Scrofula Breaks Out in Running Sores

The Poison Perfectly Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"A year ago a sore came on one of my limbs. It spread, and soon four others, which proved to be as bad as the first, broke out. I could not account for them and my physician did not seem to do me any good. The eruptions would spread to the size of a half dollar, and the flesh would become ulcerated nearly to the bone. I finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking several bottles of the medicine I am glad to say that my limb is now perfectly well, and I am in better health than I have been for some time. Soon after the sores appeared I was compelled to take my bed, but

Thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla I am now enjoying good health. I consider Hood's Sarsaparilla a good medicine to keep in the family for general use. I gladly send you this testimonial, as I

POORLY DEFENDED

The United States as Bad Off as China.

NOT PREPARED FOR WAR

Admiral Walker Adds His Testimony to That of General Miles—Congress Should Make Liberal Appropriations For Coast Defense and War-Ships.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Admiral Walker adds his testimony to that of General Miles concerning the weakness of the government coast defenses: "I am a good American," said he, "but I cannot shut my eyes to cold facts. We are not prepared today to engage in war with any first class power. We are in the position that China occupied in her recent struggle with Japan. We have a vast population, great wealth, boundless resources and endless patriotism, but we cannot maintain an offensive and defensive attitude against any one of a half-dozen foreign countries.

"What Gen. Miles says about the defenseless condition of our coast cities is entirely correct. It is true that New York and San Francisco are better protected than other commercial cities, but even they would be helpless against the assaults of a dozen powerful iron clads. So far as the remaining cities are concerned they have no protection whatever.

"Congress ought to make liberal appropriations for coast defenses and for additional ships of war. More than anything else we need a strong navy. If we had a dozen battle ships of the Indiana class on the Atlantic coast we could defy as powerful a maritime power as Great Britain. We have now four battleships building and two others have been appropriated for. We need at least seven more.

"With anything like a fair system of coast defenses we would be beyond a probability of war. There would be no Corinto incidents; no more talk of foreign aggressions on American soil. The United States would be preeminent on the American continent. The greatest preventative against war is to be fully prepared for it."

Assistant Musical Instruments. In the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York city there is an interesting collection of musical instruments of all nations, many of which belong to past centuries. They lie silently in the glass cases. The strings of mandolins and lutes that made sweet music in days gone by are broken and twisted, and the fingers that once swept them have passed away, but still the air seems trembling with melody. Imagination pictures the banquet hall, the summer nights when the troubadour sang songs under his ladylove's window, or the Bedouin camp in the desert, where the flute and guitar were played during the evening hour of repose. There are instruments here of all characters—rude flutes and banjos fashioned by savage hands, and dainty lutes inlaid with gold and mother of pearl, instruments which have played their part in ancient ceremonies in faraway India and China, in the castles of the middle ages and in the African wilderness. It is interesting to note that all nations have tried to make instruments to please the eye as well as to produce sweet sounds. The strange instruments and futes of savage races are often grotesque and even ugly to civilized eyes, but the poor savage did his best. He carved his instruments as well as he could and also adorned it with whatever precious trinkets he had in his possession.—H. S. Conant in St. Nicholas

Ruth and the Horse. Little Ruth was looking out of the window at the baker's horse. "Mamma," she said, "doesn't a horse use two of his legs for hands?"

"Why, no," mamma answered. "A horse doesn't need hands as we do."

"But, mamma," the little girl persisted, "I don't see what he does when his nose itches."—Youth's Companion

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE GEORGE W. CHILDS TOMB.

A Mausoleum of Granite and Bronze to Be Erected in a Philadelphia Cemetery. Friends here of Mrs. George W. Childs, who since the death of her distinguished husband has been living chiefly in Washington, learned yesterday that she had given directions for the erection of a magnificent mausoleum in Central Laurel Hill cemetery and that the body of the late Mr. Childs will be placed in it. Mr. Childs' body at present lies near that of his friend, the late Anthony J. Drexel, in the Drexel tomb in Woodlands cemetery.

