The wise man dresses the part. No man should dress beyond his means. To do so is the height of folly. But every man should dress as his prosperity permits—up to the limit of wisdom. That is good business sense, for prosperity on the surface indicates prosperity beneath. Our made to order clothing is worn by a great many of the men of Carbon county who would dress the part.

LITTLE OCCASION FOR PANIC HERE IN UTAH

Coming at a time when the marketing of the wool clip is at a standstill because of the recent decision of the banks not to make further loans on the 1926 wool crop, a statement which, according to woolmen, answers the needs of the present serious situation, was issued last Wednesday by F. R. Marshall, secretary of the National Woolgrowers' association. In brief the plan as outlined by Marshall provides that woolgrowers shall give local banks financial statements of assets and liabilities. These statements, he says, cannot be construed as a reflection upon the standing of the stockman in any sense, but rather a good and substantial way in which to begin the negotiation of a loan and a method followed by all large mercantile houses. He further states:

"By presenting as collateral a negotiable warehouse receipt. Such receipts may not be required by all banks, but they are good collateral and can readily be obtained from regular consignment houses. It is an advantage if the warehouse receipt is one issued by a concern that is not engaged in selling wool for its own account. It is to be expected that the amount of loans made by local banks will be somewhat conservative. Those negotiable warehouse receipts cannot be issued until the wool covered has arrived at the warehouse."

WALLACE GIVEN PLACE

James H. Wallace, a well known newspaper man of Utah, who for the past four years has been editor of the Verbal Express and who has been connected with the country press of the state for many years, has been appointed executive secretary of the Utah Public Health association and this week assumed the duties of his position. Wallace has just concluded a cleanup contest in the schools of Uintah county which was directed by him and which state school authorities declare was productive of remarkable results in the way of sanitation.

GREAT CROP COMING UP

Million Bushels of Winter Wheat Promised In Utah.

"Utah this year will produce a million bushels of wheat or 40 per cent more than last year," said M. M. Justice of the bureau of crops estimates last Tuesday. "Winter wheat," he continued, "improved two points in condition in May and the crop seems better than for several years. The condition of spring wheat is generally good, although the acreage is seven thousand acres less than in 1919. Generally the decrease is devoted to sugar beets. A shortage of seed was reported in Duchesne county."

"Cuts promises about a half million bushels more than last year, although the acreage is smaller. The condition of barley sown is excellent, forecasting a greater production than last year, although there is a decrease in the acreage. Rye shows better than last month with prospects for a crop twice as large as last year."

"Hay conditions have advanced seven points the past month until the forecast is now for a crop 43 per cent larger than last year. The weevil has done little damage."

"Sugar beets are doing well, the earlier plantings producing good stands, but later plantings are hampered by crusted soil following storms."

"Fruits are unusually promising. The fruit country was frosted severely this spring, affecting all seasons of fruit. In the larger producing sections of the state, peaches are the only fruit which show poor prospects. Utah county has about two-thirds of a crop."

"The crop acreages in the state are winter wheat, 128,000; spring wheat, 133,000; oats, 70,000; barley, 22,000. Alfalfa will harvest 343,000 tons."

IMPORTANT RULING

Reduction works on oil shale claims will not be allowed as part of the five hundred dollars expenditure required to obtain patent to the land, according to a ruling by Clay Tallman, commissioner of the United States general land office. A case was brought to the attention of L. C. Thorsen, United States surveyor general for Utah, by E. Harmon, United States mineral surveyor. A company that had made application for patent to some shale lands near Roosevelt desired to know if money spent on reducing works would be counted as part of the required patent expenditure. Thorsen took the matter up with Commissioner Tallman, who held that the only expenditures which will be considered in granting patent are those spent in the actual development of shale ledges.

GOING IS GOOD

Fairly rough going over the Soldier Summit state highway is reported by Parley R. Paskett, employe of the state live stock board, who recently made the trip from Emery county by automobile. Paskett started Monday, and on that day was compelled to cross the Price river on a railroad bridge, and then to follow the railroad track for about a mile before he could get back on the state highway. It was expected by the bridge engineer, however, that the bridge would be in shape for travel by the following day. Elsewhere the road was passable, says Paskett, though rough.

COMMISSION OVERRULES

The commission has overruled the demurrer presented by the Denver and Rio Grande railroad to the application of the Utah Terminal Railway company for a certificate of convenience and necessity to construct a four-mile line from Standardville in Spring Canyon to a point on the Utah railway. The date for the hearing of the application on its merits has not been set.

Successful Men

Know the value of a bank. A bank aided them to achieve their success. It saved their money when they had little, and paid them interest on those savings. It loaned them money to branch out in business, and counseled and advised them in order to make that branching a success from the start. The modern road to success begins at the savings window of a bank. Are you acquainted with such a window?
