Frank Broeke of American ridge seeded a small patch of ground to sweet clover last year. It didn't get much of a start as it was planted late, but this season he cut one crop and the second crop is nearly tall enough to cut. The first few times he fed the clover to his stock they didn't seem to care for it but now they eat it readily.

Captain E. G. Davis of Boise, candidate for the republican nomination for governor, spoke on main street Saturday afternoon. The subject of his talk was based on the administration of state affairs. He was formerly secretary to Governor Haines, and later assistant to the attorney general. He is making a tour of the state by automobile and came north over the route of the proposed north and south highway. He spoke at Juliaetta to a large crowd, Saturday evening.

Mr. Davis, in making his primary campaign, is complying with the letter and spirit of the primary law. He says that he is taking his candidacy to the people, not asking one permission of politicians and political machines to run for office, and not depending upon nor entering into political combinations as a source of power. Mr. Davis believes that the direct primary law should have a fair trial, and that the people should choose the candidates for office.

TO KILL CUTWORMS.

The time to get the scalp of the cutworm is before the crop shows above ground. This ever hungry devastator is then keen for food and will make a fatal meal of bran mash (an ounce of paris green mixed with two or three pounds of wheat bran moistened with diluted molasses). Pinches of this mash well placed under shingles or flat stones will put the cutworms out of business.—Farm and Fireside.

TIMELY SPRAYING HINTS.

There are three troubles of the peach which can be controlled by spraying: First.—Curculio, an insect which punctures the fruit and causes wormy peaches and plums.

Second.—Peach scab or spot. This is a fungous disease which causes dark spots, black blotches or even causes the fruit to crack open.

Third.—Brown rot. The two diseases may be controlled by lime sulphur spray. Either use a very dilute commercial lime-sulphur, one quart to fifty gallons of water, or Scott's formula of uncooked lime-sulphur. Scott's formula is prepared as follows:

Use eight pounds of sulphur and eight pounds of lime. Slake the lime and add the sulphur sifted. Allow it to stake and boil for five minutes and then cool by adding cold water. Strain this into a fifty gallon spray barrel and add water to make fifty gallons of spray material.

For the insect enemies two pounds of arsenate of lead should be added to the lime-sulphur solution.

Spray just after the shucks or calyxes fall. Spray again in ten days or two weeks and once or twice more at intervals of ten days, using the poison only in the first two sprayings.

Plums and cherries may be sprayed with the same materials that are used on the peach, but care should be taken not to use the unboiled lime-sulphur spray when the fruit is nearly grown, or it will be stained.

Do not neglect to spray the gooseberries with dilute lime-sulphur and arsenate of lead for mildew and currant worm.

"BUNCOED" INDEED

Is the community in which lives a man who walks into his local store and asks for a bill of goods on six months time, and when it is explained to him by the good merchant that he cannot afford to carry accounts that long,—that he is selling his goods as cheap as the firm who gets their pay ten days in advance,—that he will be glad to sell him a nice order but must have the money for goods when delivered.

Then the customer walks out of the store very sorrowful like, and lo! in two weeks this merchant happens by the local town depot, and finds the same articles addressed to the same man who asked for credit two weeks before.

And still the mystery remains unsolved; it was found and proven that the same articles could be purchased in this local merchants store for a little less money than was paid by this man to a mail order concern.

Now, why did this man need six months credit when he had the cash to purchase his goods, out of town? Also, if he had the cash to send away for his order, why didn't he give it to his local merchant who had the same goods for a little less money?

Question! Who profited by this man's deeds? The customer, the local merchant or the mail order firm?

Note— Anyone presenting this ad to the store-keeper who wrote it, will be given a very useful souvenir.
