PROVO CITY, AUG. 27, 1894

EXCEPT IN REPUBLICANISM.

There is a class of men who cry aloud day and night, in season and out, on the streets and upon the house-tops, "there is no hope for silver save in the republican party."

To this crowd belongs the Patton of Ogden who went blundering out from the democratic lines the other day and who is now hovering about between the lines of the populists and the republicans, none apparently caring where he finally falls.

If really there is no hope for silver save in its restoration by the republican party then indeed may we take a long last farewell of the money of the ages and the money of the poor.

We do not seek the assassin when we desire relief. Neither do we seek the republican party when we are in earnest to restore silver.

There is not an intelligent republican in Utah, including the Tribune, but knows, to absolute certainty, that the republican party, as a national organization, is the bitter, hostile and blood-thirsty foe of silver and all the industries which depend upon its restoration to its old time money functions.

Worse still, they know to an absolute certainty that as a national party the republicans will hold that policy while time lasts or while the republican party exists.

It is the lineal descendant of the several parties which opposed the democratic in the early years of the life of the nation.

When the democracy was "carefully guarding the interests of hard coin money in every one of its written platforms, the republican party, or rather its progenitors, were battling for federal and state banks as against hard money.

It is thus the legitimate foe by blood of silver. It comes legitimately by its hostility to silver.

In this way it worked until emboldened by partial success it at last reached up and in 1873 it finally delivered the final blow which laid the white metal prone in the dust as one of the mere commodities of commerce.

This destroyed over one half of the money of commerce, and left times. If we are really in earnest in the claim that we are seeking to find the cause of the present stagnation of business, the present hard times, we need not look any farther.

Here it is in the original act which decapitated silver, and surely no one will deny that the republican party did that.

Now then how an honest and well-informed advocate of remonetization, or one who is honestly seeking for the causes of the hard times prevailing in order to apply a remedy can vote this year in Utah for the republican party candidates passes our ken completely.

Any political party seeking to find measures of relief from the hard times occasioned by the republican act of demonetization must inevitably strike for free coinage.

It is true that the measure of tariff reform we have secured and in the right direction, but only complete restoration of silver will restore the good times of the past.

Now here we have two parties seeking this dissipation in Utah. The republican party, the power which originally demonetized silver and the democratic party which opposed with might and main the policy of demonetization and which is today, by a vast majority, still in favor of remonetization.

Which will the people of this silver state trust? Which is the most reasonably apt to work out the relief desired? We cannot but conclude that the claim put for the republican party is the sheerest nonsense ever sought to be crammed down the throats of the people.

SAM A. KING is to edit a department in the Provo DISPATCH to be known as "Public Opinion."

If the first issue is any criterion the doggerel had better be termed "Democratic Mudslinging," and all the material is invited to furnish such material as they think would meet the approval of the editor.

As a piece of unprofessional journalism THE DISPATCH has added another black mark to its already very much colored career.

Manti Messenger

Here is one of the cow editors who is about as capable of sitting in judgment upon professional qualifications and character as he would be to navigate one of the "liners" from New York to Liverpool.

The Messenger, by common consent, is the most stupid paper in the entire west. At all events THE DISPATCH does not lower its opinion of its own merits the least in consequence of its brutal assault.

The Tribune is now troubled by the small parties buying at it. It got used to that years and years ago as the experience is not a new one, however delightful it may be in other respects.

The Tribune, mind you, acts in the role of benefactor of Utah, not the bitter enemy, the slanderer and persecutor of her people.

From the standpoint of benefactor it imagines that the people are sitting on their haunches "boning" to do it honor and to burn incense before it.

Of course there would have been no statehood but for the Tribune, there would have been no opened reservations and no Mormon judge had not the Tribune spent twenty long years in hot persecution of the people of this territory.

"The outside democratic press of Utah" of which the Tribune writes, must mean those outside of Salt Lake. The Tribune hasn't yet learned that Salt Lake city is not Utah.

It is a rather sizeable chunk of it, we grant, but still it is not all. The old hen frets and fumes over her outside brood in a motherly sort of way, and she is evidently afraid to trust her ducklings away off in the wilds of Provo.

The democratic committeemen were in session in this city Saturday. There is an excellent spirit of confidence among them.

This is coupled with the personal determination of every man to work day and night in the cause until after the election is pregnant with hope for the county as well as the territory.

