DRUGGISTS—The Quality Store
Salmon, Idaho

One foot of snow fell during the storm on the top of Leesburg divide. Mrs. F. P. McCracken returned home Sunday from a four weeks visit with her daughter, Mrs. Kood, over on Big creek.

It is reported that Dan Hurley who is operating the Last Chance mine over on Big creek has recently struck a very rich vein of fine gold ore in that mine.

Cleveland Bros. from May, were in town the first of the week. They brought down some of the parties connected with the water suit from that place.

Elias Reed has recently disposed of his ranch at Eagle station to some parties from near Spokane, Wash. Mr. Reed gives possession soon and will leave for Idaho Falls to reside.

James Long, who has been laid up for several weeks on account of an injury received at the saw mill, is able to be about town by the use of crutches, and expects to be able to return to the mill on Wagon Hammer creek soon.

The members of the high school who went to May and Challis the last of the week report a fine time. They were royally entertained at both places. They gave the play at May Friday night and at Challis Saturday night returning to Salmon Sunday.

The last of the week a mining expert came in from the outside and immediately went over the hill to the Yellow Jacket mine to which place he goes to examine the mine and see the best method to use in taking care of the ore. A rich strike has been reported to have been made there lately. A vein 30 feet wide is reported to have been discovered bearing good values of gold, copper, silver and lead. One of the miners who came from there says that the report is true with the exception that the vein is only twenty feet wide instead of thirty.

Miss Eliza Reed, a sister of Elias Reed of Eagle station, was an outgoing passenger Tuesday morning for Idaho Falls. Miss Reed recently closed a successful term of school down the Salmon river and returns to her home to remain permanently. Her brother will soon follow and take up his residence there. The community will regret the departure of these fine young people but wish them well in their new home.

While looking over the late issue of his home paper this week Judge McCracken read the sad news of the death of a nephew in Kansas. The boy's name is Alexander Long and is a son of James Long, a brother of Mrs. McCracken; also a son of John Long, Sr. of this place. The boy came to his death by being kicked and trampled to death by a horse. He was sitting upon the horse's back when it became frightened and threw him off. The boy held on to the reins and was kicked and trampled so that he received injuries from which he died the next day. Alexander Long spent several weeks here last summer visiting his relatives in this vicinity, coming out with the family of John Long, an uncle. He was about sixteen years of age.

Elias Beed, of Eagle station, was a Salmon visitor the first of the week. Mrs. T. J. Stroud has been with her son at the Hot Springs several days of this week.

John Neal, who for the last year has been attending the Agricultural school at Manhattan, Kansas, returned several days ago after having completed his course there. He took a course in dairying and stock-raising and now returns to Lemhi to put into practice that which he has learned while at school.

The regular meeting of Hugh Duncan Chapter O. E. S. was held Tuesday evening. Aside from the regular business it was the occasion for the annual visit of the Grand Matron, who gave a short review of her visits to the other chapters of the state. On behalf of the chapter the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Dempsey, very gracefully presented the Grand Matron with a handsome silver bread plate. This gift is most deeply appreciated and highly prized by the recipient. Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd, of Lemhi, returned Friday from Dillon and the Big Hole country where they were summoned by the death of Mrs. Shepherd's father, Mr. Harrison a prominent rancher of that part of the state. Enjoying What Others Win By ORRISON SWETT MARDEN

In his "Citizen of the World" Goldsmith describes a mandarin who appeared in a blaze of diamonds, and who was very ostentatiously thanked by a person in the crowd. "What does the man mean?" the mandarin exclaimed. "Friend, I never gave thee any of my jewels." "No," replied the stranger, "but you have let me look at them, and that is all the use you can make of them yourself; so there is no difference between us, except that you have the trouble of watching them, and that is an enjoyment I do not desire."

The habit of feeling rich because you have developed the faculty of extracting wealth from everything you touch is riches, indeed. Why should we not feel rich in all that our eyes happen to have the title deed? Why should I not enjoy the beautiful gardens of the wealthy and their grounds, just as if I owned them? As I pass by I can make my own the wealth of color. The beauty of plants and lawn and flowers and trees are all mine. The title deed of another does not cut off my esthetic ownership. The best part of the farm, the landscape, the beauty of the brook and the meadow, the slope of the valley, the song of the birds, the sunsets, cannot be shut up within the title deed; they belong to the eye that can carry them away, the mind that can appreciate them.

