Valentines! Valentines!! Valentines!!! at Shier's.

The public schools will open next Monday.

A Bottle of Trib should be in every household.

Shier is in receipt of a fine lot of Valentines; neat, unique and pretty.

Little "Gussie" Werner, it is now thought, is on the road to recovery from his serious attack of diphtheria.

James Higgins and R. A. McNelly have succeeded Samson & Francis in the corner saloon opposite R. Martin's.

We learn that Mrs. Alex Brown died at her home in California last month. Mrs. Brown was well-known here.

The Governor of Arizona has pardoned Johnson, (colored) who was here some three years ago, and who killed a man with whom he was traveling.

Don't wait till the last minute, but before it is too late purchase a Valentine at Shier's for your best girl.

An electric light has been placed in front of the hose company No. 2. Building, which will be welcomed by the citizens of Lacour St.

The P. C. M. & R. Co. had their regular pay day on Saturday last and disbursed among the boys between fifty and sixty thousand dollars.

The snow that has been falling for the last two days is having the good effect to cover up and temporarily relieve some of the sanitary problem.

The Italian who was arrested last week for an assault was heard to say after the trial. "The next time they come fight me I run all the same like one g-d-d-m deer."

The County Commissioners, at their regular meeting held Tuesday, Feb. 2, 1922 fixed the tax levy for the year 1922 as follows: Pioche, $3.35; County, $3.25 on each $100 valuation of property.

Messrs C. and L. Morrison of Frisco, Utah, were in town last week. The boys are of the old time sort and they had an enjoyable visit with many of their former Frisco friends, before going back home.

R. A. Martin & Co's drug store is about to move to a better location, farther up town. The new quarters are just one door north of the Godbe Mercantile Co's store.

Mr. A. Werner met with a severe accident last Sunday by a fall at his residence on Meadow Valley Street. His wrist was severely cut and several stitches had to be taken. His spine was also injured and there is a likelihood of his being confined to his house for several weeks.

The P. C. M. & R. Co's newly appointed Asst. Supt. Mr. George Eames, of Colorado, arrived by private conveyance Tuesday. There was an air of satisfaction and general approval among the town people when, instead of a beaver and patent leathers, Mr. Eames presented the appearance of a typical westerner.

Last week Joseph Hadanadventarino (or something that sounds like that) was arraigned on the complaint of Jack Zuniani to answer to a charge of assault. The defendant practically pleaded guilty by admitting to have brushed the nose of complaining witness in a rather care less way, and was assessed $10 and costs which amounted to $17.50 more.

The report has come to us through two different sources that some one is tackling different parties around town for some article printed in the RECORD. If this party is on the war path with the RECORD staff why don't he call at the office, which is situated on Lacour street half a block from Main, not in Main street saloons. Get there, we are right on it.

Dr. H. C. Crowder called at the RECORD office on Tuesday morning for the purpose of making a denial of the charge which he claimed had been rumored about town to the effect that he was not a graduate of any medical college. Dr. Crowder produced a diploma from Rush Medical College of Chicago, Ill., which claimed him as one of their graduates of February, Eighteen Hundred and Seventy Four. The doctor also said that his diploma can be seen at his office by any one who is so desirous.

KILLED TO DEATH.

He Had a Hemorrhage and Died. Buried at the County's expense.

James Canwith, who, in our last issue, was reported suffering from a crushed leg, the result of an accident while riding on the cars between Jackrabbit and Pioche, died Saturday morning at about 8:30 o'clock.

He bore up under his intense suffering with remarkable nerve, until he came to know he would have to lose his leg. He then seemed to lose all courage and died almost at once.

The leg appeared to be doing well until Friday night when a hemorrhage started from the horrible gash in the heel. The bleeding judging from the pool of blood must have continued until his body was nearly drained; yet, it was evidently thought by him and his attendant, of insufficient moment to warrant sending for the doctor. Next morning the condition of things had changed, the patient was weaker and the doctor determined to take off the leg. As soon as the fact was made known to Canwith, he again repeated the statement he had so often made use of during his short illness "I had rather die, gentlemen, much rather die, than to lose my leg and perchance become a pauper". The doctor had been gone a short time, when Canwith's choice had gone into effect; he had died without a struggle.

His remains were at once taken to the undertaker's rooms; from whence the funeral took place on Sunday afternoon. Truly here is a pitiful picture. A man who is certainly possessed of much merit; one too, whose manhood prompted the choice of death, as far preferable, than to accept that which his own hands had not earned is nursed and buried at the County's expense.

He was a steady worker, but the same old story "drink" had left him penniless and forced him to accept this final aid.

FURNACE NOTES.

There is a fine stock of bullion now on hand waiting for teams to convey it to Milford.

The mud around the works is ankle deep, making pedestrianism anything but pleasant.