THE TRIB. mortally hates the idea of a democratic school man, but we sadly fear that it will be compelled to swallow Professor Nelson, bitter and all as the dove will be. Somehow or other we have grown to contemplate the three of the Tribune in this way, with a good deal of equanimity.

The sheepmen are crowding up well toward the reservations. Evidently they expect to reach out for the choicest regions in that direction.

We don't blame them. First come, first served.

They are revamping that old gas-bag about Tag Wilson's Hall. Playing the threadbare trick a second time. This indicates beautifully the poverty of republican campaign resources this year.

One would imagine from what the Tribune says Saturday morning that the men on the republican executive committee have not always been "dead straight men."

The Manti Messenger can't stand our special column. What will become of that poor sheet when the campaign really opens in earnest?

SMITH and Merritt had not been impeached at our last hearing, but the Tribune evidently expects momentary action in these cases.

JUDGE PATTON has not as yet announced whether he will choose the republican or the populist faith for a permanency. THE DISPATCH will announce the choice as soon as made.

Investigation Invited.

Of course it is proper to inquire about most right investigation is invited into the testimonial published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Special attention is called to the high character of the persons whose testimonials are published by the proprietors of this medicine, as evidenced by their occupations or indentments. In fact, no matter where a testimonial is in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla may be from, it is reliable and as worthy of confidence as if it came from your most trusted neighbor.

The early astronomers.

The early astronomers of all ages have claimed to be able to predict the future careers of various individuals by "casting horoscopes" showing the position of the planets at the time of their birth.

The position and movements of the various celestial bodies were not only supposed to control the destinies of men, but were also thought to bring weal or woe, tempest or sunshine, upon the earth itself.

A man born when the sun was in the constellation of Scorpio was believed to be naturally bent toward excessive indulgence of the animal passions.

One born when the sun was in Pisces was predestined to grow up to be a servant, while one whose earthly career was opened when the great luminary was in Aries would be a great scholar and a man known to the world despite all opposing influences.—St. Louis Republic.

WILD BILL A SOLID MAN.

The Body of the Famous Desperado Has Turned to Stone.

The climate of Colorado is so exceedingly dry in the greater portion of the state that ordinary objects, such as potatoes, vegetables of various sorts and even small animals, perish when exposed with and. The body of Wild Bill, the famous desperado, is today a solid stone.

He was buried in a sandy country near Telluride, and about four years ago his friends decided to put up a monument to his memory. They went out to his grave, which is in the open prairie, and one of the party, an old scout, was taken along to exactly locate where he was buried. The sand had shifted and blown in great heaps, as it does all through that country, and the scout had a good deal of difficulty in absolutely locating the spot. Finally he struck a mound that he said had Wild Bill under it.

Owing to the uncertainty of the situation and his hesitancy, the party decided to dig down and see whether he was right. Presently the spade ran into a rock—a scarce thing in that country. They shoveled all around it, and soon revealed the petrified image of Wild Bill, as perfect as the day he died, with not a trace of decomposition. Even the clothes and shoes were turned to stone.

Some of the parties wanted to take the body up for the purposes of exhibition. But one of Bill's old pals, Shorty Jake, as he was called, remarked that the first man who tried to do so would find a bed in the hole that Bill filled. So the idea was abandoned.—Washington Post.

Lost a Small Fortune.

While walking in the sidewalk, and it soon learned that a lady who was passing had stepped into the uncovered hole, and they were getting her out. She was not hurt in the least, but rather frightened and dusty. A male relative who accompanied her was executing a series of gymnastics around her.

"Sure you're not hurt, Addie?" he asked anxiously.

"Not a bit, Richard."

"No sprains or broken bones?"

"Not one. You see, I was caught by a man who was passing, and that saved me from being hurt."

"Where is the officious wretch?"

"Richard, he is my deliverer!"

"Deliverer nothing! If you had just broken one little bone, we could have sued the city and recovered $10,000 damages."—Detroit Free Press.

Big Worms.

A waggish farmer in Ohio killed 40 black snakes and buried them in a sand-pit. The next day he sent his hired man, a Swede, to dig fishworms in the same place, and the size of the worms frightened the poor fellow nearly out of his senses. He fled in terror from the scene.—New York Ledger.

W. P. BAYES of 2405, Jones street Omaha, Neb., says of Parks' Sure Cure: "My wife has been constitutionally wrecked for years. Tried everything, fruitlessly. Parks' Sure Cure for the Liver and Kidneys is a positive specific for the disease of Women. Sold by Smoot Drug company."