This ability to gather enjoyment from all sorts of sources is a divine gift. It broadens the life, deepens the experience and enriches the whole nature. It is a great force in self-culture.

The secret of happiness is in a cheerful, contented mind. "He is poor who is dissatisfied; he is rich who is contented with what he has," and can enjoy what others own.

Some people are so mean and stingy, so uncharitable and narrow, so bigoted and suspicious, that they never open their natures wide enough to take in the riches all about them, the beauty with which they come in contact. They are so jealous and envious and small, that they are afraid to throw open the doors of their hearts. The result is, their lives are pinched and starved. A person must be magnanimous and large-hearted, to be able to absorb the wealth and beauty that are worth while.

I know a poor man who really enjoyed more than any rich man I know of, simply because early in life he learned to enjoy things without owning them to such an extent that he never seemed to have the slightest envy or jealousy in connection with the property of others, but rather showed gratitude to those who owned them. He was such a sweet soul that all doors were open to him, because he radiated sunshine and good cheer.

It does not matter how poor or how unfortunate you are, you can enjoy, without the trouble of owning or caring for them, millions and millions of dollars' worth of works of art, and things of rarest beauty, almost as well as though they were your own. Think what it costs to maintain our great city parks, with all their wonders of beauty and comfort, the palatial public buildings, the fine residences, beautiful private grounds and gardens and objects of beauty everywhere which you can enjoy without money—and yet you may say you own nothing. He has missed the finest lesson of experience who has not learned how to enjoy without owning.

"HOMING INSTINCT" IN CRABS Existence of it is Recognized, But Scientists Admit That it Puzzles Them.

Noted naturalists of Great Britain have recently discovered the extraordinary and surprising faculty in certain crabs to find their way back almost unbelievable distances to their birthplace and original feeding grounds. Sir Isaac Newton once declared that with all his grand discoveries he was nothing but a child picking sea shells from the beach by the great ocean of truth. The students of animal behavior, such as Professors Jennings, Mast, Watson and others, since this discovery of a "homing instinct" in crabs, are more convinced than ever of Newton's wisdom.

The scientific accounts of the crabs "walk" describes many of them, and in particular a male and a female of these creatures, caught at Yorkshire, England, and transported to Skegness in Lincolnshire, which crawled all the way back to exactly the place they had left.

Traps had been set in the place where they were originally captured and the shellfish experts awaited with great skepticism the results of the unusual experiment.

All investigations of how and why crabs migrate back to their home, as in the case of pigeons, have proved so far fruitless.

Thos. Pyeatt, of Lemhi, was a Salmon visitor the first of the week.

Survivor Crandall was doing some surveying in the neighborhood of Lemhi the last of the week and the first of this.

It is reported that M. L. Emigh and some Butte parties have taken a bond on the mining claims of Jack Torney. These claims are located on the west side of the Salmon above the Shoup ranch. They are said to be very good copper prospects and the gentlemen will begin development work soon.

Water Case in Court.

A case came up in the Probate court Tuesday morning which was brought down from near May. The case was one in which Robt. Shannon, water master, accused Rufus Wells of raising a head gate which he had closed.

Judge McCracken dismissed the suit on the grounds that it did not comply with a section of law which requires the water master to be sworn in by a competent person and to give bonds before he is an authorized water master. This had not been done and the case was dismissed on those grounds. Before leaving Mr. Shannon complied with the requirements and is now a duly qualified officer.

Attorney Rees represented the state and Attorney Glennon represented the defendant.

Sullivan-Bartl Wedding.

The marriage of Roland Sullivan and Miss Nellie Bartl was solemnized last Thursday, April 29, 1915, at the home of the bride's parents at Northfork. Rev. Crabtree of Salmon performed the ceremony, which took place at 2:30 p. m.

The young people were supported by Miss Mary Dean as bride's maid and Robert Bartl as best man. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present and witnessed the ceremony, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Leabo of Ulysses, Mr. and Mrs. Trowbridge of Gibbonsville, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones of Northfork, and Mrs. Della Reynolds, mother of the groom. Immediately following the ceremony a dinner was given at the Northfork hotel.

The bride is a young lady well and favorably known in that community and well fitted for the new station in life. The groom is an industrious and steady young man of good habits and the determination to make good.

The young couple will reside on the Morgan ranch east of town for the coming year. The Recorder joins with the friends of the happy couple in wishing them a goodly share of happiness and prosperity.
