I WENT MOURNING WITHOUT THE SUN; I STOOD UP AND CRIED IN THE CONGREGATION—JOB, 30-28.

But six more months of the Carbon county "court house ring."

When a man dies, why do we say he "cashed in?" Maybe it's because dying is as hard as paying cash is to some people.

Some men think congress is a windjammers' paradise. But why don't they get themselves elected to congress and try to improve it?

One of the vantage points fought for on the west front in Europe is "Dead Man's Hill." That must be a twin brother to "Cemetery Gulch."

Such of the progressives locally as are not coming back to the republican party "on their knees," as it were, are doing it serpent fashion.

If the price of shoes continues to advance the country may yet discover what the people of Holland found out centuries ago—that wooden shoes are cheaper.

In the meantime, the voters of Carbon county haven't forgotten that last year's road work under the direction of the board of county commissioners—democratic and bull moose—was done by a Colorado contractor and labor other than that from Utah.

Theodore Roosevelt declares himself unqualifiedly for Hughes and Fairbanks and is therefore a republican again. His coming back home means a solidly reunited republican party. A united republican party has not lost a national campaign for half a century. It will not lose this time. Therefore, Roosevelt is entitled to a lot of credit for subordinating his personal ambitions to the country's good. Let's all forget the quarrels and bickerings of the past and line up solidly for a good, old fashioned free trade "cleaning."

Recently a Price citizen boasted that he was not like some men in the community who, he said, had done so much booze drinking in their lives that they naturally would fail to arrive at a ripe old age. This man unfortunately overlooked one fact that was against him—he was a heavy diner. He overindulged himself in foods. He who abstains from strong drink undoubtedly has the best chance to live long, life insurance actuaries tell us, but they also announce that "good livers" harm themselves as to longevity nearly as much as hardened drinkers. There is lots of good food in Price, but don't overdo it if you cherish a long life.

Cedar City's Record touches a very tender spot with the sugar beet interests of Utah when it says: "Recent issues of the Salt Lake City dailies contain a full page article by Charles W. Nibley, presiding bishop of the church and the dominant figure in one of the Utah sugar companies, in relation to the price of sugar. By some five or six columns of labored argument he tries to show the people of Utah and Idaho that it is the proper caper for us to pay three to five cents per pound more for Utah beet sugar than is paid by the people of New York City, Chicago and other Eastern centers for the very same commodity, after it has been transported from our territory to those points. Of course, the sugar trust is altogether to blame, according to Nibley, and the Western tentacle of the octopus is powerless to give relief."

Uncle Sam's public health service says that a tin can is a menace to public health. In fact, the only time when a tin can is perfectly harmless is when it is tied to a dog's tail. It seems that when tin cans lie in backyards and on dumps they are admirable receptacles for rain water, which is an aid in breeding mosquitoes, which in turn is the sole agent in spreading malaria. A hole in the bottom of a tin can, preventing the accumulation of rain water, might save a human life. Empty tin cans have no business around the premises in Price. But if householders insist on decorating their backyards with them, they should first punch the end of a cleaver or some other sharp instrument through the bottoms. Lots of persons are victims to debilitating diseases and the cause thereof is never known. It's these hidden causes, like the malaria spreading tin can, that get in their work in secret and unawares.

HOW SHOULD THE AMERICAN FARMER VOTE THIS YEAR?

During the ten months of the fiscal year 1913, under the republican protective tariff there was imported into this country meat and dairy products to the value of $12,000,000. The bulk of this was foreign cheeses. Seven of the ten months ended April, 1914, were under the democratic "tariff for less than revenue law," with most of these products on the free list, and for this ten months period foreign competitors sent meat and dairy products into the American market to the value of $28,000,000, the bulk of them being meats. Nine of the ten months ended April, 1915, were under European war conditions. Notwithstanding this, our imports of these products reached the astonishing figure of $38,000,000, an increase of 217 per cent over the 1913 period. Argentine meats and Canadian milk and cream accounted for the larger part of these imports. About this time the demands of the belligerents for Argentine meats became heavier, and her trade in these products veered toward Europe, as did much of that from Canada. For the ten months ended April, 1916, our imports of Argentine meats were just 50 per cent of what they were during the 1914 period, and our total imports of meat and dairy products were $21,000,000. The principle after the war problem which Argentina will have to meet is how to get rid of her vast surplus of farm products, the production of which, during the past two years has been so wonderfully increased. With a democratic free trade law on the statute books, the United States is the logical market for these products and that spells disaster to the American farmer. With a republican tariff law on the statute books American farm products will be protected. Moreover, every cent of duty that Argentina pays to enter these farm products in our market will go into the federal treasury as revenue, and that means a lessening of the burden of internal taxation on the American farmer.

LOCAL GROCER MAKES GOOD AS AGAINST MAIL ORDER HOUSES.

The other day a woman here was considering sending to a large city for a stock of groceries. She listed enough from a catalog to last her for some time and the bill came to fifteen dollars. Her husband naturally noted the intention and proceeded to do a little investigating. He went to a Price grocery and made inquiries.

"If your wife comes into my place with fifteen dollars in cash," said the grocer, "I'll agree to shave off considerable from the bill on the goods she wants. You see, my prices are based on selling in relatively small quantities—ten, fifteen and twenty-five cents at a time. And I also have to make allowances for the capital required to carry a certain percentage of my trade that insists on a credit account.

"Now, if a person wants to spend fifteen dollars cash with me, I most certainly can quote considerably lower prices than I do for the small purchases. And in the case of your wife, I feel sure that I can equal the prices of the mail order concern or beat them, because I know my business expense per dollar of business is lower than theirs is."

