

THE NEW WOMAN

Not many of the tens of thousands of girl stenographers know that a little while ago were incinerated at the Fresh Pond (N. Y.) crematory the mortal remains of Mrs. Eliza B. Burnz, "the mother of stenography."

Professor Elle Metchnikoff, one of the most distinguished of living scientists, declares that old age itself is a malady. Don't let's have it.

The woman who always does and says exactly the conventionally correct thing is the most tiresome of her sex.

A man complains in court that he has to cook, wash dishes and do the housework while his wife studies art. Well, what of it? How many centuries has woman cooked and washed dishes while man studied art?

The women of American fashionable society set a fine example to their sisters in their development of physical strength and activity. No weaklings are they, but sturdy horsewomen, fencers, golfers and swimmers.

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.
