James Smith has commenced the construction of a 25x40 foot brick business house just north of the Egin canal on Bridge Street. The building will be used for a confectionery store.

C. C. Moore and H. G. Fuller were up at Squirrel Creek the forepart of the week looking after their farming lands. They report everybody in that country enthusiastic and hard at work.

Messrs. Clark and Houghton are putting in nearly 400 acres of grain this season on their big ranch just south of town. These men are the most extensive farmers, so far as we know, in Fremont county.

A quartet of the sports are contemplating a trip to Lucky Dog ranch in Island Park next week. The problem yet to be solved is the best means of transportation, wheels, runners or a boat. It's a little dry on this end but it's likely to get mighty wet on the other.

The brick are now being hauled on the ground for the veneering of the new Studebaker Wagon Company's building. The south part of Bridge street will present quite a metropolitan appearance before the summer is over on account of the new business houses now being constructed and those that are contemplated.

J. E. Fogg, who has been in Salt Lake for several days attending conference, returned home Saturday. He says he had a very pleasant trip, and that there were more Saints in the City of Zion than he ever saw before. Mr. Fogg says Frankie and Freddie are struggling along trying to gain some prominence in Utah, but no attention is paid them down there.

Harry C. Bucklin of the hardware firm of Tyler and Bucklin of Idaho Falls, was in the city over Sunday on business and also on a visit with his brother-in-law, Z. F. Yearian and family. Mr. Bucklin is a Fremont county tax payer although he is in business at the Falls. He is the possessor of a very fine ranch in the Camas Meadows country.

Chas Foster and Lorenzo Jeffs both of Bates, Teton Basin, were arrested last week and taken before Justice F. M. Moyle, of Driggs, on a charge of stealing 40 head of sheep from W. W. Talor of Driggs. County attorney, O. P. Soule conducted the hearing in behalf of the state, and succeeded in getting both parties bound over to the District court in the sum of $750 each. Attorney E. M. Holden appeared in behalf of the defendants.