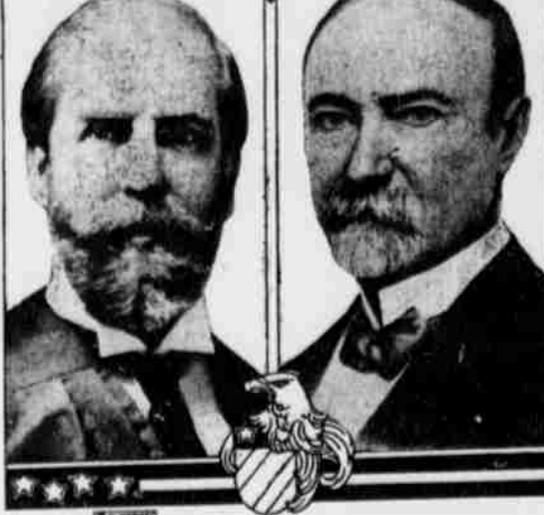

The husband returned home and suggested to his wife that before she sent the money to another city she try this Price grocer on the plan of buying fifteen dollars worth of goods and paying cash. The wife, being susceptible to logic, did so. And she found that the local grocer could sell her that amount of goods for cash just a little cheaper than the mail order house quoted, and without delay and transportation charges.

This is worth trying. Before sending your money away tell your dealer that you are prepared to buy a big bill of goods for cash and see what he can do for you.

Disregarding the interests of farmers, the democrats putt eggs on the free list with the result that millions of dozens of Chinese eggs were shipped to this country at prices the American farmer could not meet. The Oregon legislature tried to protect the Oregon farmer by enacting a law requiring that bakeries, restaurants and so forth using imported eggs shall post a notice declaring that fact. A test case in the courts has resulted in a decision declaring the law unconstitutional, and Chinese eggs are again freely sold in the West. According to the American vice consul at Nanking (China) eggs from that country are consigned to America at four and six-tenths cents a dozen. While this competition does not affect the egg producer in the East, it illustrates the application of the principle of a protective tariff, which kept these eggs of cheap price and poor quality out of our markets.

United States exports for the month of May were the largest in history, due wholly to the war in Europe. Imports were also the largest in history, due to free trade. Exporting will decrease when the war is over and importing will vastly increase, unless a wise tariff law steps in to stop it. The way to get the wise tariff law is to put back in the tariff making business the only party that was ever known to enact a wise tariff law.

Laws Would Do Away With the Pestiferous Fly

It would appear, from what we know of the life history of the common housefly and from what remedial experimentation has already been carried on, that it is perfectly feasible for cities and towns to so greatly reduce the numbers of these annoying and dangerous insects as to render them of comparatively slight account. The health departments of most of our cities have the authority to abate nuisances dangerous to health, and it is easy for the health authorities of any city to formulate rules concerning the construction and care of stables and the keeping and disposal of manure which, if enforced, will do away with the housefly nuisance.

Should Start a Co-operative Cleanup

A COMMUNITY campaign against flies should be started early in the winter if possible. Plans should be made for town improvement along this line. An association could be formed for this purpose, the village divided into districts and one or more members made inspectors in each district. Every town and city should have a food screening ordinance applicable to food kept for sale.

Filth Breeding Place.

The cluster of eggs which will result in 120 full grown flies in the course of ten days usually is laid in a heap of filth. Garbage, manure, almost any kind of refuse heaps, open drains and out houses are the best breeding places for the flies.

MORE THAN MILLION INTENDED FOR ROAD

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2.—Explaining the good roads bill, Representative Mays has inserted a statement in the Congressional Record, giving the effect the legislation will have on good road construction and maintenance in Utah. He says the state will receive from various governmental sources more than $1,000,000 in the next five years. To this will be added an equal amount by the state highway commission.

Under the terms of the good roads bill the state will receive during the first year, $57,500; the second year, $115,000; the third year, $172,500; the fourth year, $230,000; the fifth year, $287,500. During each of the five years the appropriation to the national forests in the state will be $48,000, making a total of $1,105,000.

SMOOTH'S WILD DUCK CLAUSE STILL REMAINS IN THE BILL

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2.—The senate today in committee of the whole rejected the committee amendment which proposed to strike from the agricultural bill an appropriation of five thousand dollars to continue the investigation of diseases among wild ducks in Salt Lake Valley. Senator Smoot defended the item and was supported by Senator Smith of Arizona and others.

UTAH BASIN PROSPECTS.

According to reports, the Salt Lake Route engineers in the Utah Basin find the grades more favorable than was expected, and construction will be within the estimates already furnished by Union Pacific engineers. Moreover the proposed branch ought to be self supporting from the start. Private rights of way will be given to private owners. Reports from Denver are to the effect that the Denver and Rio Grande has sent a corps of surveyors into Strawberry Canyon to run a line for the proposed extension to Utah Basin.

FOR BILIOUSNESS AND STOMACH TROUBLE.

"Two years ago I suffered from frequent attacks of stomach trouble and biliousness," writes Miss Emma Valbrunke of Lima, O. "I could eat very little food that agreed with me and I became so dizzy and sick at my stomach at times that I had to take hold of something to keep from falling. Seeing Chamberlain's Tablets advertised I decided to try them. I improved rapidly." Obtainable everywhere.

The man who can advertise will probably need no urging to get him stirred to a point of advertising persistently.

All advertising should be planned with a view to building a substantial permanent reputation.
