A Great Industry

Joe E. Roberts, formerly at the Saratoga hotel, is into the poultry business on an extensive scale. His place is on Street south is being fitted up in style. In speaking with a representative of THE TRIBUNE, Roberts said that the business has been very satisfactory. He secured concessions from the company; has closed contracts with several leading hotels; secured the co-operation of business men of Caldwell and farmers in the vicinity. The Portland, alone takes poultry amount of $500 per month. Roberts could easily secure of the hotels could he secure chickens. He intends buying of land in the spring and using it exclusively to poultry. He gets his farm to running and be prepared to enter into contracts with the leading hotels, etc. in the west. His industry will prove a great help to the and they should take a hold on raising chickens. There is money for them. If not Mr. Roberts will not raise poultry himself. He has many flattering letters from men on his manner of dressing of all kinds, which will assure a constant market. The business will easily reach $50,000 a when it is thoroughly established and may exceed that figure.

former edition of the TRIBUNE there appeared a statement on "common report" concerning the promotion of pupils, Mr. J. Walter Johnson, who offers the following explanation: The correct statement would have been that the plan that has prevailed for the last few years, viz: promotion (clear) the pupils must maintain a standard of eighty per cent. (80), general average not falling below 75 per cent. in any subject.

From the fact that nobility of character is as essential to a successful life as actual scholarship—deportment is considered as one item in general average.
The pupil maintaining a general average of 80 per cent. and falling below 75 per cent. in one or more of the lesser important subjects is promoted on trial.
If the pupil fail in important subjects he is retained from the fact that if the work of his present grade is too difficult it would do him an injustice to require him to master the work of a more difficult grade.

A Frisky Package

Per Johnson, a bright little Swedish boy aged 13 years arrived in Grangeville last Tuesday as an express package. He was not locked up in the big safe for safe keeping nor was he pitched and jostled about as the usual express package is, but he was labeled and stamped with the stamp of the company. And this brought him through just as safely as if he had been a mere bunch of rags, and at the mercy of the express messenger.
Little boy Johnson had been on the road for three weeks for he made a long journey. His place of starting was Helsingfors, Sweden. He could not speak a word of English, and his fond guardians feared to depend upon him to make the trip by himself, for they knew he could not make his destination known. They wanted to send him to his uncle, O. P. Sodenburg, of Tolo. So they took him to express office, and shipped him as any other express package would be shipped. The tag with the address was sewed to his sleeve. It is not known what valuation was placed upon him, but no claim for damages was necessary, as the boy arrived safe and sound.—Grangeville Standard.

Mr. Fisk was the unanimous choice of his district and was nominated by acclamation. Mr. W. H. Platt of Payette was named in the third district, but Mr. Bayse was so strongly supported that he won out. Dr. Lode of Emmett and Wm. Noot of Payette were named respectively for coroner and surveyor.
The ticket is a good one from top to bottom and will win to a man.
The Caldwell brass band was in attendance and did much to enthuse the large crowd. The band received many words of praise in Emmett as in every other place it visits. The boys did exceptionally well and are to be congratulated.
"I think that a dollar a day is enough for any man, provided that his work is steady. Any man can live on that, and that is all unskilled labor is worth. I am sorry that I have to pay more than that, and wouldn't if we had a better supply of labor hereabouts."
Judge Alton Brooks Parker, Democratic nominee for President of the United States. (New York Daily Globe Correspondent at Esopus.)
This statement was made by Judge Parker at his home, Esopus, N. Y., in Emory Freer's Grocery Store. Freer himself; Sam E. Mott, a butcher; Lew Boothe, a barber; Carl Wisner, a baggage-man on the West Shore railroad, and several farmers, were present when the statement was made.
Ordinary labor was at that time receiving in that vicinity $1.60 per day and the question being asked, Judge Parker unhesitatingly answered that a dollar a day was enough for any kind of a man. He regretted exceedingly that, owing to the scarcity of labor in the township, he was obliged to pay in excess of one dollar a day for men to work about his home grounds.
This is the "champion" of labor foisted upon the Democratic party by David B. Hill, another celebrated "champion of labor. A dollar a day is enough for any laboring man, according to the distinguished gentleman of Esopus and the silent nominee of the Democracy.

