

It is said that General Butler has expressed the hope that he may live long enough "to ride in a car made of iron and with a rounded top, in which will be an apparatus for electrical lighting. The car will float, and it will be so padded that in case of an accident no one can be hurt."

The Belmont Courier says the Pacific furnaces, used by the Belmont Mining Company, have proved to be the best for the base ores in this vicinity. The average chlorinations of Belmont ores are ninety-three per cent., which is the best work ever done in Nye County.

Luning will have a copper smelter before it ceases its efforts. The latest proposition is that some New York parties, who intend to build a ten-ton smelter, with which to work the Copper Basin ore. The furnace has already been purchased, and there is a strong probability that work will soon begin.

Last Thursday evening as the men were about to come off shift at the Blue Belle mine at Arum, Thomas Highland met with a terrible accident, which caused his death thirty hours afterwards. He had been setting off several blasts, but the "snuff," as he thought, having failed to ignite the fuse on one of them, he went back to "resnuff" it when the blast went off and he received its full force in the head and side.

Some two weeks ago the Reno papers published what purported to be an account of the killing of a medicine man by the Piutes in Buffalo Meadows, in what was formerly known as Rook county. Chief Naches has just received a letter from Lee Winnemucca, who is at Buffalo Meadows, denying the assertion that the old medicine man had been murdered.

Bread leavened by the Lilliputian process may be very palatable to the heathen Chinese, but we much prefer to have ours leavened in another way. John, when he has a monopoly of the restaurant business, and his patrons are of the Caucasian race, which is the case in Ward, does not hesitate to palm off all the filth in disguise on his patrons.

He gave the ruffians the utmost penalty provided by the law.

SENATOR FRYE'S BANK ACCOUNT.—"I see," said Senator Frye, "that a Washington paper, in a very complimentary notice, sets me down as a poor man, not worth over $25,000. That's too much," said Mr. Frye. "But the fellow who wrote that does not know the reason I am so poor. It came about in this wise: I was brought up in a Quaker family, and when, in my boyhood, I got a chance to go up to Boston my Quaker grandfather gave me $5 to spend. I did not know any boys in Boston, and I could think of no way to have $5 worth of fun without boys. So I kept the money in my pocket. When I got home my grandfather asked me how I spent the $5, and I, with the air of one who had done a virtuous action, said, 'I did not spend it at all, grandfather; I saved it and have it in my pocket.' Whereupon my grandfather said, 'You may give me back the money, William. I gave you that money to spend at Boston.' Ever since that," said the Senator, "I have known better than to save money."—(Lewiston (Me.) Journal.)

A DANGEROUS HORSE.—One of the horses driven by V. K. Compton and Wm. Mahoney to Washington district recently, running short of grub one day, helped himself to a box of giant powder. Just as the last stick was being devoured the boys discovered the danger of their situation. To cut the rope that fastened the powder-charged animal to the wagon was but the work of a moment, and, being under the serious impression that hell was not far from that horse, they made all haste to get out of juxtaposition to that perambulating magazine; and none too soon, for scarcely had they reached a place of safety, when a terrific explosion was heard, and the earth shook even as though shaken by an earthquake. And the horse, Oh, where was he? Well, ask the boys.—(Frisco Times.)

In the door yard of Delos Hotchkiss, at Cheshire, Conn., stands an apple tree, which is supposed to be the oldest, largest and most fruitful in New England. It is the last survivor of the orchard which was set out by the first settlers of the neighborhood, and popular belief fixes its age at 180 years. The tree is sixty feet high, and the tips of its uttermost branches are 104 feet apart. Mr. Hotchkiss affirms that he has picked 125 bushels of sound apples from it in a single year.

A new penal code abolishing the death penalty has been submitted to the Italian Parliament. In discussing it, an Italian paper recalls the fact that in the last century a correspondent of the Vienna Diarium was beheaded in Rome for an article offensive to Pope Clement XI. The unlucky journalist was the learned Abbe Goetano Volpini, and his execution took place on the 5th of February, 1720.

