INTEREST SHOWN IN FAIR PROVES ITS VALUE

The third annual session of the Lemhi county fair is drawing to a close and with the setting of the sun tonight will have passed into history. The fondest hopes of those who had charge of the affairs have been more than realized and the future standing of the fair is settled. On account of the time of publication and the lack of time, it will be impossible to cover the events of the three days in this issue and the greater portion will have to be continued to next week. From the reports of those in charge of every department it is learned that the exhibits are larger and of a much better grade than those shown at previous fairs. This was especially true of the agricultural, horticultural and livestock departments. In these departments is noticed the greatest improvement in the class of exhibits shown. The vegetables showed greater care in growing and preparing for exhibition, the fruits more neatness in packing, and the livestock in the greater number of high grade animals shown. That these fairs are doing a vast amount of good to the ranchers especially here can now be no question. A comparison of the exhibits of this fair with those of former ones would satisfactorily answer the question, "Does it pay?" The weather throughout was ideal and everything seemed to work for the success of the undertaking and the pleasure of those attending. The program of sports filled all of the time not needed for seeing the different departments. The band furnished music throughout the day and evening. The stock parade was composed mostly of horses and none better can be found in the state than were shown here. To sum it up in a nutshell, the opinion of one who had seen most of the fairs of southern Idaho this fall would count more than our individual opinion, therefore we quote him as nearly as possible. He has seen at least six county fairs in the southern part of the state. With the exception, perhaps of grain, which in some parts are made a specialty, he saw nothing which compared favorably with what he saw here. While the display of fruits might be greater and of a larger variety, yet they did not come up to that shown here. Even the livestock shown here outshone any he had seen at other fairs. This is saying a good deal and should encourage those who are trying to improve the conditions of all lines of industry for Lemhi county. The sports were all that were anticipated. No better races were ever run on this track than were put on at this fair. Prof. Brooks, the aeronaut, made two ascensions each day, which were thrilling enough to satisfy anyone. The trapeze performing was wonderful indeed and highly pleased the large crowd. SCHOOL EXHIBIT. The public school of the pupils of the public schools of Lemhi county is an interesting study and is deserving of more than a passing mention. The improvement over that of last year is very noticeable. Some schools had an assortment of work, while others

INSTITUTE PROVES TO BE A PLEASING SUCCESS

One of the most successful and interesting institutes ever held in Lemhi county began its sessions in the High School Building on Monday morning. This year, Dr. E. O. Sisson, State Commissioner of Education, was able to be present for part of the time. All who met him fell under the spell of his masterful personality. His addresses were models of eloquence on matters of vital importance not only to teachers alone but to the whole community. Those in attendance at the institute have also been fortunate to have the opportunity of listening to President G. A. Axline, of the Albion State Normal School; Prof. J. C. Werner, head of the rural educational department at Albion; and Miss Margaret Jeffery, supervisor of primary training at the Albion Normal School. President Axline, in addition to the splendid manner in which he has acted as conductor of this institute, has delivered several forceful addresses which have been greatly appreciated. Prof. J. C. Werner, who is an expert on the subject of rural education and economics, has given a series of very meaty talks, full of practical suggestions. Miss Jeffery has discussed Primary Methods in a helpful and interesting manner. The outstanding feature of this institute has been the delightfully free and unconventional way in which all present have been free to express their individual opinions, and to take part in the discussion of every subject presented. In this way an interchange of thought has been brought about and the meetings have been full of life. Among Lemhi county teachers who gave addresses were Supt. Casterlin, Mr. Rand, Mr. B. C. d'Easum, Mrs. Casterlin, Mrs. Emigh and Miss Carnes. Tuesday evening at the Grand Theatre a number of stereopticon views were thrown upon the screen, many of them being scenes of cities and places in the seat of the great battle ground of Europe which were of special interest at this time. President Axline gave a very good description of these pictures. The views of rock formations and places of interest in Southern Idaho were also appreciated. He was greeted with a full house.

An outstanding feature of the Institute has been the especial consideration given to the work of the teachers in country districts. Lemhi county teachers are fully awake to the great movement which is spreading over the nation for the betterment of educational, social and economic conditions in the rural districts. Miss Jeffery, supervisor of primary training at the Albion Normal School, in her talks upon primary work, called upon parents who were attending the Institute to give particulars of their individual ideas of the best ways of educating young children. There have been interesting discussions on the subjects of Reading and English. It is agreed that public school children are weak in English. One of the reasons for this is the fact that there is not enough reading done in the homes. On Wednesday afternoon Mr. G. A. Axline entertained those present at the Institute with two recitations which were greatly enjoyed. Mr. Axline is a skilled elocutionist with much dramatic ability. TEACHERS PRESENT Mrs. M. L. specialized on a few things. The schools which had their work on display may feel proud of the results of their work and let us hope that the example which they have set will stimulate others to greater efforts before another year shall have rolled around. On account of the large assortment only a mention of the most important work can be given. Tendoy was well represented with specimens of penmanship and relief maps. May had a larger variety of work, although they have had but a short time in which to prepare for the fair. Their work consisted of drawing, compositions, needlework, basket weaving, crocheting. Among this lot was an immense rutabaga which was grown by a small boy, Glen Raymond, only about 10 years old, who planted the seed, watered and cared for it and had written a composition upon the subject. The only thing he could not do was to pull it up, which he had to call upon his papa to do for him. Iron creek school's work consisted mostly of drawing and maps, which were very good indeed. Hayden creek had a very good exhibit of free hand drawing. Sudy creek comes into the ring this year with a small display of penmanship and drawing. These were very good and we hope that next year this school will surprise us with their work; Kirtley creek had some excellent products and relief maps and some excellent penmanship. Among this display was a neat little bird house made by Jack Goforth, which is deserving of special mention. The work of the Salmon schools consisted of basket work, weaving, penmanship and some composition work. It was not as extensive as last year, if we remember rightly. We have saved the largest and best until the last. This is the exhibit of the Baker schools. Their work consisted of compositions, penmanship, sewing, weaving, basket work, drawing, cut work, water color work, a collection of wild flowers, bird houses, and last but not least, the doll house furnished complete, made and furnished by the primary pupils. This school also has a bird club and a horse club and had books on these two subjects filled with pictures and compositions on each subject. Their display was certainly interesting and wonderful. The premiums have not been awarded yet, but if Baker does not carry off the prize we are missing our guess. The premiums and the names of the teachers will appear next week.

