The Christian church has called Rev. Francis L. Cook to its pastorate, who is the first regularly established minister this church has had for a year. Mr. Cook comes highly recommended and last Sunday preached his first two sermons. He is rounding up the membership this week, getting acquainted, discovering the singers and unearthing the workers of former times. He has had many years of experience as singing evangelist with the biggest men in the Christian church and has traveled through many states singing the gospel into the hearts of men. One of his first moves for Caldwell is to find a good choir leader, and failing to find such leader, he will take hold of the singers himself and organize his own choir, which is the work that engaged him for twenty years. The church takes on new life under the present prospects for great things and the membership will surely soon be back in their place at church.

At 8 o'clock last Saturday evening in the home of the bride's parents on Linden street this city there was a quaint, quick and quiet little wedding that will be a surprise to many Caldwell young people, when Fencie Bridges became the bride of Clifford Stanley Peach, of Los Angeles. The groom was called immediately to Portland and not to be outdone by little matters like business, he persuaded Miss Bridges to go along with him now. Thus we have disappointed the young people who imagined they saw a Christmas wedding in the home of our fellow townsman, T. F. Bridges. The bride's sister, Miss Hazel, accompanied the happy couple to Portland and will remain several months improving her music and getting the help of a lower altitude for her health. Mr. Peach is a salesman and thwarted the railroad strike in its efforts to break up his present happiness. The minister's words waited the conclusion of a sweet wedding march by Miss Hazel, and in quietness and solemnity the few guests who had been invited in suddenly stood while the ceremony was said. Refreshments were served and the early morning train carried them away to their new home on the coast. Six years before cupid had begun the work in both their hearts and now cupid is to do the rest.
