Mrs. ANNIE MILLER McLANIHAN was before Justice Noon this morning for intoxication. She was found guilty and sent up for 15 days.

It is a positive fact that J. R. Boshard is selling more pounds of granulated sugar for the dollar than any other store in town.

THE Chamber of Commerce met in the courthouse Thursday night, but as there was not a quorum present the meeting adjourned until April 2, 1891.

THE district schools had an outing yesterday. The little folks enjoyed it immensely as also did the older ones. They kept time to the tap of the drum in fine style.

In the Police Court yesterday morning Wm. McGraw, a railroad man from P. V. Junction was fined $5 for being drunk. He didn't have the dust, so he went to jail for five days.

During this changeable weather a person cannot get along without a pair of rubbers, and the best place in town to get them is at George Chiles', five doors west of the postoffice. He also carries a fine line of gents', ladies' and misses' shoes at rock bottom prices. His shoes, made to order, are known everywhere. Repairing done while you wait.

A pound of wire should never be sent out of the territory for reduction purposes. Utah has all the essential products necessary for the successful smelting and reduction of ores. Salt and lime rock is abundant; we have excellent coking coal and iron abundance in unlimited quantities. - Salt Lake Stock Exchange Journal.

THE play of "The World" is a good one, and with a strong company would be a triumph of dramatic art, but the company which played it in the Opera House on the 12th was very tame. The humor was probably due to the fact that the company had had no sleep for a day or two. The stage effects were good.

THE going per dollar is chief among the things to make everybody who is a business man. When in the west the dollar is 90. Is he asks that asks for more what he was on earth so he gets the right the good door-keeper will say to his servants: "Take this thing to the boss-hole of remorse and stop up the hole-hole with him."

THE contract for building the R. G. W. grade from Hanti to Salina has been awarded to M. G. Reynolds & Co., of Springville. The road will be finished that far about June 1st. The first ten miles must be finished by May 1st, otherwise the contractor will forfeit $50 for each day the road is delayed after that date. Mr. Reynolds is expected in town in a few days, and then the dirt will fly.

MAKING CIGARS.

A Visit Made to Paul & Neibaur's Factory.

Watching the Men Make a Seventy-five Dollar Cigar.

Those of Our Local Business Men Who are Using the Home Product.

THE DISPATCH man visited Paul & Neibaur's cigar factory in this city this morning, and watched them turning out the weed. This enterprise has been in operation but a few weeks, yet is doing an immense business. The proprietors, L. M. Paul and N. A. Neibaur, are both Salt Lake boys. They learned their profession at the Capital, and are good workmen. It is almost surprising to learn how quickly their business has grown. There are four hands employed, and notwithstanding the fact that they turn out over six thousand cigars every week, yet they are unable to keep up with their orders. For this reason they have had to send for four more cigar makers, and they are expected to be here next week. At present but two firms are using the product of this factory, and they are Wilson & Brown and Smith & Pitt. Knight Bros. are having a special brand manufactured, which will be known as "The Opera," the name of their saloon. The factory has made several large shipments to Salt Lake and Tintic, where their goods have met with great success.

Entering their workshops the visitor sees the men sitting up of benches, on which are large heaps of tobacco leaves. On the left of the man is the wrapper, on the right the stock, on "stuffing," while in front is a slab on which the cigar is made. Hanging to the bench is a canvas pocket into which the trimmings, or "tailings," are placed. The leaf, which is dampened, is first taken and spread out very smoothly on the slab. The operator then gives for a handful of stock which he places at one end of the wrapper. He then trims the wrapping leaf, and commences to roll it up. By a dexterous movement of the fingers the shape is given to the cigar, and when perfectly rolled is secured with paste made from a gum which has neither smell nor taste. The butt end is then neatly trimmed with a knife, and thrown into a heap behind the slab, from whence they are taken and packed into boxes. On the occasion of our visit one man was engaged in making the best brand turned out by the factory, known as the "Garfield Beach." This cigar has more Havana stock in it than any other article made by them, and is covered with the genuine Sumatra leaf, the best wrapper grown. It is a light color cigar, and said to be very mild. Its price is $70 per 1000. One hand is capable of turning out from 200 to 400 cigars per day, while as many as 600 to 700 has been accomplished by one man; but, of course, this is something extraordinary. Three hundred is said to be the average.

"The Golden Buck" is another fine brand turned out by Paul & Neibaur. This, with the "Garfield Beach," is becoming quite a popular, and is in large demand.

TO TAP MANTI AND MARYSVALE.

The Railroad Project That is at Present Creating Interest.

