

SHE WAS TOO ENTHUSIASTIC.

Mrs. Sage, in heated debate, betrayed her husband's secrets.

New York Evening World: Mrs. Russell Sage, whose face is so often seen where the good works of charity and philanthropy are being planned or performed, evidently forgot the other day that she was the wife of a great financier, and in her enthusiasm for a good cause let out a secret that made Wall street open its eyes and start thinking. It was at a meeting of some of the women managers of the women's hospital. The question of building a new and more elaborate structure on the old site came up and the argument was advanced that the noise of the engines of the adjoining railroads retarded the improvement of many patients. Then it was that Mrs. Sage showed that she had her husband's confidence in business matters as in other things.

"My reasons for retaining and rebuilding on the present site," said Mrs. Sage, "are decided. This location is preferable in every way. We may rebuild here and have no fear of the noise of the engines, for in the near future, when they use electric power there will be no noise to speak of. That will, I hope and believe, be done in the near future."

Electricity to be used on the New York Central in the near future! That's a pretty good tip. It means that the new power is being more seriously considered by railroads generally and that such consideration is being kept very quiet.

Chairman Chauncey M. Depew of the board of directors of the Vanderbilt system seemed surprised when he heard that Mrs. Sage had told of the New York Central's plan. "It is true," said he, "that such a change is contemplated, but I don't think it will be perfected in the near future. Mrs. Sage is, however, correctly informed."

Matrimonial Inhibitions.

- Don't marry a polished girl—she might reflect too much.
- Don't marry a tennis girl—she'll be onto all your rackets.
- Don't marry a girl who plays pool—she knows too much about pockets.
- Don't marry a musical girl—she knows too much about notes and bars.
- Don't marry a bright girl—she might go out when you most needed her.
- Don't marry a grass widow—you might have to cure her of hay fever.
- Don't marry a melancholy girl—her sighs might prove a heaviness to you.
- Don't marry a girl who cries—damp powder is awfully disappointing.
- Don't marry a "peach"—she might not be easily preserved.
- Don't marry a lazy girl—unless you are in the tire-repairing business.
- Don't marry an industrious girl—it might prove too great a temptation for you.
- Don't marry a vain girl—unless you are anticipating breezy times and will want to know which way the wind blows.—Chicago News.

Not to His Liking.

"One dollar, please," said the clairvoyant.

"Not much," he replied; "I'll not pay you a cent."

"Do you think I reveal the future for nothing?"

"I don't care anything about that. You told me I was to marry three times, and I don't propose to put a premium on bad news."

From a London Point of View.

"My son," said the dowager duchess, referring to the young duke, "has gone to the gold fields to seek his fortune."

"I had not supposed," returned the countess, "that he was venturesome enough to care to go to the Klondike."

"Klondike!" cried the dowager duchess. "I should think not. He's trying his luck in New York society."—New York Evening Post.

Appreciative.

"Don't misunderstand me," said Meandering Mike; "I ain't down on work."

"You don't seem to have much affection for it," said Plodding Pete.

"Yes I have. Work is a good thing. If it wasn't for work how would all these people get money to give us?"—Washington Star.

The Sultan's Amusements.

The Sultan of Turkey is an amusement-loving man, and takes especial delight in conjurers' tricks. If a troupe passes through Constantinople, the leader is certain to receive an invitation to give a performance. The entertainment takes place in a magnificent room of the palace, and the artists receive a sum of money and valuable presents.
