OVER 2000 DIE IN FLOOD.

Prisoners in Cells Among Victims in Turkey.

Three hundred prisoners, helpless in their cells, were among the 2000 victims of a flood that has swept Sivas, Turkey, in northern Asia Minor, news of which has just been received here. At the first intimation of danger the jailers fled without making any provision for the prisoners.

The flood is the worst in the history of that part of the country. The loss of life, coupled with that at Lokat, 58 miles northwest of Sivas, four days ago, sets a new record in disasters.

The Yeshil Irmak is far over its banks, and is ravaging all the surrounding territory.

ADMIRAL BURWELL RETIRES.
One of Best Rifle and Wing Shots in Navy to Close Career.

With the retirement from active service Sunday of Rear Admiral Burwell, one of the most eventful and honorable careers in the navy will be brought to a close.

Admiral Burwell is now commandant of the Puget sound navy yard and has served in every naval station and upon nearly every ship in the service. Some of his friends have given him the title of "Boastful" Burwell because of his bragging about his personal prowess and achievements and his capacity, when his statements are questioned, of winning the resultant bets. He is one of the best rifle and wing shots in the navy.

YOUNG FOLKS

My Geography.
I wish a great white ship would come,
And carry me, oh, so far,
Where palm-trees grow and simoons blow
And Arab caravans wind and go,
And the green, shady oases are.
Oh, sail with us leagues away,
We could see ice-floes and Eskimos,
And the northern lights all gold and rose,
Where the sun shines by night and by day.

I think if I really saw the world
Geography would seem true;
But do they mean that Mexico's green,
And England yellow? and I have seen
In my atlas that Holland is blue!
O dear, how I wish that ship would sail
And teach my lesson to me!
For though I study so hard in my book,
And even when at the map I look,
I can't learn my geography!

Meet or Meets?
The cashier of a certain bank had a placard put up one day, which was printed as follows: "The bill committee meets at 10 o'clock every morning." One of the directors came in soon afterwards, and having read the notice, he begged the cashier's pardon, but said that the verb should have been "meet," in the plural number, because the committee was composed of several persons, and their action could not properly be expressed by a verb in the singular number. Other directors came in presently, and all took part in the discussion, which was finally referred to a well-known linguist, who promptly said that the singular verb, "meets," was right. It seems strange that a serious discussion should take place over a matter that is, after all, so simple as this. The committee was, and is, a body of men acting as a body in meeting, and it meets and decides questions in that capacity. Of course, the members, as individuals, "meet" each other, but when acting collectively they act as one. To say that the committee "meet," is as bad an error as to say that the "board of directors 'have' declared a dividend," or that the "Air-Line Railroad 'have' determined to run trains every hour."

Cut-Up Pictures.
There is a craze just now for sectional pictures. The grown-ups have taken up this children's game and are so fond of it that they have formed clubs in Boston just to play it. If you want to make a sectional picture game I'll tell you how.

HOW A BOOTJACK CAN BECOME A JACK BLACKENING BOOTS.

First, you choose a large colored picture—perhaps your mother will let you take one from a large magazine—and you paste it on a sheet of cardboard and after it is dry cut it up into little pieces with nice, irregular edges. The "grown-ups" paste the picture on a thin sheet of wood and cut it up with a scroll saw and afterward polish the edges with sandpaper, but this is much harder to do, although it makes the game more durable. When they are all cut out mix up the pieces and then try to fit them together to make the picture again. Even when you have cut out the game yourself and know what the picture ought to look like when it is finished you will find it hard to put it together again and when some one else has made it and you don't know what the picture is going to be it is harder. And it is still harder if, when you cut it out, you separate the different colors of the picture by cutting along the outlines of the figures. If any one asks you to make something for a fair you might make some sectional picture games.—Chicago News.

Timber and Cast Iron.
The strength of materials is a factor of the utmost importance in all building operations, and builders are guided by scientifically conducted tests, a record of which they all have. Here are some of the figures that these tests show: The testing piece being 12 inches in length and one inch square, and the wood being seasoned, the breaking weight of white pine is 135 pounds; yellow pine, 150 pounds; chestnut, 170 pounds; ash 175 pounds; white oak 240 pounds; hickory 270 pounds; iron 5,781 pounds. The same materials will bear with safety the following weights: White pine 95 pounds; yellow pine 100 pounds; chestnut 105 pounds; ash 115 pounds; white oak 136 pounds; hickory 200 pounds; iron 4,000 pounds.

NEW RAILWAY SAFETY DEVICE.
Invention Automatically Places Torpedoes on Track of Erring Train.

A signal device that automatically places torpedoes in the path of trains was exhibited at New Durham, N. J., Saturday by the inventor, Robert J. Zorge, a member of the Chicago board of trade, to a party of reporters. The safety device has been installed on "block No. 3" of the West Shore Railroad, just west of the entrance to the Weehawken tunnel, says the New York Tribune.