W. B. HEYBURN VISITS CALDWELL

A Large and Enthusiastic Meeting Held Here

Senator Heyburn's meeting at the opera house Wednesday night was all that could be desired. The audience was large, attentive and enthusiastic. The Senator was in good form and made a telling speech. He devoted himself largely to an analysis of Judge Parker's letter of acceptance, exposing its fallacies and inconsistencies, literally tearing it into shreds.
The Senator and Mrs. Heyburn arrived on the 2:30 train and were met at the station by State Committeeman Horn, Dr. Maxey and Mrs. E. E. Stone, president of the Women's Republican Club, Mrs. H. N. Maxey, Mrs. Lou Goldsmith, Miss Bean, Superintendent of Schools, Mrs. Sophia Davis and other members of the club. The party went directly to the Saratoga Hotel where an informal reception was held. While Caldwell people had met Senator Heyburn before, this was the first opportunity they had had of meeting Mrs. Heyburn, and without reflection on the distinguished Senator we may say that Mrs. Heyburn immediately outclassed him in popularity. She is certainly a most pleasant and approachable lady, and by her sweet and simple demeanor promptly won the admiration and affections of the Caldwell ladies. The Senator received, unbeknown to himself, many high compliments for his excellent judgment in the selection of a helpmeet.
At 7 o'clock in the evening the Caldwell band began an open air concert, discoursing such music as only the Caldwell band can, and by 8 o'clock the streets were full of people. At 8:15 the band led the way into the opera house, followed by the crowd.
The meeting was called to order by R. H. Davis, who, in a few, more or less appropriate, remarks introduced Senator Heyburn. The Senator spoke for nearly an hour, receiving close attention and frequent applause. Space will not permit of a review of his speech, but we shall in future articles direct attention to some of the strong points. After the meeting a reception was given in the Saratoga parlors where many of the Caldwell people had the pleasure of personally greeting Senator and Mrs. Heyburn. The opera house was elegantly decorated with flags, flowers and bunting, under the directions of the Ladies' Republican Club, the membership of which desires to express thanks to Profs. Gordon and Milton for valuable and timely assistance. Great credit is due State Committeeman Horn for the successful manner in which he pulled off the first political meeting of the campaign.
If he has a steady job at a dollar a day the laborer can, of course, pay his rent for a room in a tenement house; fare his family sumptuously on potatoes, bread and water; school his children in the back alleys; feed his livestock on tin cans and old rubber boots with an occasional theatrical poster thrown in as dessert; grow a pitiful geranium as his lawn; make little Tommy wear his own castoff trousers; have Susie wear the skirt Mamie outgrew four years ago; have a good time generally, and feel loyal to his country and hurrah for his party. But in order to do all this he must have a "steady job" at a dollar a day according to Judge Parker. If the laborer is so unfortunate as to have no steady job the bread and potatoes must be omitted from the family bill of fare. There is always plenty of water.
Now President Roosevelt doesn't talk very much about these things, but he has ever been an open advocate for the highest wages obtainable by the American workman—skilled or unskilled—and every act of his administration bearing on this subject has been for the betterment of this class. The man who toils and whose calloused hands bear mute evidence of his vocation is to him just as important in this great nation as the man who counts gold over the counter, and his appeals will receive just as much consideration. Roosevelt is essentially the president of the people and he is an American from head to foot. He is in cordial sympathy with those who earn their bread by honest toil. It is his endeavor, and that of the Republican party, to advance the condition of the laboring man, for he and his fellow laborers are the real vitals of this great republic, and all other avocations are subordinate and dependent. The laboring man of America, whether he be farmer, artisan, the begrimed toiler of the coal mine, or the half-naked creature who swelters in the fierce glare of the furnace, is the uncrowned king of his country and upon him will forever depend his destinies.

President Roosevelt has never said that "a dollar a day is enough for any man," and he never will. The Republican party doesn't believe that "a dollar a day is enough for any man," and it never will. The aim of the Republican party, and of its great courageous leader, is to protect the American working man and his family from cheap foreign labor and its productions, and to see that he is paid every cent his labor is entitled to. The Republican party demands that he be decently housed, his family well fed and clothed, and that his children have every benefit of our free school system and eventually develop into intelligent American citizens, for to them must be intrusted the future of the greatest republic the world has ever seen. There is no "one dollar a day" sentiment in the Republican party. It is for the highest wages obtainable and, therefore, it has for years advocated protection for the American workman, and it will continue to do so.