The mausoleum is to be constructed of granite of a neat design in the colonial style of architecture. Granite and bronze are the only materials to be used in the construction, and the mausoleum is to have no brick lining or lining of other material. The tomb is to be located along the terrace in the cemetery close to the Nicotown lane entrance and opposite the cottage of the superintendent of the cemetery.

The doors of the tomb are now being cast. They are of solid bronze 7 feet high and 3 feet 3 inches wide. They will be surmounted with a handsomely finished molded cornice. An oblong grille of finely carved scroll work design will ornament each door. The mausoleum will be pierced with a bronze window fitted in with a circular grille 2 feet in diameter in front of the figured cathedral glass. The grille is richly carved.

There will be four outcamps in the mausoleum. The bronze plates for them will be handsomely carved and modeled. Mr. Childs' body will be placed in the mausoleum soon after the tomb shall have been completed.—Philadelphia Press.

Are Thanks Unnecessary? "A great deal is said about men being thanked for giving up their seats in the street cars to women," said a man in conversation with a friend. "Now, for my part, I don't want to be thanked for simply doing my duty."

"But is it your duty," asked the friend, "to give up a seat for, which you have paid and stand up the entire trip to accommodate a stranger?"

"I look at it as a duty. It is a deal easier for a man to hang to a strap than it is for a woman. The fact that a woman is standing while I sit annoys me. It does not matter in the least to me that she is a stranger. I feel under obligations to give her my place."

"That is galantry," sneered his friend. "It comes nearer to being reciprocity every few days some man gives my wife or mother a seat in a crowded car, so I try to pass the courtesy on. Only yesterday I saw every man in a Gratiot avenue car give up his seat to some woman. Not one was thanked, or looked as if he expected to be, or indeed gave the woman in the case a chance to thank him. It was done as if all belonged to one family, but the true spirit of politeness was in the atmosphere, and thanks, though not audible, were felt. To tell the truth, it embarrasses me to have a woman repeat that set formula, 'Thank you, sir!'"

"I guess you're not often embarrassed," retorted his friend cynically, and there the conversation ended.—Detroit Free Press.

Fair Play For Lady Somerset. The Boston Transcript says editorially: It stands to reason that newspapers to whom "Gaiety Girls" are the true and only interesting type of womanhood are finding the amiable Lady Henry Somerset, brilliant as she is, something of an ogre and bore. It is a saddening test of the taste and character controlling American journalists today in our cities.

Miss Willard says that the current paragraphs about this brave and brilliant English woman's so-called "crusade" in this country are very nearly cruel to a woman who came to this country avowedly to study quietly our customs and politics, and with no intention to instruct a whole country or to attack anything. When the New York reporters flocked about Lady Henry Somerset on her arrival and quizzed her, she spoke of the recent crusades in London against flagrant indecencies in low class theaters, and expressed her hearty wish that all such evils might be abated on both sides of the sea. At once it was said, and it has been ceaselessly repeated, that Lady Henry came here to organize a crusade, to cultivate a fad, and so forth.

She is certainly deeply and practically interested in all that has any relation to highest cultivation and freedom of humanity, and she is daily found in good works, now at a convention, now at a meeting at Mrs. Bull's house, and she speaks of suffrage whenever she can be of service to the cause that she and Miss Willard have at heart. Titles are, however, a sort of natural romantic bait to our democracy, and a fiercer light than ever beat upon a native born reformer like Miss Willard inevitably falls upon the lady who is associated with her. The American press has long ago accepted and honored the exceptional and intellectual ability and rare devotion to public ends of Miss Willard, and it is with pleasure that in her name we ask of it fair play and gentler courtesy for that most interesting and admirable example of the "new woman," in the best sense of that abused term, Lady Henry Somerset.

THE FALSE MUSCLE INDUSTRY.