A dispatch from San Francisco, dated March 12, speaking of the sale of the California & Nevada R. R. Co. to Eastern capitalists says: The road was offered to the Burlington, which proposed to build through Fort Fetterman to the coast. This theory is strongly upheld by the fact that the pass near the fort was so strong a strategic point to railroad builders that the Burlington held it for a long time with a shot gun guard; but the Northwestern managed to capture it and lay track through it. However, the Burlington were not to be outdone, and using strategy against their rivals, they took the correct ground and tore up the track and ties that the Northwestern had taken so much trouble to get down. From Fort to the road will go across the Nevada plains, tapping its rich gold and silver districts to Crystal Springs on the western border of Utah, where a branch will be built thirty miles to Panguitch, a through connection over the Utah Central to Salt Lake. From Crystal Springs it will be continued over the Escalante desert, and skirting the foothills of the Tushar mountains, on to Junction where another connection with Salt Lake is to be made by a twelve mile branch to Marysville connecting with the San Pete Valley rail road. From Junction it is an easy feat to cross the fertile valley, formed by Piute and Emery counties, following Curtis Creek and the San Rafael river, and proceed thence to Green river, and over the Denver and Rio Grande tracks to Grand Junction and so by the broad-gauge of the Colorado Midland to Denver and Pueblo. This road will tap a magnificent country, rich with the most highly cultivated lands and mines of precious metals and coal.

Mrs. Greenhalgh Talks of Her Interview With President Harrison.

The W. S. Association convened in the Meeting-house yesterday, March 13, 1891. After the usual opening exercises, Mrs. Lapish, vice-president of American Fork, addressed the meeting. She remarked on the color of the badge worn by the returned delegate from Washington, Mrs. M. A. Y. Greenhalgh, and said yellow was the right color, as it represented jealousy, signifying we are jealous of our rights as women and American citizens. She said that reports were prevalent that the Relief Society money had been used to help the W. S. Association, but the speaker denied these reports, as the associations had worked for every dollar they had used.

Mrs. Gaddie, of Lehi, Mrs. Emmeline Gay, of Lake Shore, Mrs. Boyer, of Springville, and Mrs. Jakenan, of Sanpete county, addressed the meeting, and spoke encouragingly of the work done by the association. Each reported their district as being in a flourishing condition.

Mrs. M. A. Y. Greenhalgh, of Millard Co., delegate to Washington, was the next speaker. She said: I am pleased to be home again. In my visit to Washington I met and conversed with a great many prominent men from nearly every State and Territory of the Union. We met with success in Washington and made a favorable impression on many of the prominent men there. We succeeded in getting them interested in woman's suffrage. I had an interview with President Harrison, and found him cold and indifferent at first, but afterwards he was interested and expressed regret when I stated the injustice that had been done to us here in Utah. He introduced me to the Attorney-General, and I had a long conversation with him also. He reported the condition of Millard Co., the speaker said: Although I represent the smallest county in Utah, still I can report 300 members and everything in a flourishing condition.

Vice-President Mrs. Brown, of Alpine, and Vice-President Mrs. Wright, of Payson, reported their associations being in a good condition.

After a few comments from Pres. Patten, the meeting adjourned sine die.

THE attention of our readers this issue is called to the announcement made by Enders & Henderson the contractors and builders. People placing work with this firm will get good treatment. They are first class mechanics.

THE Sun Foundry board of directors met in Supt. Moore's office last night at which it was agreed that two directors were appointed to secure funds to carry on the institution. Mr. Whalon was present and talked "Natural Gas" to the meeting.

COMMENCING next Monday the passenger service on the Street Railway will be abandoned, and the motor power devoted to hauling gravel from the immense beds east of town to the streets along the line of track, where it is so badly needed.

THE bell given by the B. Y. A. Choir last night was a huge success. There were 140 couples present. During the evening Wm. Ingreth, who is about to depart on a mission to Great Britain, was presented with a purse containing $50, as a mark of esteem from his fellow-students.

MR. B. BACHMAN, Deputy U. S. Marshal, left Provo last evening for Salt Lake, having in charge the six Italians convicted of riot, and J. W. Chadwick and Edward Whipple who were convicted of grand larceny last September, the judgment of the lower court being affirmed on an appeal to the Supreme Court of the Territory. They were all lodged in the Penitentiary. Deputy Bachman returned this morning.

How can you expect your town to grow and improve when you never say a good word for its enterprises, but always speak in a slighting way of the town. Don't go away from home to trade whenever you have a dollar to spend, and then when you are dead broke go to your home merchant and tell him to charge it up and expect your merchant to sell as cheap as the man who gets your cash. This thing of standing off your home dealers and trading away from home when you have the cash will knock the prosperity out of a town about as quick as a hungry hound can lick a skillet. How can you expect to take interest enough in the town to investigate its advantages when you are always crying its a dead place, there's no enterprise; its full of fossils and mossbacks. If you don't like the location and people, get out of the town and stay out; if you can't say a good word for the place, please keep your mouth shut if you last.