"Do you know why you and George remind me of two shades of one color?" asked a young lady of a companion, who had been engaged for many years. "No," was the reply. "I'll tell you, then; it's because you don't match."

The poet who wrote "the child is father to the man" was somewhat disconcerted when a practical friend asked him how the case would be in the event of the child being a girl.

ST. TERESA.

The Reverend Entertained for Her by the Alvas.

(J. A. Froude in Quarterly Review.)

The Alva family had the deepest reverence for Teresa. The Great Duke was gone, but his son who succeeded him, and his brother, the prince of St. Johns, inherited his feelings. They were absent at the removal and had not been consulted. When they heard of it, they held their town to have been injured and their personal honor to have been outraged. They were powerful. They appealed to Rome and were successful. Sixtus V, in 1586, sent an order to give them back their precious possessions, and Teresa, who had been a wanderer so long, was sent again upon her travels. A splendid tomb had been prepared in the convent chapel at Alva, and the body, brought back again from Alva, lay in state in the choir before it was deposited there. The chapel was crowded with spectators, the duke and duchess were present with a train of nobles, the Provincial Gratian and a throng of dignitaries, lay and ecclesiastical. The features were still earth-stained, but were otherwise unaltered. The miraculous perfume was overpowering. Ribera contrived to kiss the sacred foot and touch the remaining arms. He feared to wash his hands afterwards, lest he should wash away the fragrance; but he found, to his delight, that no washing affected it. Gratian took another finger for himself; a nun in an ecstasy bit out a portion of skin, and for this time the obsequies were ended. Yet, again, there was another discomfitment, that Teresa might be more magnificently entombed, and the General of the Carmelites came from Italy that he might see her. This time the Pope had enjoined that there should be no more mutilation; but nothing could restrain the hunger of affection, illustrious persons who were present, in spite of Pope and decency, required relics and were not to be denied. The General distributed portions among the Alva sisterhood. The eye-witness who describes the scene was made happy by a single finger-joint. The General himself shocked the feelings or roused the envy of the bystanders by tearing out an entire rib. Then it was over, and all that remained of Teresa was left to the worms.

A MOON WITHIN REACH.—A remarkable feature of the two satellites of Mars, which were discovered about six years ago by Professor Asaph Hall, is the proximity of the inner one to the planet, its distance from the center of the latter body being about 6,000 miles, and from the surface less than 4,000. "If," says Professor Newcomb, "there are any astronomers on Mars with telescopes and eyes like ours, they can readily find out whether this satellite is inhabited, the distance being less than one-sixtieth that of the moon from us."

The Four Hills mine, in Plumas county, which in a month or two yielded more than $100,000, was crossed by a trail which has been traveled every summer since that county was inhabited by the white man, and at one time a shaft was sunk within a few inches of the rich deposit.—(San Francisco M. & S. Press.)

The Los Angeles Express says the Calico mines have adopted a peculiar nomenclature for the denizens of the three southern counties who live there. San Bernardino men are known as "Allfalfa Chewers," Los Angeles men as "Pumpkin Rollers," and San Diego men as "Bee Herders."

"No," said George Henry, "I didn't go there to court the girl, only called in occasionally to pass the time, you know; but the first thing I knew they had me up for breach of promise, and so, you see, I went to court at last."

The calves on some of the ranches in the vicinity of Monterey are troubled with warts, which vary from the size of a ten-cent piece to that of a silver dollar, and which come on all parts of their bodies and heads.

A young child was taken to church in Quebec, Canada, the other day, and baptized, and when the parents and friends returned home the child was found dead in its wraps.

Dr. Gallagher, who is a prisoner at Chatham, it is reported, offers to make a revelation of the whole American dynamite conspiracy upon condition of his release.

It begins to look as if Bartholdi's Statue of Liberty would die of old age before the people of New York get money enough to set it up.
