BODY OF BOISE BANKER FOUND

Frozen Body of B. E. Corbin Was Found in the Mountains Near Site of the Camp

B. E. Corbin, vice president of the Union Savings, Building & Trust company, was lost November 19 south of Rea's pass in eastern Fremont county.

Missing man was last seen by Harry Lambertson while the two were trailing an elk south of the pass at noon on that day.

Three days later search was instituted by Lambertson and party but no clue was found leading to the fate of the missing man. H. E. Lee then took out a second searching party and returned without locating Corbin.

As last resort two experienced men were sent across country by Lee and they located the frozen body Friday, December 9. The body was returned to camp Saturday night, three weeks from the time Corbin was lost.

Body was shipped immediately to Boise for burial, arriving there Wednesday evening. Search for man is sensational chapter in history of west ern hunting.

The last chapter in the some what famous and remarkable case of B. E. Corbin, vice president of the Union Building, Savings & Trust company of Boise who disappeared three weeks ago last, Saturday while hunting for big game in the Tetona range, eastern Fremont county, was chronicled last night with the arrival of news announcing the discovery of his frozen body. He died from exposure to the bleak winds, deep snows and cold, three combining conditions that trapped the hunter on his last journey. Death took place some days ago, the exact date being impossible to tell. The two hunters and woodsmen, sent across country by E. H. Lee after he abandoned the search, located the body late Friday afternoon and struggling with it managed to stagger into the Big Springs camp Saturday evening. The first news of the discovery was not flashed to Boise until Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. The body arrived in Boise Wednesday evening.

DEATH BECKONS TO MRS. YOUNG

Seventeenth and Favorite Wife of President Young Passes Away Sunday Morning

Mrs. Harriet Amelia Folsom Young, seventeenth wife of the late Brigham Young, President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, commonly known as the Mormon church, died at her home in this city, South Temple and First West streets, Sunday morning at 4 o'clock. The cause of death was paralysis.

Mrs. Young was the daughter the late W. H. and Jereviah Eliza Clark Folsom, both of New England blue blood stock, and was born in the city of Buffalo, N. Y., August 23, 1838. Mrs. Young migrated with her parents to Utah, arriving in this valley October 3, 1860. In that year she met Brigham Young and she was married to him January 24, 1863, thereby becoming his seventeenth wife.

Mrs. Young was well educated and far above the average of her sex in intelligence. In the early days of Salt Lake she was considered the finest vocalist and most accomplished pianiste in the city. In person she was comely and winsome, and she was an excellent entertainer, and all through her long life she enjoyed the friendship of a host of admiring friends. In nothing, perhaps, was the refinement of her character more exemplified than in the artistic arrangement of her home, where she has resided for the last thirty years. She was a lover of art, and the rooms of her house are adorned with a number of valuable paintings by noted artists of this country and Europe.

In works of charity Mrs. Young was active but unostentatious, and many an unfortunate will miss the bounty of an unseen giver.—Salt Lake Tribune.

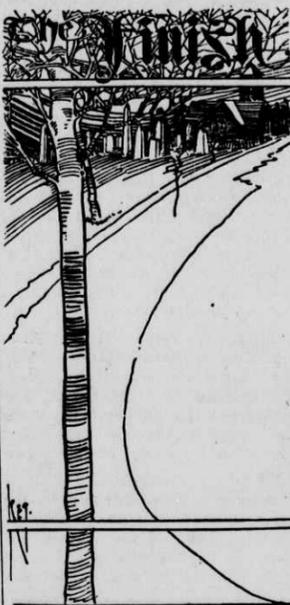

In setting up the notice of Mrs. George Wernett's death last week the operator stated that she died Thursday instead of Tuesday.

THE ONLOOKER

by WILBUR D. NESEBIT

Great men have had wondrous and lengthy careers. Have thrilled us by actions sublime. Have written their deeds on the page of the years. And carved on the tablets of time the record of striving and struggling and stress. Of driving ahead till they drop— But this is the sum of the great and the less: There's always a tombstone on top.

Through ages the sages have delved into lore. And sought for the secrets of life. Have traveled the paths that were traveled before. Have pondered on peace and on strife— Yet after we study the work that they did. Their musings and dreamings we lope. Until at the last this one truth we find hid: There's always a tombstone on top.

Humanity struggles for wealth and for place. It labors for silver and gold. And when it has come to the end of the race. Must leave all it has in its hold. The ships may sail on and the wheels still may turn. The throngs seek the store and the shop. But this is the lesson that all of us learn: There's always a tombstone on top.

Fair ladies have led in the ball and the court. The belles and the beaux had their day: They smiled on through good and through evil report. Content with their pomp and their sway. But where are they now? This we learn from the belle. And the roystering blade and the fop: The whole of life's story these few words will tell— There's always a tombstone on top.

'Tis dimmed in the glittering bauble of fame. 'Tis breathed in the sigh of defeat. 'Tis clicked in the dice that are thrown in the game. 'Tis one in fair play or deceit; he rush and the struggle, the deed and the dream. Must all at one tense moment stop. No matter what else in this world there may seem. There's always a tombstone on top.

Vexing. Our visitor from an alien land perches on us once more by his sinister huckling. "What is it now?" we ask, nervous. Taking a bunch of blue tape from his pocket, he makes a neat package of the political platforms of the last few campaigns and of the recent issues of the congressional record. "I was merely amused over the way our Democratic statesmen fight for protection and your Republican statesmen demand free trade."

Aggravated beyond endurance at the stolid noncomprehensiveness of the foreign mind, we sulk in silence.

Mingled Color Scheme. "Funny thing happened in my town last week," said the man from up the creek. "What was that?" asked the man from down the way. "Black, a white man, and White, a black man, thought a fellow named Brown was pretty green, and tried to sell him a gold brick. But Brown was well read, and he bluffed them; both—in fact, he got all the money they had."

"And now?" "And now Black and White are blue."

A Problem. "Should we announce our engagement before Christmas?" asks the enamored youth. "Wouldn't it be better to keep it a secret until after the first of the year, and then we will get Christmas presents from folks who otherwise wouldn't give us anything," suggested the maiden, fair and crafty.

"I know. But we would also have to spend a lot of money for gifts to others, ourselves. I wouldn't mind it, if we came out even, but all my girls usually send me things I don't want."

Post Graduate. "Is he an expert in debate," asks the man of his friend who is commending an attorney. "Is he? He has been married four times."

OVERTAXED

Hundreds of Blackfoot Readers Know What It Means

The kidneys are overtaxed; Have too much to do. They tell about it in many aches and pains— Backache, sidesache, headache, Early symptoms of kidney ills. Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Blackfoot citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well. Mrs. J. L. Wilson, R. F. D. No. 2, Blackfoot, Idaho, says: "I was subject to attacks of kidney complaints for about four years. This trouble came on suddenly, the first symptom being pains across the small of my back that obliged me to take to my bed for three or four days. For about four years I experimented with remedies of various kinds, but has unsuccessful in my efforts for relief until I took Doan's Kidney Pills. They proved very effective and in return for the benefit they brought me, I strongly recommend them." (Statement given Oct. 7, 1907.)

Re-Endorsement Mrs. Wilson was interviewed on June 13, 1910, and she said: "I still consider Doan's Kidney Pills first class kidney remedy. It gives me pleasure to confirm all I have previously said in favor of this preparation." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents.
