Entered the Postoffice at Caldwell, Idaho, as second class matter

The state administration is back at Washington. Idaho state administrations have more business at Washington than elsewhere.

Fear of Indian uprisings really caused the United States to be unprepared for war according to the fifty little Mr. Baker, secretary of war.

The administration springs a leak with monotonous regularity and every leak drains immediately into Wall street. The connections must be good.

Scholtz is out as leader of the Non-partisan league in Idaho. We fear the league will have to oust a great many more leaders before it will rehabilitate itself in the good opinion of the people of Idaho.

The secret is out. The state constabulary is for the purpose of suppressing the illicit traffic in alcoholic liquors. We always knew that the constabulary was for some purpose or other, but were never able to place our finger on the purpose.

OUR SIGNATURE.
The treaty of peace is signed for the United States in this manner: "Hon. Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, acting in his own name and by his own proper authority." It should be added: "Inspired by voices in the air and representing humanity at large."

CALDWELL LOOKING UP.
When Caldwell lagged the Tribune did not hesitate to say so. In common decency to the town, now that Caldwell is looking up, The Tribune is glad to note the fact. It is much more pleasant to point with pride to the home town than to view with alarm.

The people of Caldwell seem to be taking hold of the problems with which the community is confronted. They seem to be solving those problems.

The problems will be solved as they arise, now that the spirit is aroused. We are of no mind to present the problems because each day sees one of them worked out by one or more of our energetic men of affairs. We do wish to note the spirit that now prevails.

Most towns are built more by energy than by favorable circumstances. Happy is the town that is rightly located and has natural advantages and an energetic citizenship. Caldwell today is such a town. There is still room for improvement, but the improvement is on the way. Many Caldwell people are still asleep, but they are being awakened by their more wideawake neighbors and associates.

THE LEAK.

Administration leaks are not uncommon. But in the instance of the peace treaty there is nothing remarkable in the fact that copies of the treaty should reach this country. They have been peddled about Europe for weeks.

The remarkable thing about the leak is that there should be a leak at all. The only people who have not had the peace treaty are the people of the United States. Why this secrecy in an open treaty openly arrived at? It is said this treaty is the greatest document ever prepared by human hands. Perhaps it was feared that its very greatness would overcome the American people. Too much light is hard on weak eyes.

NATIONAL PROHIBITION.

It is apparent that those who are opposed to national prohibition started their fight years too late. While not apparent it may be possible that those who favor national prohibition accomplished their task years too soon.

There is a determined opposition to prohibition. This opposition is today organized and militant. During the past few years we have seen organizations accomplish the seemingly impossible illustrated remarkably well by the accomplishments of the Anti-Saloon league and the railroad brotherhoods. Now we have an organized opposition to prohibition. Since the Civil War we have seen amendments to the Constitution fail of enforcement. The prohibition amendment must be supplemented by legislation. The organized opposition to national prohibition evidently hope to accomplish the failure of prohibition by defeating the necessary legislation.

Organized labor is going to be the chief force in the fight against prohibition. Already the American Federation of Labor has expressed its opposition. As President Gompers is one of the right-hand men of the administration, as well as the strongest labor leader in the country, prohibition has an opponent who is going to cause trouble if not the defeat of the accomplishment itself.

THE TREATY OF PEACE.

The treaty of peace with which is interwoven the covenant of the League of Nations will not be ratified as submitted. That fact is a foregone conclusion. The senate has expressed itself sufficiently to justify the prediction that the treaty will be greatly amended or else fail of ratification. Failure to ratify will not be the great disaster that was at first feared. The senate will simply append its reservations; or, in case of the total failure of the peace treaty, congress can by resolution declare that a state of war between the United States and Germany has ceased to exist. In lieu of other conventions the treaties in force when war was declared will reassert themselves and be binding.

In case of failure of ratification President Wilson threatens to go before the country at the next general election as the candidate of his party. Mr. Wilson may or may not think better of this threat as time goes on. If we do not entirely mistake the temper of the people President Wilson will get little consolation at the next election. The Republican party will welcome Mr. Wilson as its opposition candidate. The Wilson popularity myth was largely dissipated at the last presidential election. It was entirely destroyed at the last congressional election. It is quite certain that the peace treaty, secretly negotiated, coupled with the British league of nations covenant, is no more popular than its sponsor, Mr. Wilson.

Seven months of neglect of home affairs: seven months of secret trade and barter; seven months of meddling in affairs entirely without our interests, are seven months of worse than wanton waste on the part of Mr. Wilson and his self-appointed embassy. The whole peace structure is falling of its own weight.

PERVERSIONS OF TRUTH.

Washington, June 8.—The Republican Publicity association, through its president, Hon. Jonathan Bourne Jr. today gave out the following statement from its Washington headquarters:

"One outstanding feature impresses the mind of every man who reads the president's Memorial Day address—the frequent misstatement of fact—in which respect it differs little from his numerous other addresses during the past four years. From his opening declaration that 'these men who lie here are men of unique breed' his remarks were replete with false assumptions or erroneous assertions, all contrived to bolster up the falling

PICKING THE PRESIDENT

If the 1920 presidential race develops into a dash of the water wagons as has been predicted by the "dry wings in the two major parties, then available material in both ranks is obtainable Governor Henry Allen of Kansas elected to the office while doing war work in France stands on a dry platform in the Republican party His nomination might develop should the Democrats great "dry" advocate William Jennings Bryan stage a comeback and dominate affairs as he did in the Baltimore convention in 1912 fortunes of his league of nations scheme.