GOOD PROGRAM AT RECEPTION

If the Reception given to the teachers of the county and the visiting instructors Monday evening was any criterion of the success of the Teachers Institute which was held in Salmon this week, it was a decided success. The program as given in last week's issue of this paper was carried out with the exception of the reading which was to have been given by Mrs. Herndon, who was unable to respond. The reading by Mrs. Casterlin was a selection in negro dialect and was very much enjoyed. The musical numbers were well rendered and greatly appreciated. At the close of the musical part of the program Pres. Axline introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. Edward O. Sisson, Commissioner of Education in Idaho, who took on the subject of "Plan of School Administration in Idaho." As a preliminary to his address Dr. Sisson expressed his pleasure at seeing the fine high school building which was the first thing he saw when approaching the city. He was pleased with the building as equipped and regretted that the exercises could not have been held in the auditorium of that building. He said that the school should be the rallying ground around which the social affairs of the community should circle. As briefly as possible Dr. Sisson outlined the steps which led to the adoption of the present form of school management. The Idaho system differs from all others in its complete unity of the school affairs of the state, from the primary grades to the six state educational institutions of the state. The entire system is under the care and supervision of this state board of education, which is composed of five members appointed by the governor, the state superintendent being an ex-officio member. This board has an enormous amount of work and responsibility. Before this plan was evolved there was always more or less rivalry and jealousies among the different educational institutions of the state, which now are working in harmony for the best interests of education in Idaho. This board also seeks and furnishes information on various educational subjects to teachers, school trustees and others interested in education, which information may be had for the asking. After enumerating the many functions of the board he summed it up by saying that its policy was to recognize at all times the fact that the schools belong to the people, that they are for and must be supported by the people. This work is your work it must have your attention, your thought and your support. If it is going wrong anywhere, it is your right and duty to seek to have that wrong corrected. If it is going right, it is your duty and privilege to give your hearty support toward its fuller success. No one could listen to Dr. Sisson and not become enthused with the subject of education. He is surely doing a great deal of good throughout the state. After the completion of the program the floor was cleared and those who cared to indulged in dancing a couple of hours. Delicious punch was served by some of the high school girls. MULVANEY-KOBBE. Cards are out announcing the marriage of Miss Ethel Kobbe and Edward Mulvaney, both of May, Idaho. The marriage was solemnized Sunday at Mackay, Idaho. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Kobbe. She has been a teacher in our schools and is one of the thoroughly good and substantial young women of that community. As a teacher she was a success, in fact there is no station in life which she will have occasion to occupy but what she will make a success. For some time she has been the superintendent of the Sunday School at May, from which she will be greatly missed. The groom is a splendid young man, a rancher by occupation, who came to this part of the county about a year ago, and has won a high place in the community. The young people will continue to reside in the Paniswarol valley where they have so many friends who will extend hearty congratulations and best wishes for their future happiness. Norman Dutton, of Lemhi, was in attendance at the fair this week.

AGRICULTURE. The Agricultural department of the fair covers a wide range embracing samples of all cereals and vegetables grown in Lemhi county including samples of all the grasses and legumes making in the aggregate by far the best agricultural exhibit ever shown in the county. The display of cabbage in every variety is particularly noticeable beginning with the size most desirable for family use and grading upward to samples weighing as high as thirty pounds. Potatoes in great variety and of (Continued on Page Two.) MRS. J. E. CROOK Tuesday afternoon at the Adventist church in Salmon was held the funeral of Mrs. J. E. Crook, notice of whose death was made in the last issue of this paper. The services were conducted by Rev. Wagner, of Pocatello, who was here holding meetings. He read a portion of the 103rd Psalm for his scripture lesson, from which he preached a very comforting and helpful sermon. A choir composed of Rev. Wagner, Miss Myrtle Moge, Mrs. E. B. Randolph and Paul Downing furnished some very appropriate music, the favorite song of the deceased, "There'll be no Dark Valley When Jesus Comes" was very sweetly and solemnly rendered. The pall bearers were Messrs. J. M. McPherson, Frank Havemann, G. C. Mathewson, George Geertson, C. Bates, and B. B. Stocker. Mary I. Crook was born in Missouri and died at Blackfoot Sept. 30th, 1915. At the time of her death she was 42 years, 8 months and 2 days of age. She was married to J. E. Crook about 25 years ago. To this union were born seven children, one son was accidentally killed a few years ago. Two of the remaining children are married. For the past seven years the deceased has been a member of the Adventist church of this place and when her health permitted, took an active part in church work. Besides her husband and children she leaves many personal friends to mourn her death, which was extremely sad.