The device looks like a big iron hogs head sunk in the ground. Inside is a wheel with twenty spokes. On each of the spokes is a tin-cased torpedo attached to an arm, and the duty of the complicated cogs and levers beneath the simple looking wheel is to thrust out these torpedoes upon the track so that the drivers of an engine may cause them to explode.

Mr. Zorge's system places in each "block" of a railroad three circuits, "approach," "locking" and "danger." The length of a block is determined by the nature of the traffic, and at the Weehawken tunnel it is a mile. A train passing the approach circuit acts, through its iron wheel and axle, as a conductor which carries the electric current from the point where it is received across to another wire, through which it runs to the armature beside the torpedo machine. When the train passes beyond the point, a mile distant, it similarly readjusts the current, leaving the entrance to that block clear.

The point of the device is that it while the train is running through the block another train should come along so close behind as to pass the approach circuit this contact would de-energize the current. Then the mechanism of the signal would be set working and one of the spokes would be thrust out to the track surface and hold a torpedo there to be exploded. The concussion would put the engineer on his guard if he had not noticed the semaphore signal.

German Humor.
The tendency of the German comic papers to employ continuously the same characters as "producers of mirth" is the subject of an article in a Berlin paper by Ludwig Bauer. The writer mentions as the most conspicuous of the funny figures the absent-minded professor whose habitual umbrella-losing proclivities have made generations laugh. This figure had its origin at a time, he says, when the man of letters was a helpless person in the active world—a dreamer dwelling in realms away from the actual and therefore blind to his surroundings. In this form he has been represented in the comic papers. But Germany, he thinks, not the professor, has been and is being caricatured. The professor to-day must be a wide-awake man, for science is no longer an island. These are not the days for sleep and for dreams. Another abused character is the lieutenant who, having no foe to fight, is always shown as making conquests where Amor has command. The old maid is another of the stock figures, and one of equal importance is Mr. Newlyrich. Of the latter it is said: "He is always full of fear and suspicion. He knows that he has been misplaced, and he sways from side to side like a timid rope walker. This makes him real funny, and we must laugh at his antics."

Oldest Organ in the World.
In the Baltic sea, forty miles from the mainland, lies the Swedish island Gothland, a Mecca for students of early Gothic architecture. In Wisby alone, the chief town of the island, with its population of 8,000 souls, may be studied what remains of no less than ten churches, some of which date from the eleventh and twelfth centuries. The oldest of them is the Church of the Holy Ghost, completed about 1040.

Prof. Hennerberg, director in a German music school, and especially interested in the study of medieval organs, visited fifty-nine churches in Gothland, and in a little village called Sundre came upon the remnant of what is unquestionably the oldest known organ in existence. The case alone has survived the fret of seven centuries; the holes for the pedals and manuals are placed as in modern instruments, and inside one can see the chamber for the bellows and judge of their action; the exterior is adorned with paintings dating from about 1240.

When this ancient instrument could no longer serve its original purpose, it was used as a sacrificial, and for the safeguard of holy vessels and vestments was kept in careful repair; hence its excellent preservation to our day.

Sun Cured His Baldness.
A farmer north of Youngstown, Ohio, has a new growth of hair on his heretofore bald head. It came about in this way: Several weeks ago the farmer went fishing and was so interested that he forgot his bare head. The sun blistered his scalp so badly that the skin peeled off and when the new skin came on a luxuriant growth of hair came with it.

Gives Her Babies Poison.
At Buffalo, N. Y., Mrs. Isabella Sahlen fed poison to her three small children and then strangled each with a handkerchief to make her work shre. Then she sent to the grocery store for more poison, which she took herself. The three children were dead when their mother was discovered, and Mrs. Sahlen was dying.

S.S.S. A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood, which is carried through the circulation to all portions of the system. Every muscle, nerve, bone and joint absorbs the acid, pain-producing poison, causing aches, inflammation, stiffness and other well known symptoms of the disease. Permanent relief from the pains and discomfort of Rheumatism cannot be expected from the use of liniments, plasters, and other external treatment which does not reach the blood, where the cause is located. Such measures give temporary relief, but in order to cure Rheumatism the uric acid and inflammatory poison must be expelled from the blood. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it is a perfect blood purifier. It goes down into the circulation, neutralizes the uric acid and drives it from the blood. S. S. S. expels the irritating, inflammatory matter which is causing the pain, swelling and other discomfort, enriches the weak, sour blood, and permanently cures Rheumatism. In all forms of Rheumatism, whether acute or chronic, S. S. S. will be found a safe, vegetable remedy, possessing the properties needed to cure, and at the same time a medicine that builds up the entire system by its fine tonic effects. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free to all who write.
