view this clear-eyed, respectable-looking Leith seemed easy prey. He was, too, nettled at the manifest contempt evinced by Leith and longed to give him a trimming.
 "And if you lose?" questioned Davenal coolly.
 "Then I give you a check for another thousand dollars and redeem the L. O. U.'s."
 "Done!" and the fellow produced a pack of cards and began shuffling them.
 A strange expression came into the eyes of Gordon Leith. He drew his coat closer to conceal a dangling ornament attached to his watch chain, as if that might betray a vital secret. It was a prize given to the champion of a leading whist club in his college days. He had not touched a card for two years, but in the old days—a memory of his conquests gave him nerve and confidence.
 Only the click—swish of the bits of pasteboard, the quick breathing of the gamester as, two points scored for himself and nine for his opponent, he threw down his hand, confessing defeat, and passed over the L. O. U.'s.
 Silently Leith walked from Number 27. From beyond the drapery of Number 28 stepped—Mr. Merriam!
 "Deceiver! Gamester! Hypocrite!" he voiced, his eyes flaming, his scorn withering. "I have traced you to your haunts! You are unmasked—and Vera shall know!"
 Gordon Leith paled. Startled, he unconsciously dropped the bundle of L. O. U.'s from his hand. With bowed head he passed from the place. Mr. Merriam picked up the papers. One glance and he staggered back, overcome. The facts were revealed—he read the name of his son and knew the truth.
 "What's the row, governor?" chirped the gamester, appearing on the scene.
 "I have wronged a true and noble man," uttered Mr. Merriam. "Tell me all of this affair and I will reward you."
 The gamester glibly, coarsely stated the facts as he understood them. Mr. Merriam guessed the vast sacrifice that Leith had made, even in the face of being disgraced accepting mutely the onus of degradation not his portion.
 Vera Merriam—within four days Mrs. Gordon Leith—never knew of the episode. Harry Merriam knew of it, for his father charged him with his misdemeanors when he returned to the city.
 But Harry Merriam was a changed man, and a realization of the brave loyalty of a true friend strengthened his determination to forever evade the pitfalls that had nearly engulfed him.

FROM BABYLONIAN WISE MEN
 Came the Division of the Hour as It Has Been Recognized Throughout the Centuries.
 The division of an hour into sixty minutes is of ancient Babylonian origin and has survived the reforms applied to notation in the course of the world's progress. Along with the decimal system in ancient Babylon there was the sexagesimal system based upon the count by sixties and originating in the discovery that there is no number which has so many divisors as sixty. It can be divided without remainder by 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 10, 12, 15, 20 and 30.
 Babylonians divided the sun's path into twenty-four parasangs, the latter representing about four and one-half miles. The astronomers of that day compared the progress of the sun during one hour to the progress made by a good walker during the same period of time, each accomplishing one parasang.
 The whole course of the sun was twenty-four parasangs, or 360 degrees, and each parasang or hour was subdivided into sixty minutes.
 Hipparchus, the Greek philosopher, who lived 150 B. C., introduced the Babylonian hour into Europe, and carried along by traditional knowledge down through the middle ages, it survived the French revolution, which endeavored to reduce every measure to decimal system of reckoning, so that the measure of time continues sexagesimal or Babylonian.
 Odd Invention.
 Miss Katherine Minehart, a Philadelphia woman, has patented a new form of handbag which is capable of being converted into a seat. When opened one part of the contrivance serves as a seat, while another forms a support for the back.

RHEUMATIC PAIN STOPPED

The drawing of muscles, the soreness, stiffness and agonizing pain of Rheumatism quickly yield to Sloan's Liniment. It stimulates circulation to the painful part. Just apply as directed to the sore spots. In a short time the pain gives way to a tingling sensation of comfort and warmth. Here's proof—"I have had wonderful relief since I used your Liniment on my knee. To think one application gave me relief. Sorry I haven't space to tell you the history. Thanking you for what your remedy has done for me."—James S. Ferguson, Philada, Pa. Sloan's Liniment kills pain. 25c at Druggists.—Adv. d&w

Flush the Stomach.
 Doctor Lewis says cold baths of the skin are good, but it is doubtful whether flooding the stomach on going to bed and on rising is not, on the whole, the most profitable form of cold bathing. Indigestion, and the legion of troublesome complaints that attend it, are uniformly relieved by this morning and evening cold douche. The quantity must be determined by each one for himself. Two or three swallows will do to begin with, but the quantity will soon grow to a tumbler full, and I have known persons to use much more with marked benefit. If advisedly managed, every dyspeptic will be greatly improved by this cold stomach bath.
