—Sam McCall and Charles Gessa of the Kentucky Liquor House got back last week from a trip to Myton in the interest of their firm. They report a successful trip, finding the roads in first-class condition with very little cold weather. Aside from having to lay over one day in Myton to rest up the team, the trip could have been made in shorter time. They report Myton as being a fine town and found business in their line good.

—J. G. Madson of Mt. Pleasant, a sheepman of that city, is in Salt Lake City on business. He says that both sheep and cattle are doing well in the southern part of the state. "The numerous rabbits there threatened to take all the feed in the fields and hills, however," he said, "and a general campaign is being waged this winter against them. It is marvelous how rapidly they increase. Two years ago we thought we had practically cleaned the valley of them, but this year there are hundreds of thousands there. A number of drives, in each of which thousands of bunnies were killed, have been held, and others are planned. We must get rid of the rabbits in order to preserve the food for our cattle and sheep." —Deseret News, 21st.

HOLD LAW UNFAIR

Wyoming Sheep Commissioners Will Not Enforce Tax.

Wyoming sheep commissioners, recognizing the unfairness of the law requiring a tax on sheep trailed across a corner of the state for shipment, will not enforce collection of the tax, according to a communication received by the Utah State Woolgrowers' association, from Secretary Millard of the Wyoming board.

Millard writes that the legislature will no doubt repeal the law and meanwhile only enough tax will be collected to pay the cost of inspection. Woolgrowers intending to trail into Wyoming are advised to write Secretary Millard, who will give the matter his personal attention.

ARE AWAKENING TO FARMING MATTERS

TILLERS OF THE SOIL ATTEND HIGH SCHOOL LECTURES.

Interesting Talks By Professors Alder and Maughan On the Scientific Phases of Agriculture—Rev. James E. Ferris of the Price Academy On "Essentials of Success."

That an awakening in the "new agriculture" has occurred in Carbon county was quite evident last Thursday evening at the high school. About forty farmers and students turned out to hear Professors Alder and Maughan lecture on the scientific phases of farming. Considerable interest was shown and many questions asked. Professor Alder talked on "Relation of Science to Agriculture," and outlined how the two go hand in hand. Professor Maughan gave a very concise explanation of the importance of an understanding of soil fertility. Both talks were followed by interesting discussions. Tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 o'clock another farmers' meeting will be held. This evening will be devoted to a lecture on "Truck Gardening" by Professor Alder, and a short talk on "Farm Bookkeeping" by Professor Peterson. The question of truck gardening is one of great local importance and the professor will apply his remarks to conditions in Carbon county. The talk on farm accounting will be for the purpose of interesting farmers in the business side of farming, and also to show how the bookkeeping can be done without the expense of much time.

Prof. P. G. Holden of the Iowa State College at Ames, noted for the work he has done in building up interest in farm betterment, lectured to the farmers in the high school last Friday evening. Professor Holden is a man who speaks from actual experience and that experience is a success. Hence his lecture was one of intense interest to all who heard it. He gave his experience in his home county in Iowa and illustrated how farm conditions may be bettered even under unfavorable circumstances. Greater harmony is needed among the rural population for the best results in agriculture, said he. Professor Holden is in Utah and Idaho under the auspices of several manufacturing implement houses.

Student body meeting last week was featured by a strong, encouraging talk by Prof. J. E. Ferris of the Price academy on the "Essentials of Success." The professor's short lecture was replete with good sound logic. His comparisons and references were forceful. Acquisitions to the Students' Commercial club collection of framed pictures, photographs, maps, etc., are still accumulating. Additions during the week consist of a large panoramic photograph of the Utah Copper company's workings at Bingham. This picture was made by C. E. Savage, especially for the commercial department. Two other additions are a large United States wall map and an enlarged photograph of the battleship Utah. Both are the gifts of Senator Smoot.

In the domestic arts department Miss Frost is trying a new plan for mid-year examinations. She is having each student without any assistance make a dress. She reports that the plan works admirably and that some excellent work is being done. From time to time requests have been made by townspeople upon the domestic science department for cakes and other articles cooked. The department is now in shape to handle all such orders, provided they come in early in the week. The classes in chemistry are now making up the experiments they missed in the first semester on account of not having a laboratory. The new laboratory is very completely furnished with all necessary equipment and supplies.
