

Home.

[From the Conshatta Times.] Oh home, sweet, sweet home! What strange but delicious emotions thrill the heart as the symphonies of that beautiful word smite the cords of memory and of love!

But oh! if there be one place of earth holier than another it is when roaming disoriented man buries the world's love out of sight, and finds a paradise by the heart-stone of the home of his manhood hours.

COURT ANECDOTES.—The tedious session of the Supreme Court at Pittsfield, was relieved by an incident, one day last week, that drew a little smile. A leading member of the bar, rather noted for his strategy of confusing witnesses by working them into a passion, had under cross-examination a woman who seemed an apt subject for his favorite tactics; having wound her up to the desired pitch, he inquired: "Madam, are you now living with your first or second husband?"

There is a "Mother in Israel," living in Niles, Mich., who is 109 years old. In a recent love feast she declared that she had enjoyed religion one one hundred years, and for that same period has been a member of the Methodist Church. It is probable that she is the oldest church member of any denomination in the world.

How Pat Told the News.

Pat O'Hara, or "Old Harry," as we used to call him, ran a small one horse wagon, in old mining times, between Blue Gulch and Copper City.

Repeated experiments had demonstrated it to be utterly futile to attempt to send any verbal message by Pat, as witness the following example: Major Fitzgerald had died of pleurisy fever, and as Pat was just starting for the Gulch, a message was given him to deliver to the Major's friends there, that "when nearly well of the pleurisy he was taken with something of a relapse, and dropped off very suddenly."

Arrived at the Gulch, almost the first man Pat met was the Major's brother-in-law, who, having heard of his illness, was of course anxious to know how he did.

"Well, Pat, what's the news from the city—how is the Major?" "Top o' the mornin', yer anner, Sure, it's bad luck often brings good luck, an' it's good luck I have of mornin' yer anner, for regardin' the Major, sure I've a message consarin' him for yerself, as was towid me not three hours ago, jist forinist Phil Manigan's she-ben up to Copper City by the Major's friend, the gosssoon as smashed me dud-keen last Christmast mornin', wid a lick from a—"

"Well, well, no matter about all that. What's the word about the Major?" "Sure, it's only a good word I ever like to say, yer anner, of a Fitzgerald, one of the oldest families of the owid country; and through the O'Hara's themselves has nothin to boast of, ye'll spake well of the pipers if yer father's a fiddler—and by that same token do yer mind, consarin' the message I'm deliverin' to yer anner, sure Jack Manigan, him wid eye, as fiddles up to the city, and for the matter o' that'll cover the buckle himself quite tidy, comes out o' the cabin, an' Pat, says he, remember ivery word of the message, says he, and more betokens the—"

"But what is the message?" said the listener, getting impatient. "Sure, an' I'm discursin' the same to yer anner, for the gosssoon, d'yer mind, as smashed me pipe to smithereens, came racin' up to me like mad, as I stopped forinist the cabin 'an' d'ye know the Major?" says he, all out o' wind rannin'. "Does a cow know clover by sight," say I. "Shure then," says he, "yer to say, 'an' jist thin I caught sight of a woman takin' on an' cryin' in the windy of the house, and sure yer honor it's as great a pity to see a woman cry as a goose go bare-foot, and sure, it's somethin' astray?"

"You infernal bag of wind," roared the listener, out of all manner of patience, "what have you got to tell me about the Major? Speak!" "Sure is it not spakin' I am entirely, and it's bad words I have to spake. But it's as good to eat the devil as to drink the both he's biled in, sure; and yer anner would listen to the message like meself, that was all ears like a jackass what I heard it, and sorra a word of it but—"

"What is it?" said the now fully aroused auditor, seizing Pat by the throat. "Out with it, or I'll strangle you."

"Och, murthur! Sure, I know yer honor won't gor for to—"

"Yes, I will; what is it?" "Sure, he told me—"

"Well, go on," giving poor Pat a shake that made his teeth rattle like dice in a box.

"That the Major—"

"Yes, go on."

"Was most well of the pleurisy, and—"

"And—and—and what?" with a shake that made Pat's teeth chatter. "An' was taken in somebody's lap, and dropped off very slovenly," said Pat desperately, "an' that's ar!"

A HUSBAND'S LIABILITY FOR A WIFE'S BILLS.—An action was decided in Philadelphia last week, by Judge Thayer, in favor of a husband who had been sued by a dry goods firm for the amount of a bill run up by his wife. Defence set up that defendant furnished his wife with ample supply of necessaries. In the course of his charge, Judge Thayer said: "It is a false and foolish notion for tradespeople to entertain that a husband is bound to pay all bills contracted by his wife. No such monstrous doctrine is allowed in the law. Tradesmen must ascertain the facts and the true relations of man and wife before allowing the latter to run up bills which he is to be looked to pay."

An old gentleman from Methuen, Mass., stopped in front of a dwelling-house at Lawrence, from which a red flag was flying, and inquired where the House was to be sold. He was informed that it was a smallpox and not an auction flag. The gait that old man struck for the other side of the street would beat the best time the Dexter ever made.