"The men who died in France were not unique. They were of no different breed from that of men who fought to the last gasp behind the battered doors of the Alamo, nor different from the breed of men who fought at San Juan Hill, or in the pestilential swamps of the Philippines.

"And it is a false assumption that they went to France to fight for humanity. If that had been their impelling purpose they would have gone in 1915 to rebuke the rape of Belgium, to stay the devastation of France, to avenge the murder of innocents aboard the Lusitania. Self-deception avails us naught. We entered this war after receiving every insult one nation can heap upon another. We entered it after Belgium, France, England and Russia had stood for nearly three years between us and the ruthless hordes of the hellish Huns. We entered the conflict only when it became apparent that Prussian militarism was about to win and that we must help or fight the enemy later and alone.

"Wilson knows this. The record proves it. The declaration of war corroborates it. But the fact does not detract in the least from the heroism, the courage, the skill and the sacrifice of the men who rallied to the colors and redeemed American honor from the disgrace in which it had been dragged by a pacifist administration. The men who fought at Chateau-Thierry in the summer of 1918 would have fought as valiantly in the summer of 1915, following the sinking of the Lusitania, if they had been given the training, the arms and the opportunity. If America did not perform her part in the war as promptly and effectively as she should no word of criticism can be directed against the rank and file of the warriors who later won the admiration of the world and the gratitude of all succeeding generations by their valorous deeds.

"It is perversion of the truth to say that those men were consciously or unconsciously fighting for a League of Nations. It is perversion of the truth to say that they were fighting to prevent future wars, except so far as defeat of the wrong-doer in that war may discourage international outlawry for all future time. They were fighting to end this war and end it on the side of right. What steps should be taken to prevent future wars is a question to which they have given no thought that has found expression. No man can honestly claim to express the thought or the feeling of the American expeditionary forces upon the league of nations or any other scheme for future world adjustment.

"This much and this only has been demonstrated by the record of Americans in this conflict—America produces a breed of men who put the honor of their country and the peace and safety of their homes above even life itself, and when a foreign foe assails our rights they stand ready to wage defensive or offensive war, let the loss be what it may. If a league of nations held out reasonable hope of lessening war without sacrificing liberty, doubtless they would espouse its cause. But there is no likelihood that they will choose the humiliating and menacing terms of the league covenant, with its unknown entangling alliances and sacrifice of American independence."

Red Cross Notes.
The number of garments made by the Red Cross during the war and the amount of time given by patriotic women to the cause make a wonderful record. It equals the work of 125,000 men for a year. In this labor our Caldwell chapter makes a very creditable record.

In the sewing department we had up to November, 1918, 300 workers. Since then, until February 28, there were 100. We have sent to Red Cross headquarters:

- 23803 hospital garments.
- 1337 hospital supplies.
- 5226 refugee garments.

In the knitting department we sent:

- 1548 sweaters.
- 4575 pairs of socks.
- 196 pairs wristlets.
- 27 scarfs.
- 30 helmets.
- 345 army kits.
- 100 navy kits.
- 2 afghans.

Total number of hours, 123,830.

A box of knitted refugee garments just sent contains 14 scarfs, 3 shawls, 60 pairs stockings, 52 sweaters, 2 helmets, 2 hoods, 2 caps, 3 pairs wristlets, 85 pairs socks left from soldiers' supplies.

HERE'S REAL NEWS

For the Readers of The Tribune.
What could be of more interest to Caldwell kidney sufferers than the statement of a Caldwell resident who has suffered and has been cured?

Doan's Kidney Pills are public endorsed by many Caldwell people. Read what Mr. Chas. Allen, concrete contractor, 1802 Blaine avenue, says: "Several years ago I had quite a lot of trouble with my kidneys. I noticed the complaint first when the kidney secretions began passing too freely and were highly colored. Then my back got lame and ached dreadfully and I finally got so bad off I had to go to bed. I was in bed several weeks and couldn't turn over without help. It only took a few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills to cure me, and I haven't had any of that trouble since."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Allen had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement

Five Dollars and Costs.
C. J. Westcott appeared in the police court Saturday afternoon to answer to the charge of driving an automobile faster than the law allows. Mr. Altizer of the Caldwell Traction company was the complaining witness. The defendant plead not guilty, acted as his own attorney and was found guilty. He was fined $5.00 and costs, or $8.00 all told by Judge W. S. Maxey.

A large audience was present at the trial and the sympathy of the court room was clearly with the plain-

IN THE LOCKET OF OUR OCEAN ACE

Shortly after the U. S. seaplane, NC-4 settled in the waters at Lisbon, Portugal, after having set the record for the first flight across the Atlantic, this message flashed back across the ocean to American shores, "Safe, for baby and you." It was from Lieut. Commander A. C. Read of the history-making craft to his young wife and baby waiting anxiously here. The picture is of Lieut. Read, wife and baby.

Thanks to PERUNA

Mrs. Kate Marquis, Middleburg, Logan Co., Ohio, writes as follows:

"I have used Peruna with success. It has cured me of catarrh of the head and throat. It is the best medicine for catarrh that I have ever used. I am completely cured. Thanks to Peruna."

Mrs. Marquis is but one of many thousands who know the value of Peruna for that catarrhal condition of the membrane responsible for many of the human ills.

tiff. In fact it looked as though the defendant should have taken a change of venue on account of prejudice and an untoward public sentiment. In addressing the court the defendant called attention to his exemplary character and clean record. He stated that he had lived in Caldwell 10 years without establishing a police court record. Judge Maxey evidently thought that he had been here long enough without such a record.
