Farms and Farm Products.

Census bulletin No. 237 treats of farms, acres, crops and values

A farm, as defined by the twelfth census, includes all the land under one management used for raising crops and pasturing live stock, with the wood lots, swamps, meadows, etc., connected therewith. It also includes the house in which the farmer resides, and all other buildings used by him in connection with his farming operations.

The farms of the United States, June 1, 1900, numbered 5,739,657.
These farms occupied 841,201,546 acres, 414,703,191 acres being improved and 426,498,355 acres unimproved.
They were valued at $16,671,690,247.
Machinery and farm implements were valued at $7,125,550, and live stock at $3,078,050,041. These values, added to that of the farms, gives $20,514,901,- 838 as the amount of capital invested in farms in this country.

The total value of farm products for the year 1899 was $1,539,118,752, of which amount $1,178,990,221, or 36.3 per cent, represents the value of animal products and $3,620,128,531, or 63.7 per cent, the value of crops, including forest products cut or produced on farms. The total value of farm products for 1899 exceeds that reported for 1889 by $2,279,011,298, or 92.6 per cent. This large increase is partly due to a more complete and detailed enumeration in 1899 than in 1889.

Dakota Vetch.

Herewith we illustrate Dakota Vetch (Lotus Americanus). This is a plant native to Dakota, Kansas and other states of the Northwest. It is one of the valuable forage plants of the ranges. The United States Department of Agriculture has made a thorough investigation of this plant and recommends it for cultivation. In some parts of the West it grows in vast quantities, and the seed could be easily gathered and a start made in its cultivation. It is bushy-branched, about a foot high, with small, yellowish flowers, and slender pods about an inch long.

Nitrogen Compounds.

Nitrogen is the bottled wine of the vegetable feast. If the term stimulant can be applied to any organization destitute of a nervous system, then nitrogen is the stimulant of plant life.
In any of its combined forms it gives depth of color and exuberance of growth to vegetable life, and when in abundant supply it causes the plant to break forth into riotous growth.
The great reservoir of nitrogen is the air, but the leaves of plants though constantly bathed in nitrogen cannot drink in a particle. It is only nitrogen in combination that can be appropriated by the plant, and this enters the plant by the roots and comes through the soil. A small amount is brought to the soil by the rain, washing out the ammonia and nitrates of the air, but the amount is not large and entirely inadequate to supply a crop. A large amount of active nitrogen in the form of nitrates is yearly formed in every well cultivated field, and this is the cheapest way of securing a supply of this costliest element of plant growth. The raising of leguminous crops, like the clovers, is the next cheapest way of securing a supply.
Combined nitrogen is purchased in three forms; salts of ammonia, nitrate of soda, and organic nitrogen in the form of dried blood, fish scraps, cotton seed meal, etc.—Bulletin 202, Michigan Station.

A glass or two of water taken half an hour before breakfast will usually keep the bowels regular. Harsh cathartics should be avoided. When a purgative is needed, take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are mild and gentle in their action. For sale by all druggists.

A THREE DAYS' JAG.

TOPER WHO WAS PROOF AGAINST SULPHURIC ACID.

Druggist Needlessly Alarmed at Mistake Made by Customer—Story—Reflects Little Credit on the Quality of Missouri Whisky.

Ex-Representative Morgan of Missouri tells a good story about an old topper in the state of the muddy water.
When he first settled down to practice the town boasted of a drug store run by one of his friends. The store had a soda fountain and back of this, with the bottles of liquids otherwise medicinal, was placed a bottle of whisky.
In the town was an octogenarian, known as Uncle Billy. It was Uncle Billy's habit to step into the drug store every morning, pass behind the counter, and help himself to a number of whisky.

"Good mornin'," he always said, and "Good mornin'," Uncle Billy," everybody said to him. That was about all that passed in a conversational way as he made his regular morning call.

One morning Uncle Billy had made his regular visit to the habit of the whisky bottle, and was just disappearing through the door when the druggist discovered that Uncle Billy had drunk out of the wrong bottle. He had taken his potion from a bottle of sulphuric acid. Well, the druggist was almost panic-stricken. Uncle Billy had gotten out of sight, meantime, and the druggist closed the door of his shop, and in fear and trembling sent for his friend, the struggling young lawyer who later represented the state in congress. When told the situation Morgan advised that the only thing to do was to open the doors just as if nothing had happened and to await developments.

Both momentarily expected word of Uncle Billy's death. Three days passed and no word came. Finally they were about to conclude that he had dropped dead from his dose of the poison in some obscure spot where no one had yet come along to discover him, when Uncle Billy, looking a little the worse for wear, but smiling all over, walked in rather nervously. The druggist was beside himself for joy.

"Glad to see you, Uncle Billy," he exclaimed, and repeated, "I am certainly glad to see you this morning.
I've got a bottle of the finest brand of whisky I want you to try."

"Sorry," answered Uncle Billy, "but the fact is the last time I was here I got some that was a little bit different from anything I ever had before.
But it was the finest I ever tasted, and I think I will stick to that."

And the old man, who, instead of being killed by the poison, had gotten a three days' jag on it, insisted on being allowed to sample the sulphuric acid again.

NEW IDEA FOR EXPRESS TRAINS.

Makes No Stops, But Drops Passengers Off at Stations.

A model of a new device was recently shown before the members of the British Association, by means of which it is possible to put passengers off at any station along a railroad without stopping the train.