Shapely Calves Made to Order For Cyclists in Welsh Factories. There is one department of industry which, by the general admission of those engaged in it, is exempt from the stagnation which so largely prevails. Indeed it is in a remarkably flourishing state, and the men and women employed at it are kept busy from morning to night. It is that which deals with the supply of artificial sinews and muscles in order to give to limbs the plumpness and symmetry which nature has denied. The great demand at the present time is for well shaped calves for the legs, and for some time the purveyors of these embellishments could not make out why so many of them were wanted, because the requirements of the ladies of the ballet and burlesque actresses are pretty much the same all the year round, and there was nothing going on to occasion an unusual request for the articles.

But they have now found out the reason. They are required by lady cyclists who wear knickerbockers, and who, naturally enough, desire to exhibit to mankind the limbs which are not covered by these bulky garments in as shapely and attractive a form as possible. The stuffing required for this purpose must be of the best kind, and it is also necessary that the mold should be well fitting; otherwise the lady cyclist would become a kind of scarecrow on wheels instead of a thing of beauty. The articles, therefore, cost more than the ordinary calves, and it may accordingly be said that the latest fashion among women not only encourages cycle making, but also aids the artistic upturn of the bicycle figure in the highest form.—Cardiff (Wales) Mail.

THE MONEY ISN'T THERE. A Pickpocket Who Was Foolish Enough to Steal a Lady's Pocketbook.

"I just swiped a leather, Jim," said a pickpocket to another of his profession as he came across him sitting on a bench in Union square.

"Was it one of them party ones what the woman carries round de street in der hands?"

"Yes, I swiped a 'Fift' avonies when she was lookin' inter er wintly."

"If yer'd been in de biznis as long as I hev, yer wouldn't er took it."

"Why?"

"Tain't worth it."

"A fellor might strike er big haul, though, that way some time."

"Not on yer life he wouldn't. I've swiped a load on 'em, an I never got one yit that I could git a beer out on. Dey don't carry money in dem leathers. Dey's only er bluff. Try dat one yer've got and see if it's anny good."

Clamoring about in vain to make sure that no one was watching him, the pickpocket opened the purse. He found three samples of silkolins, a patent glove buttoner, a card advertising a lotion for removing blackheads from the face, a sheet of flesh colored court plaster, some samples of serim and Madras, a list of prices of carpets, a circular showing an illustration of a patent hose supporter, a card of small safety pins, two slabs of chewing gum warranted to cure dyspepsia and a card bearing her address and instructions to take her there if she met with an accident.

"That's all dere is in it," said the man who had "swiped" the pocketbook, as he turned it upside down and shook it, with a look of disgust on his face.

"Didn't I tell yer," remarked the other, "I've swiped dem t'ings till I'm tired. Dey're all de same. De wo men don't carry nothin but trash in 'em. De money ain't dere, never!"—New York Herald.

Statistics collected by the regents of the University of New York shows that in the secondary schools there are 23,556 girls of academic grade and 18,742 boys. Last year more than two-thirds of the 428 honor certificates went to girls. In the colleges there are 3,925 girls and 4,939 in the professional and technical schools. Many other young women are studying law, medicine, painting and music. The United States census of 1890 gave the number of women teachers as 238,897. In their report upon these statistics the regents remark: "The remarkable development of woman's higher education is due to widespread recognition that a college course is needed as the best preparation for wifehood, motherhood and home life as much as for a professional life."

If Guilty, Forfeiture Is Assured. The mortality shown newspapers in the United States during the past 18 months has been something almost unprecedented. In New York state alone 873 newspapers suspended between June, 1893, and June, 1894. For the first time since 1869 the total number catalogued by the newspaper directory is less than for the preceding year. This is said to be due to hard times caused by the Democratic free trade panic, but this is one of the things for which that party will most assuredly be forgiven.

If he who makes two blades of grass to grow where but one grew before is a benefactor of his kind, what shall be said of him who makes but one newspaper to desolate the community where there were three before?—San Francisco Argonaut.