The locomotive has been under repairs for several days and resumed its regular trips on Tuesday.

No. 1 furnace has been run down to undergo some needed repairs. When finished it will resume operations.

The inclement weather is driving the quail into town. A fine male bird was seen near the Works Monday night.

The large store room at the old works has been removed to the smelters and is being erected side of the scale office.

Wood for the kilns is being brought in from the front and as soon as sufficient quantity is in the kilns will be fired up.

The reading room is daily in receipt of books or papers and every inducement is offered the men to spend the evenings in a social and intellectual manner.

Mr. Geo. Williams, who has been spending a vacation in the city of the saints returned by Saturday's stage and resumed his position as foreman at the furnace.

So far the works have experienced very little trouble in the way of frozen pipes, and as the winter is nearly passed it may be safe to say all danger from that quarter has passed.

The coyotes are again mustering around the Works to pick up any scraps of lunch thrown away by the men. Hunger is causing them very tame and are not easily scared away.

Gazing from Pioche down into the valley below is at all times a pleasing sight to an artist's eye, but last Tuesday morning the landscape was one of rarest beauty. The P. C. M. and R. Co's works had the appearance of being on the edge of a beautiful bay which connected with the ocean proper at "Jeff Davis Peak", the lofty points of which were just visible above the swelling waves. In the background of the picture there were the snow clad mountains on the other side of the valley; the snow that could dimly be seen just below the light blue cloud [which represented the water] made it appear like a reflection of the shores seen deeply into the water. It was a grand sight to gaze upon the wavy clouds from the location above.

Drunkness at an Excuse.

The Supreme Court, on the appeal of Jack Phelan, convicted of burglary in the second degree, holds that the court below erred in instructing the jury that evidence going to show that the defendant was drunk when he entered the building could only be considered for the purpose of determining the degree of the crime and even then must be received with great caution. The decision holds that this is repugnant to Section 22 of the Penal Code. Judgment was reversed and the case remanded for a new trial. San Francisco Call.

Silver State: As David Giroux of the Winnemucca Hotel was about to retire Saturday night he heard a noise in the adjoining room as of some one in distress. He went into the room, where he found his son Eddie, who had gone to bed some time before, in convulsions and frothing at the mouth. Dr. Herdman was immediately called, and when he arrived the boy's pulse was almost imperceptible. After working with him four hours the boy was brought out of the fit, which the doctor says was caused by nicotine poisoning from excessive cigar smoking.

A REAL GHOST.

A SHELTER HAND SAW IT ENERGE FROM A GRAVE AND HEARD A MOURNFUL GROAN.

A LIGHT BELOW.

A Sad Tale of Woe is Quietly Told and a Real Ghost Retired to His Grave to Devour The Contents of a Lunch Bucket.

One night last week, just sixty minutes before that dreaded midnight hour, when the spectral clock echoes back the strokes of twelve and trembling humanity close its eyes more tightly at the instance of mysterious sounds, a terrible scene was being enacted at the grave yard below town.

A young man, in whose mind was fixed the idea of self support, an honest dollar etc., could have been seen, lunch bucket in hand vending his lonesome way toward the smelter. Then a few moments later, (with the exception of the same young man) there was a complete transformation of scene. Now there was a young man whose seeming aim in life was only to escape the clutches of some hideous monster and who could have been seen lunch bucket behind, tearing through the sage brush in his way to the smelter. Had a sane man seen him at this moment he would have certainly said, "arrest thy speed young man; thy haste is certainly imperiling thy life; and thy excitement is not good for thy mental balance." Yet so he sped.

SOMETHING TERRIBLE HAD HAPPENED. As he walked out of town and away from human life, he naturally remembered that, step by step he was nearing that lonely spot, the graveyard. Why was it that on this particular night above all others there came to him a sudden dread of passing that place? Was it possible that something was going to happen to him, or was he about to witness some ghost scene? Some skeletons perchance, who could not wait till twelve o'clock, to arise, cross their fleshless knees as they sat on their tombs, swap heads and then sink back again? These thoughts filled his brain and tried to influence him to circle the place, but his better judgment would not permit of this, so summoning up all courage he determined to see it through.

He advanced boldly enough until quite near, when truth or fancy told him, a half smothered ticking sound was coming from that section, still he pressed onward with legs that almost refused to do his bidding until quite opposite the spot. Here he stopped to determine what it could be. With nerves strung up to their highest tension and knees knocking together like fire crackers popping he gazed until

A TERRIBLE SPECTACLE met his eyes. First a phosphoric light met his gaze, which seemingly sunk into the ground; then a something emerged from the same spot, which soon assumed the form of a human head. He saw no more; at that moment a loud groan shook the earth and then the involuntary muscles of our hero's legs were springing his body into the air and at a rate never before attained, he was fast nearing the furnace lights.