LEGAL SQUABBLE.

Two of Provo's Attorneys Engaged in a Suit.

In Which One is Very Kindly Charged With Simple Assault.

Judge Brown Finds Him Guilty But Conspicuously Suspend Sentence.

W. S. Myton, of this city, was before Justice Brown yesterday on a charge of assault and battery. The complaint was sworn to by Mr. J. B. Milner, who testified he had gone to his deceased son's residence, at the invitation of one of the appraisers of the estate, on March 9th, and that Mr. Myton struck him on the shoulder as he stood on the door step, about to enter the house. Mr. Myton told him not to enter the house as he had no business there.

Jesse J. Knight and B. H. Milner testified that they had seen Mr. Myton strike Mr. Milner, but could not say how hard he struck him.

Mr. Myton defended his own case and called Mrs. Jeannette A. Milner, who stated that Mr. Myton was her attorney, and she was appointed by the court as administratrix of her deceased husband's estate. She had given Mr. Myton full control of her affairs. She stated that she was afraid of John B. Milner, and told Mr. Myton, on the day in question not to allow him to come in the house. She was perfectly satisfied with Mr. Myton as her attorney. She did not see Mr. Myton strike Mr. Milner.

Mr. Myton then took the stand in his own behalf, and testified that he only pushed Mr. Milner. He told him not to come in the house as he had no business there, and that he was acting under Mrs. Milner's instructions. Mr. Milner persisted in coming into the house, and that was why he pushed him.

Justice Brown said that, in view of the evidence, he could not help but judge the defendant guilty. He would, however, suspend sentence, which was done.

ARRESTED FOR SELLING LIQUOR.

Dr. Julius Humberg was before Justice Noon yesterday on a charge of selling liquor without a license. A. G. Sutherland appeared for the defense and W. H. King for the prosecution.

Al. Thompson and his wife testified that they had got the liquor on the 9th of March, and that Dr. Humberg was told that it was to drink. The Dr. told them he could only sell it for sickness, but seeing who it was he would sell it.

Dr. Humberg testified that Mr. Thompson and his wife had informed him that it was for sickness, and that he let them have it on those conditions. He stated further that if any one was to tell him he was selling sickness he would sell it to them, providing he could get their word.

Freddie Moore and George Webb both testified that Mr. Thompson and his wife said it was for sickness. The case was continued.

How to Advertise.

That it will profit any business man threefold at least to advertise and do it judiciously has been demonstrated time and again and the question is beyond cavil. But the methods to be observed in advertising is a question of infinitely wide range, is of the very first importance, and cannot be too carefully studied. One thing about it that may be set down as true is that every man's advertising, in its language and style, should be characteristic - characteristic of the man, characteristic of his stock, characteristic of his commercial position. For every man has his peculiarities of development. When he speaks we know it is he, though we may not be looking at him, and his advertisement should represent him like his voice. He should put his experience, his industry, his enterprise, into his advertising. If a merchant has any snip, any energy, in himself, let him show it in his advertising. If he has any bargains in store, let him say so. If he has connections which enable him to sell better goods, or the same goods at lower prices, than anybody else, let him say that; say it plainly, strongly and in a way that will carry conviction of truthfulness; and on the same principle that leads him to treat visitors to his store so that they will call again, let him write his advertisement so that his next advertisement will be looked for; if you get a person's attention once try to hold it. The whole thing is summed up in this: One should study advertising as he does every other department of his business. Advertising is a science, simple, if true, as to its main elements, but requiring more thought and system than many of our business men are accustomed to give it.

"Life of General Sherman."

The enterprising Pacific Publishing Co. of Portland and San Francisco, are again to the front. This time it is the "Life of General Sherman," written by the deceased general's fellow warrior and bosom friend, Major General Howard, assisted by that most popular of all biographers, W. Fletcher Johnson, author of "The Johnstown Flood" and "Life of Sitting Bull and the Indian War," also brought out on this Coast by the Pacific Publishing Co. A grateful nation is at all times ready to honor the memory of her brave sons who, during life, have followed the Stars and Stripes upon the gory field of battle; and this is particularly the case with the last of the great War Heroes who has just been summoned by the grim call of death to throw off this mortal coil of years; full of honor; full of glory; full of the love, affection and gratitude of his fellow citizens; full of everything indeed that goes to ensure an enviable immortality to the memory of the departed.

