There is an old skate of a horse that is on the road and in all the yards that he can get into every night and the owner has a pasture rented and is just too ornery to take care of his stock. This man claims to be a law-abiding citizen and still he has no regard for his neighbors or he would take care of the nuisance that runs on the road. No herder goes with the skate.

The Eidemillers even picnicing up Jump Creek Sunday. Their visitors continued their eastern journey for home Tuesday.

Strang! Strange indeed! Another school election Monday night. The result? Same as usual. The proposed $2000 bond issue failed to carry. For nearly three months the school fight has been in progress. During that time every method of warfare known to political rings and ordinary layman has been used unless it be—one blushes to say it—same consideration of the issue. Evidently the majority do not know the necessity for the best school possible. The best proposition was the consolidated school. But the school issue was never clear cut. It was defeated on account of community rivalry. It was never understood or properly examined into as a school question. Now it seems that each of the three districts involved is trying to meet the minimum school requirements.

With the most meager of equipment, in an ill-lighted, poorly heated and "worsely" ventilated building, Fargo has twice turned down the chance to give the children more room comfortably heated, properly lighted. Are the children unloved? Or is education to remain a name or only half a fact in the district? Or do Fargo voters simply deny the right of education to children? Worse than that. The school question is buried beneath a heap of rubbish of glittering factional fights. The children may be mentally worked and physically dwarfed but no faction must win! No pride nor public spirit seems to phase the situation. Oh, well! Let the girls "git" married and the boys hoe corn and taters. "Aint no use of eddycatin em nohow. Don't make crops no better." The survival of the unfit for us.
