HAILEY, IDAHO.

Entered at the Postoffice at Hailey as Second Class Matter.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1922.

The death of President Allen of Girard College, Philadelphia, has called public attention to the provisions made in the will of Stephen Girard against Christianity being taught in the institution which he munificently founded. During Mr. Allen's illness neither his pastor nor any other Christian minister could visit him, and none could go within the college walls to take part in the funeral services. But the exclusion of ministers does not seem to have accomplished what Girard intended. The Sunday School Times says: "President Allen had himself done the work of a clergyman in that college while living; and at his funeral Christian services were there led by Christian laymen. After this his remains were taken into a neighboring church, where Christian liberality gave freer air; and there a score or more of prominent Christian clergymen united with a large assembly in paying another tribute of respect to the life and work of this distinguished Christian layman." The Girard heirs and the trustees of the fund are said to be a unit as to the propriety of teaching Christianity in the college, while technically obeying the will by excluding clergymen.

Two new wrinkles are charged upon the fashionable women of New York by a correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer. The first is fiddling. "It is not rare now to meet a finely dressed girl with a boy carrying one of those black, coffin-shaped boxes which formerly were lugged by professional musicians only. She is on her way to or from her violin lesson. Pretty soon she will stand up before the guests in her papa's parlor, tuck one end of the fiddle under her chin, and torture the company's ears while delighting their eyes. However horrid may be the noise produced, she will look well during the process of making it." The second freak of fashion is represented to be to pray on genuine prayer rugs from the East, such as a Mohammedan uses. "They are usually about three by four feet in size, and can be distinguished by the design, which always represents some large figure at one end and pointed at the other. Places are indicated for the hands and knees. Devout women procure the real things from an importer, and without facing Mecca, bumping their heads on the floor, or removing their shoes or stockings, like the sons of the Prophet, still actually do use them to kneel on while praying. They are said to be a great comfort."
