COAL OUTPUT DOUBLES

Every Ten Years Production Equals Total of All Previously Mined.

An interesting if not startling fact in connection with the production of coal in the United States, according to the United States geological survey, is that in each successive decade the output is practically doubled. If the production of bituminous coal alone were considered, the record for the last fifty years would show an increase somewhat in excess of this ratio. The increase in the production of anthracite has been much less rapid on account of the limited area of the fields, the conditions under which the industry is carried on, and the restriction of the prepared sizes to domestic consumption. It has been estimated that the output of anthracite will reach 100,000,000 long tons annually before it begins to decline. The maximum up to the present time has been 80,771,488 long tons. An increase in the annual production of bituminous coal may be anticipated for some time to come.

The statistics of coal production in the past show that up to the close amounted to 284,899,955 short tons. In the decade from 1868 to 1875, inclusive, the production amounted to 419,435,104 tons, making the total production up to the close of 1875, 704,315,159 tons. In the following decade, from 1876 to 1885, inclusive, the output amounted to 847,760,319 tons, somewhat more than double the total production during the preceding decade. At the close of 1885 the total production amounted to 1,552,075,478 tons and the production during the ten years ended in 1895 was 1,588,098,- 641 tons, the total production at the close of 1895 amounting to 3,139,174,119 short tons. In the decade ended December 31, 1905, the total production amounted to 2,432,462,746 short tons, and the grand total from the beginning of recorded coal mining in the United States amounted to 5,970,576,865 short tons. The average annual production from 1906 to 1905 was 282,246,275 short tons. The average production from 1896 to 1905 was 282,246,275 short tons, showing an increase of 178,359,989 short tons or 63 per cent.

SEVERAL COUNTIES ARE SLOW WITH STATEMENTS

Reports giving first statistical statements as to assessments have been received by the board of equalization from all counties except Cache, Carbon, Davis, Garfield, Morgan, Rich, Sevier and Wayne. All these reports were to have been in the office of the board the first Monday in October.

As soon as all the reports are in the board will examine them, check up on the figures, and then present them to the governor. They cover the assessment roll for the past two years.