The model showed a circular track.
The last carriage on the train was slipped as each station was passed, and passengers wishing to alight at the next station would proceed to the last carriage, the train being of course continuous on the American plan, so that access could be had right through. Then the slipped carriage had deposited its passengers and taken up a fresh load, it would be started and the next train would be allowed gradually to catch it up. It would then form part of the new train until, having passed a sufficient number of stations, it came to be the last carriage again, when it would be once more slipped. Of course the cars would be electrically driven, and the author exhibited a model showing how by an electrical device it could be shown in the separate car and in the overtaking train how far the two were apart.

Life's Scars.

They say the world is round, and yet I often think it square.
So many little hurts we get From corners here and there, But one great truth is life's best found.
While journeying to the west—
The only folks who really wound
Are those we love the best.
The man you thoroughly despise Can rouse your wrath, 'tis true; Annoyance in your heart will rise At things mere strangers do.
But those are only passing ill;
This rule all lives will prove,
The rankling wound which aches and thrills
Is dealt by hands we love.

The choicest garb, the sweetest grace, Are oft to strangers shown;
The careless mien, the frowning face Are given to our own.
We flatter those we scarcely know, We please the fleeting guest,
And deal full many a thoughtless blow To those who love us best.

Love does not grow on every tree, Nor true hearts yearly bloom; Aias for those who only see This cut across a tomb!
But, soon or late, the fact grows plain To all through sorrow's test, The only folks who give us pain
Are those we love the best.

The Evil of Complimentaries

One of the impositions to which newspapers have submitted for a long time is free advertising of theaters in exchange for complimentaries. Why it is difficult to explain. Catering to pleasure and conducted solely as a money making enterprise, this business of all others should pay for its advertising. Theatrical managers are beginning to see the superiority of newspaper advertising and in some places are using the press instead of billboards.
It is doubtful if any play could attract a large audience now without newspaper advertising, and it is a pity that publishers should make it cheap by accepting complimentary tickets in payment.
The Milbank (S. D.) Review takes what we believe to be the right position on this subject. In its issue of Oct. 30 it says:

Hereafter no so called "complimentary tickets" for theaters or entertainments will be received by the Review in pay for advertising. It will be a case of "cash both ways." If a "show" wants advertising, it can pay regular rates. If the editor wants to attend the "show," he will pay his way in.
This "complimentary" business has become an intolerable nuisance, and the Review has decided to "cut it out."
The custom has been for the advance agent of the "show" to hand in a string of press notices, etc., worth anywhere from $10 to $15, for which he gratuitously offers to "compliment" the office with a few measly tickets, worth say, from $1 to $2. If the editor and his family and printing office force should all want to attend the "show," it will take about eight tickets. The showman, either himself or through the local manager of the opera house, allots about four tickets to the "press" and considers that a great favor has been extended. Perhaps the "show" is worth going to see, but many times it is not and the time spent is worse than wasted.
It costs money to set type and print a newspaper, although many people have an idea that the printer can live on wind and alleged "complimentaries." This is to give notice that hereafter this class of advertising will be treated on correct business principles.—American Press.

How to Prevent Croup

It will be good news to the mothers of small children to learn that croup can be prevented. The first sign of croup is hoarseness. A day or two before the attack the child becomes hoarse. This is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy freely as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the rough cough appears, and it will dispel all symptoms of croup. In this way all danger and anxiety may be avoided. This remedy is used by many thousands of mothers and has never been known to fail. It is, in fact, the only remedy that can always be depended upon and that is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists.

It Was Doubtful.

"Do you know whether there are any fish in the lake or not?" asked the summer guest of the landlord as he returned after five hours of fishing without a bite.
"I wouldn't like to say," was the reply.
"Did you ever catch one?"
"No, sir."
"Ever hear of one being caught?"
"No. Last spring I drained the lake and refilled it and put in one fish.
He may have lived or he may have died. If living, you can catch him if you fish long enough. If dead, you might as well sit on the veranda and cuss about the beds and the table.
That's all; rates $2.50 per day and scenery thrown in."

A Cold Wave.

The forecast of sudden changes in the voice and a heavy cough may invade the sanctity of health in your own cuts the phlegm, draws out the inflammation, heals and soothes the mucous membranes and strengthens the lungs.

Beat So Violently,
Its Movement
Could Be Seen
Through Clothing.
Dr. Miles' Heart Cure
Cured Me.

No matter what's the matter with your heart, it will pay you to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. It is a great heart and blood tonic that cures by removing the cause. Try it for a short time and you will find that you are no longer short of breath after brief exertion; that you can sleep in any position with comfort and without the dread of smothering spells. It removes the symptoms and cures the disease. It strengthens the heart's action, enriches the blood and improves the circulation. It has cured heart disease when all else failed. It has brought relief when death seemed nigh.

"Since taking a number of bottles of Dr.
Miles' Heart Cure during the past year my health is better than for many years. I no longer experience any trouble from living on my left side, which disagreeable symptoms used to bother me greatly. The frequent spells of palpitation and fluttering that I was at that time subject to were most alarming.
At times my heart would beat so violently that the movement was noticeable through my clothing. Doctors said my heart was enlarged and I had frequent severe shooting pains through and in the region of my heart.
I think Dr. Miles' Heart Cure a great medicine and have always been able to secure great relief from its use. I am in good health now, considering that I am 60 years old. I wish you success."—ANDREW JACK-SON, Centerville, Wash.