This is the story that was whispered in confidence to two or three. The following is what Billy Bell (a trusty at the county jail) said, and is more than likely to make somebody sorry he spoke. "You see, I was down there about eleven o'clock, digging a grave by candle light, and expecting Mr. Tracy along. About that time, I thought I heard him coming, so placing my ladder against the side I climbed up and looked out. It was somebody else going down the smelter trail who evidently had a great scare on him. Seeing this and guessing the cause, I let go a horrible old groan, and he, great scott! you ought to have seen him cleave the air. After watching him as far as I could see and cursing myself for not having a stop watch, I remembered having seen him drop something on the trail. It proved to be his dinner bucket, the contents of which came in quite handy for a lunch. Six feet under ground surrounded only by spoons and lighted by a flickering candle I polished off its contents which were, one slice of exquisitely boiled ham, one of corned beef, three of fine white bread, one great big piece of sponge cake, one piece of currant and one of gooseberry pie, and last but not least, in that little part of the lid covered by a tin cup there was a fair allowance of canned peaches. The whole combination went finely. If the county are in any way short up for funds, they should just call on me, for from a given signal I can snuffly the jail with a luxurious living. The other fellow feasted on his imaginations."

POINTS FROM PANACA.

Their Mining District to Boom Next Spring. Elegant Weather Makes The Trees Bloom. Notes, Personalities, etc.

Panaca, though only twelve miles from Pioche, presents a remarkable contrast in climate and temperature, whilst Pioche and the surrounding country still wears the garb of winter, Panaca assumes the dress of spring. The trees are already beginning to bud and vegetation is keeping pace with them. A general air of thrift and prosperity pervades the place and few communities can boast of a more moral and industrious class of people. Three schools are running; the grammar school is under the tuition of G. Whitney; the intermediate by Miss Susie Wedge and the primary by Miss Mary Syphus. The schools are well attended the progress of the scholars speaks well for the ability of the teachers.

A large reservoir is being built which will have the effect of reclaiming a large tract of land which heretofore has been unproductive.

Panaca folks have had a great scare in the way of diphtheria; every particle of news from Pioche is eagerly gobbled up by the community and precautions of every description are being taken to prevent a lodgement of the disease in their midst.

There is considerable talk of the Pioche minstrel troupe taking in the town on their return from Paris. It is very evident they made a big mash on the Panaca beauties the last time they were there thru to the disparagement of the country pumpkins.

Our versatile friend, Dick Rich, is putting up a new house for one of the Mathews boys which, when finished will be an ornament to the town. Dick's handiwork can be recognized in many an elegant residence which is a standing memorial of his excellency as a first class workman.

The new district, a short distance below Panaca, is attracting considerable attention. Some parties came in a few days ago bringing in specimens of ore that would assay 1700 ounces silver and some little gold. Quite a number of locations have been made and we may look for a lively camp the coming spring.

The cattle on the different ranges are reported as doing well, very little if any loss has taken place and they are said to be in fine condition.

IN MEMORIAM.

PIOCHE LODGE NO. 26, A. O. U. W. W. PIOCHE, FEBRUARY 3, 1891.

To the officers and members of Pioche Lodge No. 26, A. O. U. W. Brothers: Your committee appointed to draft resolutions expressing the feelings of our Lodge occasioned by the sudden death of the wife of our Brother Master Workman B. C. McDonough, most respectfully report:

RESOLVED: We sincerely mourn, with the widower and relations, the untimely loss of one so dear, but resign our trust to that Deity who doeth all things well, and who alone can heal the wounds of the afflicted and comfort them in trial.

RESOLVED: That to her bereaved husband, mourning the loss of a kind and loving wife, we tender our heart-felt sympathy and condolence; to the relatives and friends of the deceased, we offer the expression of our sincere sorrow.

RESOLVED: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the husband, mother and brothers of the deceased, to the Pioche Record for publication, and that the Recorder spread the same on the minutes.

Respectfully Committee H. E. Freudenthal C. E. Holt T. E. Edwards

Funeral of Margaret McDonough.

At noon of Friday last, the Catholic Church was filled to its utmost capacity with sorrowing relatives and friends who came to witness the Solemn Requiem service, over the remains of Mrs. Margaret McDonough. Rev. Father McManus, who officiated, is deserving of much credit and praise for the beautiful way in which he referred to the christian like character of the deceased.

He delivered in a kind and sympathizing way the most consoling remarks possible for one of his belief, and left little unsaid that would tend to lighten the intense grief of those most near and dear.

The church had been previously draped and it presented a somberness that was in perfect harmony with the solemnity of the occasion.

At one o'clock the funeral left the church and slowly made its way to the Catholic burying ground, where the last solemn rites were performed by the Rev. Father.