This beautiful work, just issued by our friends, the Pacific Publishing Co. will be no mean factor in keeping green for many years to come the story of the life general's early life, his great war record at Bull Run, at Shiloh, at Memphis, at Vicksburg, at Chattanooga, at Knoxville, at Missionary Ridge, at Atlanta, and last but not very far from the last, that glorious and immortal "March to the Sea," the generalship and military grandeur of which has probably never been surpassed in the annals of warfare. All these matters are most graphically and vividly dealt with by the able authors; and when it is remembered that General Howard has, with the consent of the late general's family, had access to all the private diaries and correspondence of General Sherman for the purpose of enabling him to do justice to the subject he had taken in hand, there can be no doubt but that the book under notice is an authentic and reliable biography of the deceased soldier. It is illustrated by portraits, battle scenes, etc., from end to end. The steel plate engraving of the late general, from a photograph taken just before his last illness in his general's uniform, is a very fine likeness, and a master piece of the engraver's art.

The book should find its way into every patriotic home in the country. See the publishers' advertisement in another column.

She Wanted to Price Tickets.

There was a line ten feet long at the ticket window in the Hudson River railroad waiting room, and the policeman on duty was busy reminding the slower travelers to be brisk with their change, when a tall, thin, elderly woman, with spectacles and with a complexion like a halibut, peered in at the ticket clerk and said:

"What do you ask for a ticket to Poughkeepsie?"

"One dollar forty-seven."

"Is that the lowest price?"

"Only one rate."

"I don't want to pay up last month and only paid one dollar and thirty cents."

"There's been no change, madam. Do you want a ticket?"

"Would I save anything if I went to Peekskill, got off and bought another ticket there?"

"Costs more. Hurry, madam, there are others waiting."

"Well, I only wanted to price tickets. I never knewed Eliza Smith to tell the truth before, and I just wanted to be sure that she hadn't broke no record." - New York Tribune.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

Father - I notice that young gentleman calling on you every evening always wears a dress suit. Don't you know that a young man who has nothing else to do but rig himself up in good clothes won't make much of a husband?

Daughter - True, father; but George has a wealthy old aunt who is a stickler for style. He is obliged to dine with her every evening before he calls to see me.

Father - I was about to remark when you interrupted me that a young man who has nothing else to do but rig himself up in good clothes won't make much of a husband unless, my daughter, it happens that he has a wealthy old aunt who is a stickler for style. I shall expect you to mar his immaculate shirt bosom inside of a week. - Clothier and Furnisher.

His Wife Fought for Him.

Noble Rush keeps a small orderly house at Washington, and is the kind of a woman who believes in being a helpmeet with all the force of her vigorous character. The other day Noble got into trouble and the police court. He was charged with keeping an unlicensed bar. His attorney failed to appear at the trial, and Mrs. Rush thereupon filed the legal breach with her property. She allowed that she knew a thing or two about law herself, and she defended her accused husband with the force of a woman of an indignant woman.

She accused the witnesses for the prosecution of "prejudice" and made an impassioned appeal to the judge, who was so affected that he let Mr. Noble Rush off with a fine of $10 and costs. The defendant noted an appeal, and is credited with the chanceless remark that if he had two wives "bessin' the job" he'd "got it in do seek for life sure."

The Murder of Joseph Gibson, a prominent citizen of Havawasa, Ga., who was found with his throat cut from ear to ear twelve hours after he left his home, has terribly excited that neighborhood. A man named Simons is suspected by some of having committed the crime. A woman went to Havawasa from North Carolina. He is a theological student, but is also a wife beater. Gibson had reproved him for beating his wife, and, it is thought, had it that way near his emality.

A Letter Nine Years on Its Travels.

A registered letter, supposed to contain something valuable, was returned to the Baltimore postoffice recently. It was sent from here to New York city for a party there as far back as March 15, 1881. The regulations require registered letters to be returned to the sender within thirty days if undelivered. The letter had no explanation or indorsement after its nearly nine years of sleep in New York. If the woman who sent it will call at the postoffice she can get it back now, but she will be required to identify it. - Baltimore American.

Their Little Joke.

The boys at a certain college not far from New York have got what they call a "feared-down on Professor X." Consequently, they make his life a howling failure. He was woke up in the morning, the other day by a ringing at his bell. Dressing on his dressing gown he threw up his window and inquired what was the matter.

"Burglars are around, and we wanted to tell you that one of your windows is open."

"Which one?" he asked anxiously.

"The one you have got your head stuck out of," replied the students in chorus. - Chatter.

Oh, That Chatter!

Mrs. Orville Bore - Is your mamma in you know I wrote to her, and I'm on the minute!

Sweet Child - No'm; but she left a message. Oh, there, I've forgotten it and you'll have to wait while I go up and ask her what it was. - Chatter.

Adjustment.

Mother - My boy, I didn't mean to whip you so hard. With (who has been standing jam) - That's all right, ma. I didn't get quite enough jam anyhow, and I'll go and get a little more. - New York Sun.
