STRANGE STORIES.

WONDERFUL DOG WATCH.

A dog story, told by the Gazette, a paper published in Elberton, Ga. In last August Chas. Norman moved his family from the town of Flowery Branch to Elberton, more than one hundred miles distant. But in the hurry of moving, Mr. Norman forgot to let his dog Watch out of the kennel or dog house, and did not think of it until he and all his family were in the cars bound for Elberton. Little Willie Norman was very sorry, for he and Watch were particular friends, and, though the Gazette doesn't say so, it is likely that Willie cried over leaving Watch. One week went by and the Normans had nearly forgotten Watch, when the dog suddenly appeared while the family were at dinner in Elberton. Watch entered the room with an air of injured innocence and was soon welcomed by all hands. The strange thing about it is, now in the world Watch could have found the family. He probably followed the trail to the depot and into the same car, and rode in the car under the same seats that had been occupied by the family until the train stopped at Elberton.

A MEN HATCHES YOUNG ALLIGATORS.

There is no doubt that the newspapers tell of some queer things, but then it must be remembered how many queer things happen. Here is a story told by the Abbeville (La.) Meridian of last week: A lady residing at Cow Island, in this parish, wishing to "set" a hen, went into the field adjoining her residence where some of her chickens had been "laying," and produced some seventeen eggs, and placed them under the hen.
When in the course of human events the chickens were hatched, lo! and behold, there came forth four small-sized aligators. It is supposed that alligators from the adjoining marsh had deposited their eggs in the field, and she not knowing the difference, placed them under the hen. And what is more strange, the young alligators follow the mother hen around the premises as happy as a Colorado beetle in a potato patch.

A DANGLING ROOSTER.

Not very far behind the story of the hen that hatched the alligators is the story of a dancing rooster told by the Arabian of Wetumpka, Ala.: "We learn from Dr. T. B. Whitney that Mr. Samuel Spigener, living near Bayouville, entertained with a dancing rooster. Mr. Spigener called up his grower and offers him some dough, provided he will cut a "double shuffle," which the fowl proceeds at once to do to the detriment of the crowd. We have seen a dog churn butter, but we take of our hat to the Bayouville chicken that dances."

AN OWL ATTACKS A DOG.

The Port Jervis (N. Y.) Gazette tells how an owl attacked a dog: Charles H.
Westbrook is a blacksmith at Carpenter's Point. Sometimes he goes hunting.
Early this morning he hunted coons.
His dog espied an owl, and the owl espied the dog. The owl pitched into the dog fiercely, and had not the oonhunter discharged two barrels of shot into his owship there would probably have been a dead dog. It is not often that owls act so unbecomingly.

TABBY OPENS THE DOOR.

In the Alexandria (Va.) Gazette is a story of a cat owned by James F. Macheson, who lives near Centerville. Mr. Macheson has been troubled for some time by the mysterious opening of the door of his house. He watched the other night, and saw that it was the cat. Tabby was in the habit of climbing up the door, holding to the knob with one paw and turning it with the other until the door opened.

A CHEERFUL FACE.—Carry the radiance of your soul in your face; let the world have the benefit of it. Let your cheerfulness be felt for good, wherever you are, and let your smiles be scattered like sunbeams—"on the just as well as the unjust." Such a disposition will yield you a rich reward, for his happy effects will come home to you and brighten your moments of thoughts. Smiles are the higher and better response of nature to the emotion of the soul. Let the children have benefit of them, those little ones who need the sunshine of the heart to educate them, and would find a level for their boyant nature in the cheerful, loving faces of those who lead them. Let them not be kept from the middle-aged, who need the encouragement they bring. Give your smiles to the aged. They come to them like the quiet rain of Summer, making fresh and verdant the long and wearisome path of life. Be gentle and indulgent to all; love the true, the beautiful, the just, the holly.

Eugenie, before she saw Louis Napoleon, dreamed that he was to become ruler of France, and laid a plan to release him from the prison of Ham.

NO. 10

THE SORROWS OF GENIUS.

[Yonkers Gazette.]
Homer was a beggar.
Spencer died in want.
Cervantes died of hunger.
Terrence, the dramatist, was a slave.
Dryden lived in poverty and distress.
Sir Walter Raleigh died on the scaffold.
Butler lived a life of penury and died poor.
Bacon lived a life of meanness and distress.
Plautus, the Roman comic poet, turned a mill.
Paul Borghese had fourteen trades, and yet starved with all.
Tasso, the Italian poet, was often distressed for five shillings.
Steele, the humorist, lived a life of perfect warfare with bailiffs.
O'way, the English dramatist, died prematurely, and through hunger.
Chatterton, the child of genius and misfortune, destroyed himself at 18.
Bentivoglio was refused admittance into a hospital he had himself erected.
Savage died in a prison at Bristol, where he was confined for the debt of $40.
The death of Collins was through neglect, first causing mental derangement.
Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield" was sold for a trifle to save him from the grip of the law.
Fielding lies in the burying ground of the English factory at Lisbon, without a stone to mark the spot.
Milton sold his copyright of "Paradise Lost" for $75, at three payments, and finished his life in obscurity.
Camoens, the celebrated writer of the "Lusiad," the great Portuguese epic, ended his days, it is said, in an almshouse, and, at any rate, was supported by a faithful black servant, who begged in the streets of Lisbon for him.

INITIALED COIN.—It is doubtful whether many of the fortunate possessors of twenty-dollar pieces have noticed the three illegitimate initials "J. B. L." strapped them on the base of the neck of the medallion or head of the Goddess of Liberty. It requires sharp eyes to observe them, and their outline or formation cannot be fairly traced without the aid of a strong magnifying glass.
They are the initials of J. B. Longaquer, an operative officer, formerly engraver of the United States Mint at Philadelphia, but now deceased. He engraved the dies of the $20, $10, $5 and $2 50 pieces, without doubt the most beautiful coin in the world. There may also be seen, with the aid of a glass, the initial "M." on the extreme lower edge of the base of the medallion of the standard dollar, being the initial of Morgan the engraver, who was imported from London by the late H. K. Linderman, the Director of Mints, especially to engrave the die. This gentleman appears to have permitted the fancies of his heart as well as his patriotism to quicken his fingers in his work, as the features are supposed to be copied from those of a young lady school-teacher in Philadelphia, whose beauty made such an impression on him that he transferred it to one of the coins of her native country. by turning the coin partially around and will also observe, through the skillful arrangement of the hair, the head of the British lion, neither the trade dollar nor the "old dollar of our daddies," the former engraved by William Barber, Engraver of the United States Mint at Philadelphia, and the latter by J. B.
Longaquer, formerly of the same mint, and both much handsomer coins, has any initials on them. The same applies to all our subsidiary coins.—[S. F.
